Boyne upsets Rayders in District OT thriller

MORGAN SHERBURNE
NEWS-REVIEW
SPORTS WRITER

EAST JORDAN — Sometimes, everything just clicks for a team.

The shots are on and the defense tough to break through. The crowd is big and electric

The whole package just pushes you through to the next round.

Unfortunately for the Charlevoix Rayders, that team was the Boyne City Ramblers when the two rivals met for a district semifinal game on Wednesday, March 9.

Rambler senior Caleb Roberts, who dominated the fourth quarter offensively in scoring 10 of his 16 points, tied the game 42-42 in the final 30 seconds.

Boyne then outscored Charlevoix, 5-4, in overtime to upset the Rayders, 47-46, overcoming an outstanding 23 point effort by Charlevoix senior Dylan Putman

"It was an outstanding game, back and forth," said Boyne coach Nick Redman, whose team lost both regular-season meetings with the Rayders, the first by 25 points, the second by 30. "When we played them at home, we played them really tough for three-and-a-half quarters, so we knew we could compete with them ... We knew we were going to be a different team. Honestly, the kids believed. They played fearless."

During that game, the Ramblers went down 63-38, a spread made much wider by a late Rayder run, Charlevoix coach Adam Wood said.

"We made a run late in the second half and made the final score look a little more exaggerated than what it was," Wood said. "Coach (Redman) always does a great job and two years in a row we struggled with them in the districts. We had an off night all around, whether it was handling the ball or pressure or shooting the ball."

It was the second straight year the Ramblers have knocked off the Rayders in the district tournament. Boyne, 9-12, lost to Harbor Springs, 8-13, in the district title game on Friday. Harbor advanced to the final with a 60-45 victory over Mancelona.

Senior Dylan Putman was the top scorer for the Rayders with 21 points while junior Andrew Potter added seven.

"We lost three starters throughout the year," said Wood. "For the rest of these guys to pick it up, win a conference and leave a little bit of a legacy, it says a lot about their character and their ability to face adversity."

Junior Jay Redman scored all 16 of his points in the second half, 11 of them coming in the third quarter, while Kolbi Shumaker added 10 poitns and four assists for Boyne, which lost several close games this season.

Those hard-to-swallow losses coupled with last year's unexpected district championship paid dividends on Wednesday, coach Redman said.

"By winning it last year, that helped our program more than anybody could imagine," he said. "With all those close games we played, I think we learned the hard way.

"Before we got on the bus (tonight) I showed them the last quarter and a half of last year's (district-title) game against Charlevoix and I really stressed how every possession matters. And it came down to the last possession again."

Charlevoix led 20-16 at halftime before the Rayders tied it up, 29-29, headed into the fourth.

Boyne got outstanding defensive contributions off the bench from the likes of Tevin Larmond and Luke Thorp.

"Tevin Larmond did an awesome job off the bench defensively, he changed the game by his defensive effort," coach Redman said. "Every single player that stepped on the floor knew their role. Luke Thorp, he played the whole fourth quarter and did a great job on (Charlevoix's Brennan) Ackerman."

"I want to congratulate Adam on doing an outstanding job, and Dylan Putman played an outstanding game."

WEIGHT LIFTING

Charlevoix junior football player Jake McLean successfully completes a 450 pound deadlift at Saturday's U.P. Powerlifting Championships in Newberry. McLean won the 181 pound weight class and was named the Championships' "Lifter of the Meet" for participants above 165 pounds as he piled up the highest weight total (1085 total pounds) among all varsity lifters.

Members of the Charlevoix varsity football team fell short of capturing their third straight team title at Saturday's Upper Peninsula Powerlifting Championship in Newberry, finishing third in the contest.

The Rayders' varsity lifters earned eight medals, including three individual titles. Tanner Catt (132 pounds), John Boss (155 pounds) and Jake McLean (181 pounds) captured their respective weight classes, with McLean being named the event's "Lifter of the Meet" for participants above 165 pounds. To earn the honor, McLean lifted the highest weight total of the roughly 75 varsity participants. Other varsity points were scored by Jarod Riebel (third at 145 pounds), Andrew Potter (third at 165 pounds), Corbin Turkelson (third at 207 pounds) and River Gauthier (fourth at 145 pounds). Junior varsity lifters earning points included Andrew Mitchell (first at 194 pounds) and Sawyer Russell (fifth at 181 pounds).

The Upper Peninsula Powerlifting Championships include three lifts — squat, bench press and deadlift — with the weights of highest successful lifts in each discipline being added together for a participant's final score. Going into Saturday's competition, Charlevoix football was the two-time defending champion, having won the 2009 and 2010 events. This year's competition was won by host Newberry, with Onaway finishing second and Charlevoix a close third.

Dental brush up

In honor of National Children's Dental Health Month, Becon Dental Center dentist Michael A. Sullivan recently spent time with preschoolers at Charlevoix Children's House and Charlevoix Sunny Smiles discussing the essentials of dental hygiene and what will happen if they do not brush their teeth. Sullivan and his assistant spent time talking to and quizzing each class, counting teeth, answering questions, and giving prizes to the kids after they let Sullivan look into their mouths for a quick checkup. Sullivan recommends following the American Medical Association guidelines for pediatrics by making sure that children as young as age one see a dentist regularly, and brush and floss their teeth daily.

Board extends Janik's contract

Opinion split on contents of annual evaluation report

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Janik

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education extended the contract for district superintendent Chet Janik for an additional year and approved his annual written evaluation on a split vote Monday.

The vote on the motion that included both the contract extension and the evaluation passed by a 4-2 vote with board members Valerie Snyder and Kevin Pearsall voting no.

Janik's contract, a rolling three-year contract, is now extended through the end of the 2013-14 school year. The renewed three-year contract remains unchanged again this year paying him $102,144 in annual salary, health, dental, vision, long term disability and life insurance.

In his annual evaluation Janik overall received high praise from the board.

Board president John McLean Jr. read a written summary of the evaluation which took place in closed session on March 9.

According to the written report, Janik overall met or exceeded the board's expectations, specifically in areas such as student achievement, finance and leadership.

"Board members were asked to provide feedback to the superintendent in each goal area. They unanimously affirmed that Chet had met their expectations as superintendent," the written report reads.

"In finance, superintendent Janik exceeded expectations. Board members credited him with great efficiency in stretching fewer dollars where they were most needed. His priorities mirrored theirs in matching resources with student instruction," the document reads.

On his own behalf, Janik pointed to smooth leadership transition and greater collaboration among employee groups as points of pride.

The board, according to the written evaluation report, also commended Janik for his work in recent administration hires, communication with the board and improvements in his relationship with the staff.

The one blemish on the evaluation was a discussion of the "athletic complex process."

"It did not go well and Chet took responsibility," the report reads. "The superintendent was urged to work with the district's attorney and assisting the board in developing new policies to minimize disruption in the future."

In the report, the board also challenged Janik to "leave no stone un-turned" in seeking alternative sources of revenue.

But not all members of the school board agreed with the contents of the written report.

Before the vote, Snyder said she would prefer if the matters of Janik's contract and the evaluation report could be voted on separately.

She added that sections of the evaluation report do not accurately reflects what was said during the closed session, but she did not elaborate on what the differences were. She also said she would not be in favor of extending Janik's contract back to the full three years because "we are in an era of crisis."

Pearsall also did not agree with all of the report's content saying, "There are a few comments in here that weren't what we talked about," he said, also not elaborating.

Three of the other four board members made comments supportive of Janik.

Coucil supports security camera plan

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

If all goes according to city police chief Gerard Doan's plan, there may soon be more cameras at Michigan Beach than those brought by photographers seeking a shot of the setting sun or the landmark lighthouse.

At Monday's regular semi monthly Charlevoix City Council meeting, Doan asked for the council's direction on his proposal to place two currently unused security cameras in the area of Michigan Beach.

And, by consensus, with no one voicing opposition, the council encouraged Doan to move forward with the proposal.

Recently, the chief explained, the police department received a $15,000 grant from the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians to outfit two patrol cars with video cameras.

However, Doan explained, recently he was able to find a good deal on the equipment and was left with about $5,000 of the grant money unspent. After first seeking

Teens sentenced in harassing calls case

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

A trio of Charlevoix-area teens who were facing criminal charges in connection with a string of harassing and threatening phone calls entered pleas and were sentenced last week.

In 90th District Court, Trenton John Bradley, 17, and Jonathan Philip Saur, 18, pleaded no-contest to a charge of malicious use of telecommunication services.

A no-contest plea is similar to a guilty plea in that the defendant is held responsible for the crime, but he or she does not admit guilt. Such pleas are typically only allowed in certain circumstances, including instances (such as this one) where there is a chance that a lawsuit could arise from the situation.

Bradley and Saur were each sentenced to serve 180 days in jail with 13 days to be served immediately and the balance held in abeyance (with school release approved); 15 days community service, 12 months probation, pay $1,000 in fines and costs, write letters of apology and to not possess a cell phone while on probation. Both were also sentenced to pay $30 in restitution with additional amounts to be determined later.

Both were sentenced under the Holmes Youthful Trainee Act, which allows for first-time youthful offenders to have a conviction expunged from their records if they successfully complete all terms of their sentence and probation.

The third teen charged in connection with the calls, Joshua Scott Hogan, 16, also pleaded responsible in probate court last week. Hogan was sentenced to three to six months probation, 20 hours community service, to undergo counseling, write a letter of apology, 10 days of daytime and 30 days of secure or non-secure detention — all held in abeyance, and pay $78 in fines and costs.

The charges stem from allegations that the teens made one or more in a series of harassing or threatening phone calls last fall with the aide of smart phone applications that disguised their voices and altered the cell phone Caller ID information.

Among the calls were many to a Charlevoix-area family during which threatening or harassing statements were made. Other calls included one — apparently at random — threatening call to an elderly woman in Cheboygan and a bomb threat to the Odawa Casino Resort in Petoskey.

Authorities said the woman in Cheboygan was scared enough by the call that she spent a night elsewhere.

Authorities also said not all of the teens were involved with all of the calls.

EJ woman injured in one-car crash

EAST JORDAN — An East Jordan woman was injured in a one vehicle traffic crash near his hometown late Sunday.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's office officials identified the injured woman as Bobann Eugenia Fick, 22. Fick was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by East Jordan Ambulance where she was treated for her injuries and later released.

Deputies said the crash happened at shortly before midnight on M-66 south of Rogers Road in South Arm Township.

Deputies said Fick traveling south on M-66 when she ran off the road and struck a utility pole. The crash remains under investigation. The East Jordan Fire Department also assisted at the scene.

CONTRACT

"We are going into some tough times," board member Bo Boss said. "I'm totally behind Chet and all the administrators. I think we need to stay united."

(To see the entire evaluation report, visit www.charlevoixcourier.com.)

In another motion the board unanimously approved renewing the district's administrative and non-bargaining contracts — all with no pay increases.

In other business the board also approved the first amendment to its 2010-11 budget since approving it in June.

The revised budget picture improves slightly the version initially passed.

Janik explained that the district has seen increases in both its revenue and expenses since the beginning of the budget year. The increased revenue came from the passage of federal funding legislation. Much of the increased revenue was offset by increased expenses in employee retirement rates, sick day buyouts and some mandated part-time staff additions in special education.

However, the net effect of the changes knocks the budget deficit down to about $275,00 — a reduction of about $76,000. The revised budget projects a year-end fund balance of $316,000.

The board will likely make one last revision to the budget just prior to the fiscal year's end in June.

Writer agrees: No cause for radiation fear here

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

For this week I was going to write about the widespread and needless fear of nuclear radiation prompted by the accidents with the Japanese nuclear power plants. I could hardly qualify as an expert, but I did once spend three months in Oak Ridge, Tenn. at the nuclear power and research facilities learning to safely handle all sorts of radiation-produced products.

Anything I would have been able to say was pretty much pre-empted by a front page story in the Petoskey News-Review based on information from Dr. Wolfgang Bauer of the department of physics and astronomy at Michigan State University. The Thursday, March 17, issue of the News-Review is well worth a look by anyone who seeking truth about nuclear radiation.

The answer to the question of how fearful we should be about the Japanese situation and our own nuclear power industry is clearly, "not very fearful." It is all too easy to induce fear when knowledge is unclear or confusing, and there is certainly a general lack of clarity and understanding about nuclear radiation.

While Dr. Bauer is very understandable, much of the physics establishment has not been helpful to the ordinary citizen. How much radiation is harmful is a perfectly good question, but the answers are often difficult. How radiation is measured is part of the same question. It is not helpful that so many different measures of radiation have been used over the years. I can at least provide a glossary of terms and measurements.

The first measure of nuclear radiation was introduced by Marie Curie who isolated radium, the first known radioactive element, for the first time. Until then science generally thought of atoms as indestructible and indivisible. Curie measured the tiny explosions of radium atoms and suggested that the proper unit for measurement could be called the curie. Formally it was 3.7 times ten to the tenth power (a very large number) Radium atoms disintegrating per second.

Then there was a millicurie which was 1/1000 as much and a microcurie which was 1/1,000,000 as much. The roentgen was used to measure the energy in x-rays and nuclear radiation. A roentgen measured the amount of chemical change produced by the radiation. Measuring the amount absorbed by people required a new unit the RAD, short for radiation absorbed dose. Later the REM (roentgen equivalent man) came closer to determining the effect on human beings. Currently the measure of choice and the one you are likely to see in newspaper reports is the sievert, named for the Swedish physicist R. M. sievert. If you are to be exposed to nuclear radiation of any sort, you want only to have exposure to a microsievert or possibly a milliseivert.

The damage to a human produced by exposure to microsieverts or possibly even millisieverts is mostly repaired over time, so the allowable dose is some number of microsieverts per year for workers in nuclear power facilities. Almost no one would suffer any noticeable effects over a lifetime of low-level exposure. Everyone on earth is more or less constantly exposed to some low-level of nuclear radiation, often called background radiation. Medical and dental x-rays are the largest exposure most of us ever have.

Should we be worried about any effects on the U.S. of the Japanese problems? Certainly not. Should we be in fear of the use of nuclear energy to produce electricity in ways that don't burn fossil fuels? Again, certainly not. Coal-fired power plants release hundreds of tons of mercury and arsenic into our atmosphere every year and produce far more important bad health effects than even the exceptionally rare accidents at nuclear power plants.

One of ecology's unbreakable rules is, "There is no such thing as a free lunch." If we want inexpensive, easily available electric power it will cost us. We need to know what the costs are. Even though we may fear the costs more, the cost in health and hazard are not higher for nuclear power.

Lions say thanks for support

Editor:

Over the past 18 months, the Charlevoix Lions Club has donated more than $20,000 to various Lions and community projects. These are monies raised from Lion fundraisers such as Venetian chicken, White Cane, and Christmas tree sales. More than $4,600 was donated to Lions projects such as leader dogs, Michigan Eye Bank and eye glasses. Youth programs such as scouts, soccer, junior golf, Camp Quality and many more received more than $5,400. A little more than $2,200 went to fund programs at Northwest Academy and Charlevoix Public Schools. Nearly $6,100 went to community groups such as the Charlevoix Community Pool, Venetian Festival, Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation, hospice, Women's Resource Center and many more.

The Lions also award four scholarships to Charlevoix High School seniors totaling $2,000.

The men and women of the Charlevoix Lions wish to thank the community for their generous support of our fundraisers. Your support helps Lions fight blindness and our community.

approval from the tribe for the use of the remaining money, Doan said he'd like to use some security cameras that have been in storage to help monitor areas of the city that are common complaint hotspots.

He said one of the first places that came to mind was Michigan Beach — one in the parking lot area, the other on the lake shore side of the water plant.

Doan said both areas are common locations for calls. In fact, last fall someone vandalized the lake side of the water plant with graffiti.

Doan said his plan would be for the cameras to be in plain sight in hopes that they might also have a deterrent effect.

Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr., who with his family operates the Beach House concession at Michigan Beach, said he supports the idea and noted that he's not only heard complaints about activities by the water plant, but also said last year someone tried to break into the Beach House building.

Council member Lyle Gennett said he supported the idea, but suggested a camera downtown — perhaps the intersection of Bridge and Clinton streets might be worth considering because it could serve as both a crime deterrent and allow city officials to monitor vehicle and pedestrian traffic flow in the busy summer months.

Council member Jill Picha also supported the camera proposal, but said she'd like one that could monitor people jumping into the channel — which is not only dangerous, but also is a violation of city ordinance.

Doan said with the council's blessing he will pursue the camera proposal further and report back to them for final approval when he has details on the cost and exact placement finalized. In the meantime the city attorney will look in to what legal requirements the city might need to meet regarding notifying people about the cameras.

The council members also heard a request from local businessman Dean Spencley who asked them to give greater consideration to local vendors when awarding bids to purchase goods and services for the city.

Spencley specifically was asking for the council to give added weight to his company's bid to provide janitorial supplies to the city.

He said this is his second year bidding for the contract. Last year his bid was lowest in the county and second lowest overall. This year his bid was the lowest bidder in Charlevoix County but the fourth lowest bidder overall.

The city's current local preference bidding policy allows the council to give limited preference to qualified bidders from Charlevoix County if their bids are within 1 to 3 percent (depending on the amount of the purchase) of the lowest bid.

Spencley said the benefit of supporting local businesses outweighs amount that the city saves in choosing less expensive bids from out-of-town companies.

Picha said she has nothing against Spencley, but thinks its important to stick by the percentage guidelines in the current policy.

Gennett, however, said he can see the merit in Spencley's argument about keeping the money local, and noted that a local company might be more accountable for their work.

Picha countered with, "If we aren't going to use the guidelines, then we should just throw them out.

The council took no action on the matter because the actual bid for janitorial supplies won't likely be ready for the council's consideration for about another month.

In other business, the council vote unanimously to renew a contract with Petoskey-based Willcome Tree Service the lone bidder on a contract to provide tree trimming, removal and stump grinding services for the city. The costs in the contract remain the same as last year.

Grandvue administrator receives statewide award

EAST JORDAN — Kevin Evans, Grandvue Medical Care Facility administrator, is receiving a statewide award for his work in providing a "safe, caring environment for the facility's residents and staff."

The Aging Services of Michigan Leadership in Action Award recognizes individuals "whose actions and leadership greatly enhance the work environment in their organization and the quality of life for residents in the entire community." Only top management staff members for a facility are eligible for the award.

Evans, who found last week that he will be this year's recipient, said he appreciates the honor, but he doesn't take full credit for his success.

"It really isn't just about me. It's a team success. It's because of the amazing people who work here that I'm getting this award," Evans said.

Evans was nominated for the award by members of the 232 full-time and part-time employees of the facility. Evans has been the administrator of the facility since 2005.

"He's very knowledgeable running the facility and helps everyone do better because of his leadership. I've come to a whole different level with my work because of his mentoring," said Carol Timmer, Grandvue's director of nursing.

Evans claims to have two main philosophies that have made the facility a success.

"The first one is that nothing is done in a vacuum. Everything is done with a team approach. No one job is more important than another. We all work together as a team. The second thing is that it's everyone's duty to make the day better one heart at a time," he said.

Timmer added: "His caring and compassion lead him; it inspires him to be a great leader. He makes the residents and staff his No. 1 priority because he genuinely cares for each and every person here."

According to Timmer, since Evans started as administrator of Grandvue, he has enhanced the quality of life for all its residents and staff. He participates in the lives of all of the 113 residents and has developed programs such as the Nurse Aid Training Program, which helps up to 96 students a year become certified nurse aides in the state.

"He's created a very caring atmosphere here and I can't express how much of a pleasure it is to work as part of the team with him. He has really earned this award," Timmer said.

We really pour it on at our Annual Meeting.

BIG moon rising

A "perigree" full moon illuminates Round Lake and the U.S. Coast Guard Station Charlevoix as it rises in the east on Saturday. According to NASA, full moons vary in size because of the oval shape of the moon's orbit. The orbit is an ellipse with one side (perigee) about 50,000 km closer to Earth than the other (apogee). Nearby perigee moons are about 14 precent bigger and 30 precent brighter than lesser moons that occur on the apogee side the orbit.The last full Moon so big and close to Earth occurred in March of 1993, NASA officials said.

School district welcomes nurse

MARK LINDSAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Students in the Charlevoix Public Schools now have on-site health services available to them in the form of a new school nurse.

Kristie Robarge, a Northern Michigan native, has accepted a position as school nurse for the district's three school buildings. Robarge works in each of the different schools on a rotating basis throughout the week, offering health services to the students and staff.

> "I will be providing health promotion and education in disease prevention for students, families, and staff alike..."

Robarge

According to superintendent Chet Janik, a partnership has been formed with Charlevoix Area Hospital to provide the new full-time nurse to the school district. This is a result of approximately six-months of fundraising coordinated by the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation and with donations from many donors. No school funds will be used to pay for this position.

"The need (for health services) is great in our buildings" Janik said. "I was involved with the interview process with the hospital staff as there was total agreement that the person had to have the unique combination of nursing skills as well as the personality to work with our students and staff on various medical and educational projects. I sincerely believe that we found that individual in Kristie," he added.

Robarge is originally from Mancelona, where she attended school and later left to pursue a degree from Northwestern Michigan college. Robarge also attended Grand Valley State and the University of Michigan. She has worked for more than nine years with Charlevoix Area Hospital and will continue to work there during school breaks.

Kristie is married to Adam Robarge, who also works in the area with Child Protective Services. They have four children together, three of whom are in the Charlevoix school system with their youngest entering preschool in the fall.

"I'm excited to be working in the Charlevoix school district" Robarge said. "We have had really positive experiences with our children in Charlevoix, getting a great start in the elementary school and then moving with confidence to the middle school."

The exact schedule and guidelines for her position haven't been clearly defined yet according to Robarge.

"I will be providing health promotion and education in disease prevention for students, families, and staff alike. I will be seeing sick and injured kids as needed and I will be doing a lot of listening. I have a sick room in each school to work out of and the middle school was gracious enough to repaint and clean up an area for me to work out of as well," Robarge said.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation is primarily responsible for seeking out the funds to make this program happen. The current grant is for three years and beyond with no end in sight.

"The need is great within our communities, we are seeing increased amounts of children with diabetes, morbid obesity, asthma, and other emotional problems as well," Robarge added.

It has been nearly a decade since the school district had a nurse on staff, Janik said.

St. Patrick's Day fun

Charlevoix Elementary School kindergarten classes had a surprise visitor on St. Patrick's Day when they entered their classes — a leprechaun. In anticipation of the naughty fellow, the kindergartner's made traps and set up trick to catch him in the act. Braylen Phillips and Sam Fry from are holding their leprechaun ladders. The shamrock ladders were hanging from the ceiling. The children found "leprechaun dust" all over the ladders, so they knew that the leprechauns were dancing through the air.

OBITUARIES

Lawrence Boss: June 2, 1918 - March 17, 2011

Lawrence Boss, 92 passed away, March 17, 2011 at Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home in Charlevoix. He was born June 2, 1918 at home on the family farm where he lived all his life and worked right up until he suffered a stroke three years ago.

Lawrence was a lover of the Lord, a lover of family, a lover of children, and a lover of the land. Over the years, he raised turkeys, dairy cows, chickens, pigs, registered shorthorn beef cattle and grew vegetables of all kinds. His garden never had a weed. He always had the first ripe tomatoes and grew enough potatoes to feed his extended family as well as the entire neighborhood. In 1957 Lawrence went to work at D.M.E., a local tool and die plant, as he continued to farm. When he retired from D.M.E. in 1983, the vegetable garden got even larger.

Lawrence was a people person. He spent most of his time visiting shut-ins and loving children. He was an active member of the Community Reformed Church where he and his wife Jeanette taught the Sunday school class for 2-year-olds for many years. He served on the church's consistory as both an elder and deacon. Lawrence's famous "strong hand shake" was often the first greeting visitors to the church encountered on Sunday mornings. He was a grandpa to everyone's children and always willing to serve where there was a need.

Lawrence is survived by his wife, Jeanette (DeYoung) Boss whom he married on April 14, 1945, children; Beth Ann and Milo Broadwater of Preston, Minn., Wilson (Bud) and Judy Boss of Charlevoix, and Jan Boss of Charlevoix, grandchildren; Mark and Rachel Boss of Morristown, Tenn., Kari and Chris Maki of Charlevoix, Robert Boss of Marquette, Amanda Boss of Rochester, Minn., David Broadwater of Preston, Minn., and Larry Broadwater of Preston, Minn., great-grandchildren; Grace, Lilly, and Joshua Boss of Morristown, Tenn.

Official: Disaster risk very low from spent Big Rock fuel

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

While much of the world watches as officials in Japan try to get a handle on the crisis at a nuclear power plant brought on by a recent earthquake and tsunami, experts in this country have said there is no reason to fear radiation from the disaster area on the West Coast of the U.S. much less here in the Michigan.

Although grave, the accident in Japan is two orders of magnitude lower than the 1986 Chernobyl incident, Dr. Wolfgang Bauer, chairperson of the department of physics and astronomy at Michigan State University told the Petoskey News-Review in an interview last week.

"With the amount of radiation that's released right now from there (Japan), even with the most sensitive equipment, you would not be able to measure anything here (in Michigan)," said Bauer.

While most area residents may take comfort in knowing the disaster half a world away won't likely affect us here, some may wonder about the risk of a natural disaster causing a similar problem with the spent nuclear fuel that is still stored just a few miles north of town on the site of where the Big Rock Nuclear Power Plant once stood.

The short answer is: It's just about as unlikely as radiation from Japan reaching us here.

Although part of the problem crews in Japan's nuclear power plants are facing is keeping water on spent nuclear fuel rods, there's a big difference between that spent fuel and what's stored near Big Rock Point, a spokesman for the company that now owns the Big Rock site said.

Mark Savage, a spokesman at for Entergy Corporation based at its Palisades nuclear energy plant near South Haven said the spent fuel at the Big Rock site was once stored in pools just like the spent fuel in danger at the plants in Japan. However, that's where the similarities end.

While the fuel at the plant in Japan is still giving off enough heat that it must be cooled by water to avoid overheating, the spent fuel at the Big Rock site has cooled enough that the heat that it still gives off can be dissipated just by the air that flows through the dry casks in which it is now stored.

"This is a completely passive system with no moving parts, pumps or motors involved. Radiation energy is blocked by the dense steel and concrete containers that make up the system," Savage said in an e-mailed response to questions from the Courier last week.

As for natural disasters, even though Northern Michigan is not prone to earthquakes or tsunamis like Japan and other parts of the U.S., Savage said, "The cask system is designed to withstand a host of natural disasters, including a tornado and anomalies on Lake Michigan such as storm surges and seiches. The storage system was designed with these worst-case scenarios built in."

He also noted that the storage pad site (also known as an independent spent fuel storage installation) is fenced and protected 24/7 by a security force.

The spent fuel stored at Big Rock Point is expected to remain on the site until the federal government's nuclear waste storage facility becomes available, which likely will be many years from now.

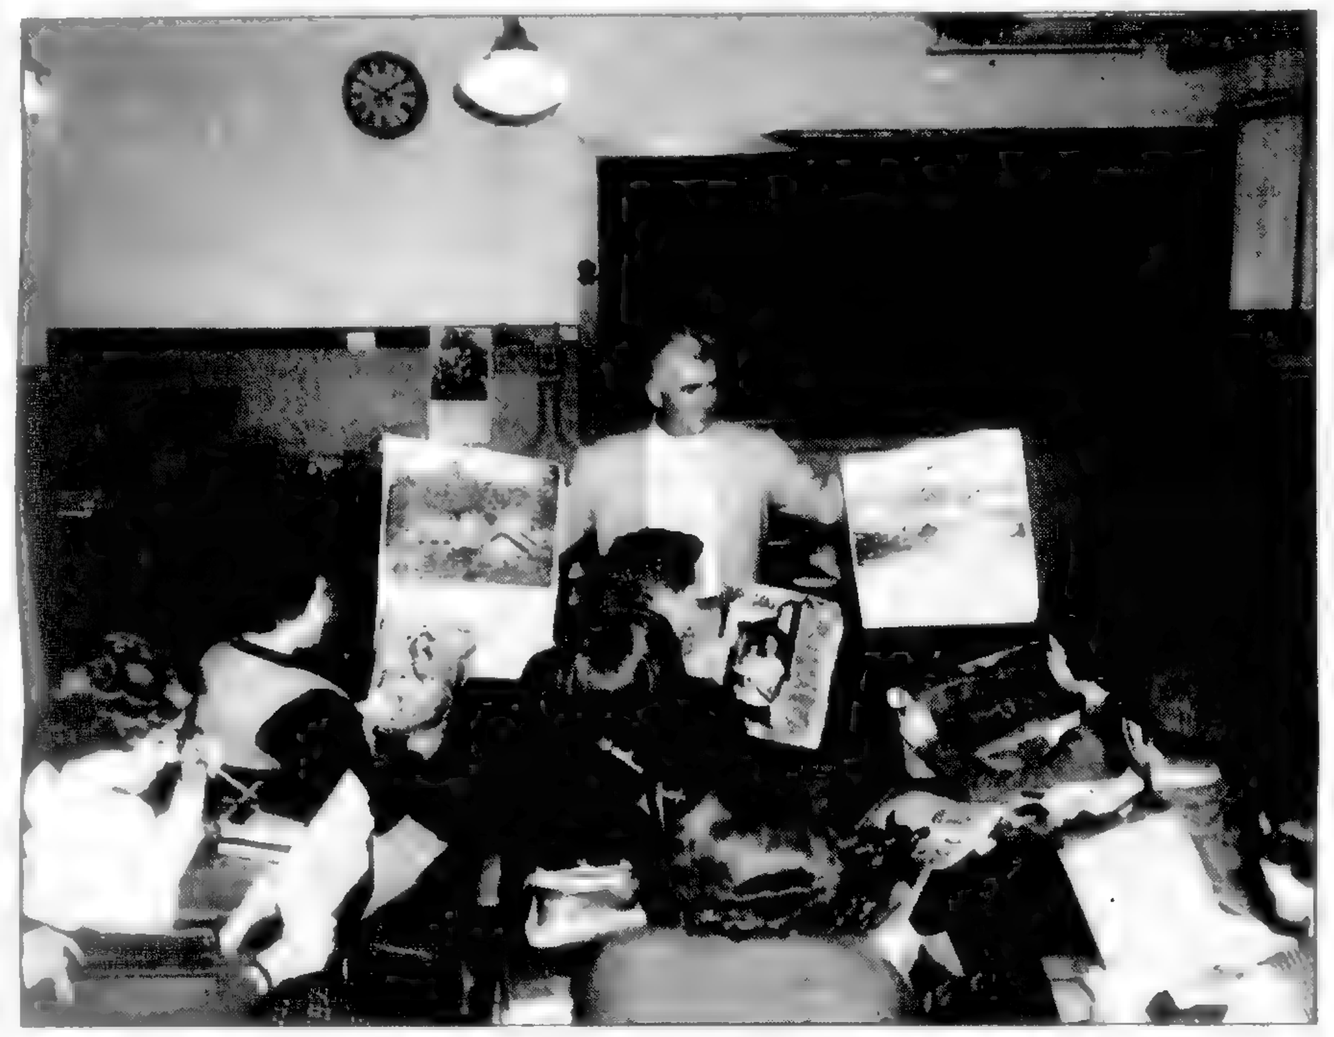
CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

LOOKING BACK…



DAVID MILES/CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Editor's note: This school year marks the 50th anniversary of the last year Charlevoix High School occupied the building on Mason Street. To commemorate the milestone, over the next several months, the Courier will publish photos taken in the spring of 1961 by well-known photographer Bob Miles. The photos, and accompanying information are provided by Miles' son and Historical Society museum co-director David Miles. Pictured here, local author, high school academic counselor and Spanish teacher Bill Ratigan displays Spanish-language publications for his students.

Sheriff warns of call forwarding phone scam

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider is warning area residents to be aware of a phone scam, which originated on the West Coast, which could leave you with high phone bills. It starts when scammers call you pretending to be with your local police department, the sheriff's office, other public safety agency or hospital. The caller makes up a story about your child or other loved one being hurt in an accident and asks you to call the officer "at the scene" by dialing *72 and a phone number they provide. Schneider warns area residents not to do this.

"Charlevoix County Sheriff's deputies will never instruct anyone to dial a phone number beginning with *72 to receive 'on scene' accident information about their loved ones," Schneider said.

When you dial *72 at the beginning of a call you can activate call forwarding, if you subscribe to it. All calls to your phone number will then be forwarded to the phone number the scammers gave you. When this happens, you may be billed a charge each time a call is forwarded to the other number. You may also be billed long distance charges, pay-per-call charges, and collect call charges, if applicable. All calls will continue to be forwarded until this feature is turned off. (In most cases dialing *73 stops call forwarded, but it can vary from carrier to carrier.)

You may have call forwarding as a feature of your landline or wireless service. If you are unsure if you have it, ask your phone company. Not all call forwarding is activated by *72. If you have call forwarding, Schneider suggests you find out how to use it, as well as all your other services so that you can avoid becoming a victim of this type of scam.

If this does happen to you, call your phone company to dispute the charges. They may advise you to file a police report and/or contact the Attorney General's complaint line. For more safety tips, Schneider encourages residents to visit the Michigan Sheriff's Association website at www.misheriff.org where residents can sign up to receive monthly newsletters. Founded in 1877 the Michigan Sheriff's Association is the oldest law enforcement organization in Michigan.

Tapping knowledge

The Parsons Centennial Farm hosted its fifth annual open house for their Harwood Heritage Gold Maple Syrup business Sunday. Intended as a celebration of sping, visitors had the opportunity to attend different stations to learn about the process of collecting maple sap and boiling it into maple syrup. Activities included a demonstration of how to tap a tree, (in the past and in the present), the collection system with the network of tubing, the reverse osmosis and boiling process, the grading process, sugar-on-snow, and tasting of delicious treats. The farm is located at 00061 Parsons Road.

SPORTS reviewing the action

Central Lake's 'Miss Basketball' Jasmine Hines has Charlevoix ties

DETROIT (AP) Jasmine Hines is already running out of room to add achievements to her college applications.

Monday, she picked up another.

Last week the Central Lake senior was named the state's 30th Miss Basketball, finishing with 2,080 points in voting done by the Basketball Coaches Association of Michigan. St. Ignace's Nicole Elmblad was second with 1,473 points while Rebecca Mills of Midland Dow had 1,240 points.

"I was shocked when Coach called me yesterday to tell me that I won," Hines said. "I saw Brenna Bankston play in the finals the year she won Miss Basketball, and ever since then, I've wanted to win this. It is a dream come true."

The Miss Basketball trophy comes after she has set the state's single-season and career records in both scoring and rebounding.

"There are a lot of great players in the state, so you never know who is going to win, but Jasmine definitely deserves this," coach Al Becker said. "Her numbers speak for themselves, but they don't show her dedication. (One day) after practice, she decided she needed more work, so she spent 30 minutes on her own, running.

"There are other days that she spends a couple hours working in the gym on her shot."

The only thing still missing from Hines' basketball rum is à state championship. Central Lake has gone 89-9 during her career, but lost in the semifinals last season. On Thursday Central Lake fell again in the state semifinal to Our Lady of the Lakes, 52-41.

"Winning this trophy was my dream, but the ultimate goal is to win the state title," she said last week before the semifinal loss. "That's the way I want to end this."

Hines ended her high-school career at the Breslin Center — the same arena she will play this fall as a freshman at Michigan State.

If things had been slightly different, though, she could have been representing the Spartans in a different sport altogether. Hines is a two-time state champion in the shot put and was on this year's All-State volleyball team.

She also carries a 4.0 grade-point average and is the vice president of her senior class and the National Honor Society.

"She's a very special person," Becker said. "She has put in a lot of work in her life to make things work out like this."

A pair of coaches who know Hines all too well — St. Mary's Kevin Foster and Johannesburg-Lewiston's Heather Huff, said she's the best player they've coached against.

"I've never seen anything quite like it in 20 years of coaching," Foster said. "She was one player who could completely dominate a game with her physical size. She was so impressive — we tried every kind of defense against her. I told her I'll be much happier watching her at Michigan State than I was coaching in the same gym as her."

Huff believes Hines will succeed at Michigan State.

"She'll have some adjustments to make, going up against people who are at least close to as big as her, but she'll do well," Huff said. "She such a great kid and a nice person, so's going to do very well."

Hines was also recently named the 2011 Gatorade Michigan Player of the Year.

Charlevoix's Dan Barron was one of three coaches for an AAU seventh grade team comprised on which Hines and many recent Charlevoix Rayder standouts played in 2006.

INDOOR SOCCER

Red Cannonballs win the season

Charlevoix's Indoor Soccer League concluded Sunday, March 20 with Josh Manker's Team Red Cannonball winning the season in style.

Indoor soccer is scored with the same system as the Barclay's Premiere League, which awards three points for a win and one point for a tie. If tied at the end of the season, the team with the greatest goal difference and then most goals scored during the season determines the places.

Wade Werth's Black Ice, Glen Wachler's Grey Team and John Shea's Green Hissing Cobras all tied for second place points. In a tie breaker, Black Ice and Grey Team were still tied with a goal difference of zero; Black Ice topped Grey Team with a total of 46 season goals to 36. Fifth place went to Tom Schultz's Ninja Blancos and Ryan Wimmer's Team Yellow finished in sixth.

Outdoor pickup soccer will start at 7 p.m. on Sunday, April 17, at Shanahan Field. Outdoor League Soccer will be 7 p.m. Wednesdays and will be played as pick-up until early May when teams will be formed. Ages 13 and up are welcome.

Members to the league champion Red Cannon ball teams for the 2011 Charlevoix Indoor Soccer Leauge included: Josh Manker (captian), Isaac Matchett, Brian Dishinger, Noah Matchett, Ryan McConnell, Jeanne Haberer and Lilianne Matchett.

District, union leaders agree: first step, 'keep it positive'

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

With the clamor of a bitter battle over public employee bargaining raging just across Lake Michigan in Wisconsin and more school budget cuts looming on the horizon in Michigan, Charlevoix Public Schools officials and the district's two employee unions are making an effort to work toward solutions here in Charlevoix rather than leaving it in the hands of others.

District superintendent Chet Janik and the school board have already begun negotiations with the district's teacher and support staff unions as their three-year contracts are set to expire on Aug. 31.

The economic picture for schools throughout Michigan has been bleak for some time, but especially since Michigan Gov. Rick Snyder announced his proposed budget last month that called for a $470 cut in districts' per pupil state funding.

Since then, Janik has been warning the board and the community that if the state school aid budget passes as proposed, it — combined with an expected drop in enrollment and increase in retirement payment rates — could mean a $1 million reduction in revenue for the school district.

If that happens, it would mean the second year in a row the district would be forced to make major cuts to its budget.

Last year the school board cut $1.4 million in spending — including 14 teaching positions as it tried to balance the budget for the 2010-11 school year.

On top of all that, the governor just signed a new law that allows for the state to appoint an emergency manager to take over a financially foundering municipality or school district.

And that's the last thing the board, administration or employees wants to see happen, Janik said.

Janik said as the groups began their negotiations one of the first things everyone agreed upon was an effort to "keep it positive."

He added that the parties wanted to "go public" with their commitment to work together, not only in hopes of instilling faith in the community in their efforts, but also in hopes that the community will hold all parties involve to their commitment should the process start to unravel.

Asked for what their view of the "keep it positive" pledge means, support staff union president Bill Herriman and teacher's union president Nicole Sterrett replied in a joint statement, "Charlevoix Public Schools, made up of the school board, administration, teachers, and support staff, is all about what is best for our kids. We are choosing to work together through these tough times to continue to preserve and grow our strong foundation."

When the last contract expired in August of 2008, it took until October 2009 for parties to agree upon a the current contract.

Vowing to work together in their ongoing contract negotiations toward an agreement that works for both the school district and its employees, are (from left) school board president John McLean Jr., support staff union president Bill Herriman, teacher's union president Nicole Sterrett and district superintendent Chet Janik.

Booher selected to join foundation staff

EAST JORDAN — The Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently announced the selection of Jennifer Booher as the organization's new scholarship and youth advisory committee program associate.

Booher, of Boyne City, comes to the community foundation with a wealth of experience working with area nonprofit agencies, having previously served as the development director at Camp Daggett, while most recently working as an independent consultant with her company, True North Consulting and Grant Writing Services, LLC. A 1998 graduate of Michigan State University, with a bachelor's degree in marketing and advertising, Booher also worked as the sponsorship manager for the Detroit Zoological Society, as well as in marketing positions for Saab Cars USA and Saturn Corporation prior to moving to northwest Michigan.

"I am thrilled to be given the opportunity to further the good work of nonprofit organizations in Charlevoix County…"

Booher

At the Community Foundation, Booher will work on a part-time basis, coordinating the foundation's scholarship program. She will also provide leadership to the Youth Advisory Committee, which is comprised of 16 local high school students who oversee the foundation's $1 million Youth Fund, supporting many programs and projects in support of youth throughout Charlevoix County on an annual basis. Booher will also contribute to the foundation's marketing initiatives and web initiatives.

"We're delighted to add Jennifer to our team," foundation president Chip Hansen, said. "Her skill set and personality are perfect for the position, and her nonprofit experience and extensive background in marketing and fund development will be major assets as we continue to move the organization forward."

Booher said she is excited about the possibilities, too.

"I am thrilled to be given the opportunity to further the good work of nonprofit organizations in Charlevoix County and look forward to being a part of their continued success," she said.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a grassroots charitable organization made up of various funds – all of them established by local donors. Some funds are earmarked for specific causes, and others are open-ended to meet changing needs. The funds are held in permanent endowment, so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix County, now and for generations to come. For more information about the grant-making process, establishing a fund or making a gift, contact the Charlevoix County Community Foundation at (231) 536-2440, or online at www.c3f.org.

Navy Seaman Gina L. Earegood, daughter of Kathryn I. Weighman of Augusta, Mich., and Jim M. Earegood of Charlevoix, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Earegood completed a variety of training which included classroom study and practical instruction on naval customs, first aid, firefighting, water safety and survival, and shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis was also placed on physical fitness.

The capstone event of boot camp is "Battle Stations." This exercise gives recruits the skills and confidence they need to succeed in the fleet. "Battle Stations" is designed to galvanize the basic warrior attributes of sacrifice, dedication, teamwork and endurance in each recruit through the practical application of basic Navy skills and the core values of honor, courage and commitment. Its distinctly "Navy" flavor was designed to take into account what it means to be a sailor.

Woman accused of killing elderly mother, charged with open murder

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

A Charlevoix Township woman is facing an open murder charge after police say she admitted to using a pillow and a lamp to kill her 94-year-old mother Sunday.

On Monday, Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema authorized a charge of open murder against Sandra Gail Gregory, 74, in connection with the death of her mother, Amelia Patricia Gregory. If convicted, Sandra Gregory could face up to life in prison.

According to a Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office affidavit filed in the case, police and ambulance crews were called to the Gregory home located on U.S. 31 south of Charlevoix, shortly before 8 p.m. Sunday to a report of a deceased 94-year-old woman in the home.

Gregory

According to court documents, Sandra Gregory (who lived with her mother in the same house) told police that a doctor had recently informed her that vision problems her mother had been experiencing were likely a result of a neurological problem and that her mother would soon need to be placed in a nursing home.

Police said Sandra told them that her mother said she did not want to go into a nursing home and that she would rather be with her deceased husband.

According to the affidavit, police said Sandra Gregory told them that sometime after her mother said this (around 9 a.m. Sunday), she smothered her mother with a pillow and then, when she (Sandra) began to tire, she hit her mother in the head with a lamp.

Police said Gregory told them she then called two people, one of whom came to the home and ultimately called 9-1-1.

In a release issued Monday, Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider said Amelia Gregory's body has been sent to Grand Rapids for a forensic autopsy to determine an exact cause of death.

Sandra Gregory's bond, the date for her preliminary examination and a determination on who will serve as her defense attorney was expected to be addressed at her arraignment Tuesday.

At press time she remained lodged at the Charlevoix County Jail in lieu of bond.

No information on funeral arrangements for Amelia Gregory was available at press time Tuesday.

Chamber's first Business Expo a hit

Officials estimate nearly 1,500 attended the inaugural event

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Despite a lack of cooperation by Mother Nature, Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce officials say the organization's first-ever Business Expo was a huge success.

Chamber officials said the event, which took place over a day and a half at Castle Farms last Wednesday and Thursday, drew close to 1,500 visitors.

Chamber president Erin Bemis said official counts are still being calculated, but initial reports show that more than 450 people attended the "Business 2 Business" business after hours-style event on Wednesday and more that 1,000 came through the doors for the Expo and job fair the following day.

And that was all in the face of a spring snow storm that prompted schools across the county and beyond to close on Wednesday.

"We heard many, many positive comments from both vendors and the public," Bemis said. "There was really a buzz in the air."

Bemis said she heard comments from vendors that they made many contacts both with the public and other businesses.

"One vendor said there were almost too many people to talk with," she said. "A couple of them picked up some big deals."

SHERI MCWHIRTER

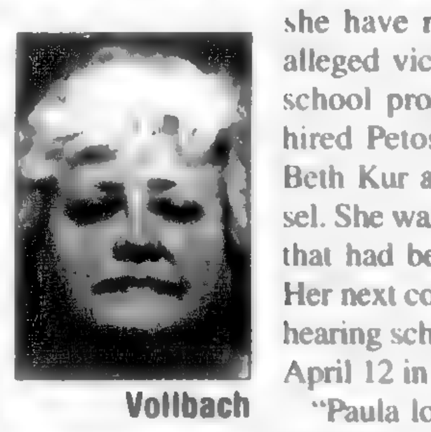
EAST JORDAN — An East Jordan Elementary School art teacher and long-time director of the school's drama group, the EJ Thespians, has been placed on paid administrative leave after she was charged last week with assaulting a student.

Paula Annette Vollbach, 49, of East Jordan faces a misdemeanor assault charge which is punishable by up to 93 days in jail and/or a $500 fine.

According to a police report obtained by the Petoskey News-Review through a Freedom of Information Act request, Vollbach is accused of hitting a 10-year-old boy's hand with a ruler or yard stick after he asked for help with his school work. The alleged assault occurred on March 3.



Vollbach

According to the police report, the alleged victim's father wanted to press charges and contended this is the second time Vollbach touched his son.

Vollbach surrendered to authorities last week after being charged. She remains free from custody on a $2,000 personal recognizance bond. Conditions of her bond require that she have no contact with the alleged victim, nor enter upon school property. Vollbach has hired Petoskey attorney Mary Beth Kur as her defense counsel. She waived her arraignment that had been set for Tuesday. Her next court date is a pre-trial hearing scheduled at 10 a.m. on April 12 in 90th District Court.

"Paula looks forward to having her day in court and she vehemently denies ever having physically hurt anyone. She maintains her innocence," Kur said.

Kur said she's concerned that media outlets have access to the police report before she or Vollbach has seen it, adding it could contaminate the area's potential juror pool if the case goes to trial.

"It's not fair to her," Kur said.

Kur said Vollbach enjoys a great deal of community support in East Jordan and there are many who will attest to her professionalism and responsibility.

In fact, some of Vollbach's supporters created a "Miss V We Love Thee" facebook page over the weekend and it currently has well more than 100 members. It can be found as a link from the E.J. Thespians facebook page.

District Superintendent Susan Wooden declined to answer questions, but issued a written statement last week. The district will complete an internal investigation in a "fair and impartial fashion," according to her statement.

Petoskey state police post to become a 'detachment,' others slated to close

BRANDON HUBBARD
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Michigan State Police officials announced Thursday that the state will be overhauling its police post structure to a more mobile format to balance its budget deficit in the coming year.

Under the new model, the state police post network will be reduced from 62 to 29. The downsizing aims to shift the state police force to less of a stationary institution.

Under the plan The Petoskey Post — which serves Charlevoix County - will become one of 12 posts closing in its current form and become a detachment. The police post in Kalkaska will also become a detachment, according to official documents.

Posts in Cheboygan and Traverse City, as well as 19 others across the state are slated to close completely.

"The (Michigan State Police Department) is confident that service levels will either be unchanged or enhanced given the increased flexibility in deployment and scheduling provided by this regional policing plan," Col. Kriste Kibbey Etue, Michigan State Police director said in a statement. "The department may look different, but our mission is clear: we will continue to provide public safety while respecting the rights and dignity of all persons."

The Michigan State Police budget is facing a $20.7 million shortfall this year, Tiffany Brown, Michigan State Police spokesperson said, causing the statewide force to look at cost reforms.

"We would rather sacrifice buildings, than troopers," said Brown, adding that no layoffs are planned currently.

The Petoskey detachment will now be under the command of the Gaylord post, which will serve as the hub for Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties. Other regional posts will be located in St. Ignace, Sault Ste. Marie, Cadillac and Alpena in the northern Lower Peninsula.

Changing to a detachment means officers will be able to report and operate from the detachment, but offices in the office will no longer be open to the public or have regular business hours.

Resident troopers are assigned to rural areas of the state and will be working directly from their homes.

To augment the functions done in the office presently, mobile technology is being implemented to aid troopers in working directly from their patrol vehicles. Real time mobile updates to courts will also be part of the integration, according to the official statement of the state police.

Trooper John Ferguson, from the Michigan State Police Post 78 in Petoskey, said his only concern was that the Michigan State Police Department has been one of the most successful investigation models in the country, and he wouldn't want to see it "degraded."

"Some of the changes will be subtle — the pubic probably won't see a whole lot of change," Ferguson said. "But, like any change, there will be an adjustment period."

Public safety and interaction with area residents will not likely change, he said, despite the lack of office hours at the post.

"The brick and mortar of the Petoskey post will not be open like it is now, but we'll still be here sometimes," he said. "Obviously, if somebody comes knocking on the door, we'll be happy to answer the door. Or, if they need officer assistance we'll be happy to assist them."

Ferguson said having troopers working primarily from their vehicles and moving around in the community could be an "opportunity" to enhance public interaction.

"This could have a significant benefit if it is done right, and the troopers are feeling that it is being done right as well," he said.

EXPO

Bemis said several people told her they learned about businesses they never knew existed in Charlevoix.

She also noted the success of the Expo and the accompanying job fair are a good sign for the economy in the area

"We're just excited to hear so many people talking about doing business with each other," Bemis said. It's a giant step forward to show how much we can do when we spend our dollars locally.

But even as chamber staff worked on tying up loose ends from last week's inaugural event on Monday, plans are already in the work for next year's Expo.

Bemis said two of this year's major sponsors have already committed to being sponsors again next year and several vendors have already contacted the chamber office wanting to reserve a space for next year.

Bemis

She said chamber staff is already working on setting a date for the 2012 Expo, tentatively in late March or early April, again at Castle Farms.

Of course, Bemis said, no event is perfect and chamber staff are looking at some small tweaks to the event for next year, including some possible changes in the layout and a possible a shift to days later in the week. She said a Friday-Saturday combination was one suggestion under consideration.

For more information on the 2012 Expo, call the chamber office at (231) 547-2101. See page 11 for a page full of photos from the two-day event.

OPINIONS yours & ours

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

The scene was reminiscent of the 60s but with the look of a newer generation. The aromas of brats and burgers wafted down Michigan Avenue. The songs streaming from the loud speakers jolted me back to the Vietnam era, minus the long hair, tie dye and peace symbols. No joints visible to the naked eye, only a few cigarettes, as most of these individuals quit long ago for health reasons. A medical marijuana clinic may have been nearby but it wasn't noticeable.

This scene, which has been viewed recently on AOL, TV and in the newspaper, was what I witnessed firsthand while visiting Lansing last week. I'd like to say I was down there to protest but the actual reason I was in the 'hood' was to celebrate what would have been my dad's 95th birthday. My siblings decided it would be a nice gesture to sit, share a meal and toast a father who did a great job raising us but who is no longer with us, at least not in the physical sense.

This reunion brought back wonderful memories. My role in the family as the middle child was that of peace maker. When tensions grew, my ear became the one that quickly filled up with "he said she said." Growing up and becoming a counselor was just the natural order of things because I spent my life listening and sorting myriad issues from "it's my turn to get the car tonight" to "how come your allowance is bigger?" Even cousins jumped in, or maybe it had something to do with one individual who would actually take time to listen. Ethnic families have a tendency to talk a lot and loudly even if they are standing next to you. Some might view this as yelling, but to us, volume played a role in getting your point across.

The get-together went so well that we are already planning another one. My deceased parents would be so pleased to witness their children getting along for more than a 24-hour period. Once our reunion was complete, my siblings returned to their jobs in Detroit and Kalamazoo respectively, but I, on the other hand, had some time to kill. The Capitol building was conveniently located near the restaurant where we met. While we walked to the parking structure to bid each other adieu, we couldn't help but notice what was taking place on the state Capitol steps and expansive lawn. Instinctively, their heads turned in my direction and they both gave me that concerned sibling look. Almost simultaneously I heard, "OK we know you're headed to the Capitol, just don't get arrested."

Well, I did meet many kind and thoughtful plumbers, electricians and nurses who felt they weren't being heard, not only by the governor, but their legislators as well. So, I did the job I was trained to do since childhood. I sat on the steps of the Capitol and listened and then I listened some more. I might not have created any change in the decisions made near the rotunda that day but I felt I did do something in some small way in an area that affects my life as well. Hopefully I made someone feel that they were listened to. Something I feel is more important than telling someone what to do. Advice is cheap; the active art of listening, does speak louder than words.

CMU Public Radio series features Charlevoix

Central Michigan Public Radio's current edition in its ongoing locally-produced series, "On the Map," will feature the community of Charlevoix. The segments will air at 8:35 a.m. during "Morning Edition," with a repeat broadcast at 5:45 p.m. during "All Things Considered." Tuesday, March 29 through Thursday, March 31.

The broadcast can be heard locally on 103.9 FM out of Harbor Springs.

Central Michigan University Public Radio's Amy Robinson produced this three-part series on the community as it begins to emerge from another long Michigan winter.

Part one examines some of Charlevoix's most unique and notable landmarks — 25 of them to be exact. The show will take listeners on a tour of the Mushroom Houses of Charlevoix. The homes have become one of Charlevoix's premier attractions, drawing visitors from all over the world.

In part two, the show will visit the Dhaseleer farm, home of a taxidermy shop and an Events Barn which hosts weddings and the "Black Cat Concert Series," a venue for new and emerging musical artists. The farm has also launched a program for Community Supported Agriculture, and sells produce, farm fresh eggs, knit hats and pottery. The family is finding economic sustainability in Northern Michigan by thinking out of the box, again and again.

The show will round out its visit to "Charlevoix the Beautiful" by profiling the man who helped coin that name. Dale Boss is known far and wide as "Mr. Petunia." He's lived in — and for — Charlevoix for nearly 80 years. Thirty years ago, he launched the effort to plant miles of petunias through the heart of the city every summer. For the past three decades, Boss, whose motto is "I like to put smiles on people's faces, and I really don't care how I do it," has headed out at 4 a.m. on a musical, bubble truck to water his beloved flowers. The show's producers talk with the man who may well be Charlevoix's best ambassador.

CMU Public Radio is a service of Central Michigan University. The network serves Central and Northern lower Michigan and the Eastern Upper Peninsula.

Women's Resource Center says 'Thank you'

The St. Patrick's Day FUNdraiser held at cava in Bay Harbor to benefit the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan was another great success. The event helped us raise more than $9,000.

Many thanks to all of those who attended the event; donated items for both auctions; bid on items in the silent auction; placed bids during the fun and spirited live auction; helped obtain a bevy of wonderful auction items; volunteered to help prior to, during and after the event; and to Women's Resource Center staff members. We especially thank the staff and management at cava who provided the opportunity to hold this event at their exceptional restaurant along with the bounty of delicious hors d'oeuvres created by their talented team.

We live in a truly gracious community, and we appreciate your ongoing support and confidence in the Women's Resource Center as a worthy recipient of your charitable dollars.

High school 'College Night' a success

Editor:

I just want to thank the following sponsors for helping making our annual College Night on March 17 a huge success. Charlevoix Family Dentistry, Irish Boat Shop, Scott Beatty, Charlevoix Education Association, Knights of Columbus, Charlevoix County Community Foundation, Lions Club of Charlevoix, and the Charlevoix Public Schools Learn and Serve Grant provided funding for the mailings and advertising for this huge event. We had more than 350 students and parents in our gymnasium from all over Northern Michigan and they had the opportunity to meet with 50 college representatives and military recruiters. Also, thank you to our National Honor Society students for helping during the event as well as promoting it.

Thank you.

Food pantry has new home

Third Day Fellowship takes former Assembly of God food pantry

MARK LINDSAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Charlevoix area residents have a new resource to turn to when in need. The Third Day Fellowship and Outreach has opened their new ministry location.

Located at 1204 Bridge St. and open every day except Thursday, the ministry has many programs to assist those in need. One of the ministry's primary outreach programs is the food pantry. Formerly hosted by the Charlevoix Assembly of God, the food pantry is available at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. on Mondays to anyone expressing a need.

Ginger Stevens, pastor of Third Day Fellowship, is a previous long-time employee of the Assembly of God.

"I approached the leadership of the church with my desire for this ministry and asked if I could move the food pantry with it and they agreed," Stevens said.

Stevens, a long-time Charlevoix resident, had a vision for an outreach program that met peoples needs "where they are," according to her. She set a goal for offering an outreach that would cater to the needs of area teens, the unemployed and under-employed families both physically and spiritually.

Married for 31 years with one daughter, Vicki, Stevens and her family all work in the outreach as well as the church. Vicki, her daughter, is the worship leader and her husband Greg volunteers in several areas. Greg Stevens is also active in the local community and serves on the Charlevoix City Council.

The food pantry continues to benefit from support through the Assembly of God in the form of a monthly donation. The church also raises money and gathers additional food through community donations.

Working with an all-volunteer staff, the pantry has distributed food to more than 50 families in the few weeks it has been open in its new location. Many clients have received food three or four times.

Some of the other programs offered by the ministry include a teen outreach, a weekly addiction recovery meeting and help to the homeless. "We've been able to offer aid to couples needing furniture, people in need of work to create a resume and we also have a small clothing closet," Stevens noted. "Sometimes it just seems like we have the right thing for the needs of the person in front of us, which is great."

One of the things they focus on is being there to provide a safe, warm place for displaced young people to go after school into the evening. "We offer games, warm beverages and a place to just hang out to a lot of these kids," Stevens said. "There are a lot of these couch kids that don't have a stable, regular place to sleep and it's important for them to have a place to go at times."

For more information on the food pantry or the Third Day Fellowship's other outreach programs, call (231) 547-8040 or on the web at www.3dfellowship.org. The ministry's regular hours are 2-11 p.m. every day except Monday when they close at 8 p.m. and they're also closed all day Thursday.

Enrollees may be eligible for refund

If you are eligible for or currently enrolled in HIP Michigan, you may be eligible for a refund of part of your monthly premium under a new Northern Health Plan program.

The Health Insurance Program for Michigan–or HIP–is part of the Affordable Care Act signed into law in 2010. It provides affordable, high quality health coverage to Michigan residents who have been uninsured for six months and have an eligible pre-existing condition.

Under the HIP Support Program, qualifying individuals will be reimbursed one-third of the money they pay for HIP Michigan Insurance. For example, a 44-year-old paying HIP Michigan premiums of $296 per month for insurance would get $98.67 back each month if he/she qualifies for the program.

"We're pleased to offer refunds to HIP Michigan enrollees," said Bruce Miller, executive eirector for the Northern Health Plan, which serves an eight-county region across Northern Michigan. "Affordability is the number one issue for income families seeking health insurance. This program can help."

It's easy for HIP Michigan enrollees to get their refunds, according to Valeri Ramage, the local coordinator of the Northern Health Plan. "First, enroll in HIP Michigan and pay your first premium. Then call us and we'll explain how to submit your receipt and document your income. If you qualify, we send you a check for up to one-third of your refund."

To see if you qualify for partial reimbursement of your HIP premium, call Ramage at the Health Department of Northwest Michigan at (231) 547-7665 during regular business hours. The Health Department of Northwest Michigan administers the HIP Support Program for its four-county service area (Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, Otsego), as well as District Health Department #4 service area (Alpena, Cheboygan, Montmorency, and Presque Isle). For more information about HIP Michigan, call (877) 459-3113 or visit www.hipmichigan.org.

To mark the sesquicentennial of the beginning of the American Civil War in 1861, the Charlevoix Historical Society will present a program on Charlevoix's involvement with the war and its influence on the development of the town and immediate area. Harsha House Museum co-director Steve Goslee will present the program at 7 p.m. on Tueday, April 5, at the Charlevoix Depot, located at Depot Beach. Goslee will speak on both the men and women involved in the conflict, how it affected those even in a remote, sparsely populated region of Northern Michigan, and what came afterward because of the war. The public is invited to attend. There will be no admission charge, but supportive donations are appreciated. Light refreshments will be served. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information. Roxy VanLoo: 1933 - March 19, 2011

VanLoo

Roxy VanLoo lost his hard fought battle with cancer March 19, 2011 at Tidewell Hospice surrounded by family. From the large store of material he left, Roxy's family and friends will repeat tales of his wicked wit and skewed humor for years. He made an indelible impression on everyone he met and is unlikely ever to be forgotten. Roxy left us an unmatched legacy of laughter, love and generosity and will be keenly missed by all the people whose lives he touched. He was born in 1933 and his family was fortunate to celebrate his 78th birthday with him at home on March 11. He is survived by Laurie, his loving wife and partner of 30 years, his first wife, Fay, and six children, Roxanne Chandler, Bryan VanLoo, Darrel VanLoo and wife Debbie, Darrin VanLoo and wife Chris, Roxy VanLoo and wife Karen, and Eric Michaud. He will be missed by 15 grandchildren, Patrick, Valerie, Bryan Jr., Jason, Mandy, Sarah, Jenna, Joey, Alyssa, Jordan, Justin, Megan, Grace, Kim and Douglas, and eight great grandchildren, along with brothers Bill and Jim, his many loving in-laws, friends, and best buddy Frank Valora. He was predeceased by his parents Adrian and Mary (McKenzie) VanLoo and three brothers Adrian, Jack and Wylie. After serving four years in the U.S. Navy during the Korean War, Roxy became a tool and die maker. He spent many years in plant management with LexaLite International Corp. in Charlevoix before working for the U.S. Postal Service the last years of his career. Roxy was a life member of Port Charlotte VFW Post 5690 and Amvets, and was a member of Punta Gorda American Legion 103 as well as the DAV, Elks, Eagles, and Moose.

Look of Michigan ID & driver's license changing

Standard Michigan driver's licenses and state identification cards will feature a new look and added security features beginning this month when they start circulating, Secretary of State Ruth Johnson announced today.

"The new licenses have the latest safeguards available to protect their integrity, further ensuring cardholders are who they say they are," Johnson said. "During the changeover period, the licenses' fresh design is the only thing customers will notice. The cost to renew a license or get one for the first time won't change."

Johnson said the state's new contract with its license card manufacturer provided a good opportunity to add the new security features, which make creation of fraudulent licenses even more difficult.

The basic look of the new license and ID card includes an intricate line pattern and outline of the state of Michigan with the Great Lakes. If a person has joined the Michigan Organ Donor Registry, a red heart symbol and the word "Donor" will appear on the lower portion of the card.

Features of the new license and ID card include:

— Tricolor image of a bridge on the front that appears and disappears when viewed from different angles.

— New two-dimensional bar code on the back with encoded information available for law enforcement use, in addition to the existing magnetic stripe and one-dimensional bar code.

— Cardholder's photo and date of birth also on the back viewable under black light.

— Laser-perforated word "MICH" on it.

People who are younger than 21 will continue to be issued a vertical-format license or ID card. People who are 21 years old and older will receive the traditional horizontal version.

Because licenses and ID cards are valid for four years, the existing card design will remain in circulation through 2015, with some vertical graduated driver license cards in circulation through 2016. Cardholders will be issued a new license when they renew or if they need to replace a lost or damaged card.

The cost of a license and ID card will not change. A basic driver's license costs $25 for an original standard license and $18 to renew. A chauffeur's license costs $35 for the original and to renew it. Drivers with motorcycle or commercial driver license group designation endorsements face additional fees. Personal ID cards cost $10 for an original and to renew, unless the cardholder is eligible to have the fee waived.

The design of the license and ID card was last updated in 2003 when the smaller half-tone cardholder photo was added.

The new standard license and ID cards do not contain radio-frequency identification chips.

For more information about how to obtain a driver's license, visit the Secretary of State website at www.Michigan.gov/sos. Customers also may call the Department of State Information Center to speak to a customer-service representative at (888) SOS-MICH (767-6424).

Organizations team up to promote organ donation

On Tuesday, April 12, the Michigan Secretary of State offices are joining with the agency's partners at Gift of Life Michigan and the Michigan Eye-Bank to encourage residents to get a heart (on their license) by adding their names to the Michigan Organ Donor Registry.

Locally on that day, the Charlevoix Lions Club and the East Jordan Lioness Club are joining together with the Michigan Secretary of State Office, located on M 66 in Charlevoix, to promote Donate Life Month.

Organizers said one donor can bring the gift of sight, life, and mobility to nearly 50 people. Anyone who wishes to sign up for the Michigan Organ Donor Registry program may do so year-round, at any Michigan Secretary of State Office. Residents may also sign up by accessing the web site, MichiganEyeBank.org and clicking the sign-up link in the lower right corner of the page. The Secretary of State maintains this statewide registry.

The registry is confidential and is accessed only by Gift of Life Michigan to assist hospitals in the recovery and transplantation of organs and tissues. There is no cost to the donor or the donor's family.

County seeks public input on non-motorized trail

BOYNE CITY — Residents along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road will have a say in whether and how a non-motorized recreational trail is built within the road right-of-way.

"The intent is not to run this through people's living rooms, bathrooms and bedrooms, like some fear," said Larry Sullivan, Charlevoix County planning director.

The Charlevoix County Road Commission discussed the proposed project at its meeting Monday. Plans are to build the trail along portions of the road in 2013 or 2014, depending on funding.

Road commissioner Keith Ogden cited a Michigan attorney general's opinion that a recreational trail is a suitable highway use for the right-of-way areas, but local officials are taking an extra step with area taxpayers.

"Our consensus now is ... the right-of-way is there. If the parks committee can go out and get people's written permission to run this bike path through this property that is subject to the right-of-way, we'll go for it," Ogden said. "We're trying to balance the interests of all the property owners in Charlevoix County."

Earlier trail proposals were scuttled when some property owners along the route objected to the project.

Charlevoix County Commissioner Ron Reinhardt, liaison to the road commission, said he is determined to keep county-wide tax dollars from being spent on the trail.

"That's a special interest, as far as I'm concerned. I'm not against trails. I think the people who are going to use them, the townships the trail goes through and the city should pay for them," Reinhardt said.

Meanwhile, local officials are seeking state grants for the project.

The Boyne City Commission agreed last week to spend more than $11,000 to match a potential state grant for $565,900. The money would be combined with about $33,000 from Evangeline Township and another possible state grant to build the trail.

On Tuesday, the county commissioners were slated to decide whether to submit an application for a $300,000 trust fund grant for the work before its April 1 deadline.

Public information and input meetings are scheduled 2:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. on Thursday, May 26, and at 9 a.m. on Saturday, May 28 at the Evangeline Township Hall, 02746 Wildwood Harbor Road.

Adopt-A-Highway volunteer search

The Michigan Department of Transportation is taking applications for Adopt-A-Highway volunteers in northern lower Michigan. While the state already has more than 32,000 volunteers lined up, more help is needed this year to clean up highways in agency's north region. The popular statewide beautification program enables volunteers to adopt a stretch of state highway and clean it three times each year.

"For the past 20 years, Adopt-A-Highway volunteers saved the Michigan Department of Transportation about $1.5 million," Grayling Transportation Service Center manager Jay Gailitis. "However, in times of financial challenge, we need more dedicated volunteers to join our pickup crews."

Current volunteers include members of [illegible] organizations, churches, [illegible] corporations, government employees and family members [illegible] a loved one. A number of two-mile sections [illegible] available [illegible].

[illegible] you can become involved, contact the Michigan Department of Transportation at (989) 344-[illegible] or visit the department's web site at www.michigan.gov/adoptahighway and view a video about the program. To get started, simply contact your local MDOT coordinator to sign up (names and phone numbers are listed on the web site).

Gailitis also reminds motorists, "Drive safely whenever you see our volunteers out cleaning the highways."

SKIING

Charlevoix's Mat Mailoux wins Red Bull freeski event

Charlevoix native Mat Mailoux, son of Bernie and Monica Mailoux of Charlevoix recently won the Red Bull Super Hit competition at Sunday River, Maine. The event took place on Feb. 26.

Red Bull Super Hit is a freeski contest unlike any other, pushing the limits of what is possible in the world of skiing.

In a typical slopestyle or halfpipe event, competitors play it safe in order to assemble a top to bottom run, holding back on their biggest moves in favor of consistency. At Red Bull Super Hit, skiers will throw everything they have into one hit, blasting their highest air or their most technical trick when they're at their freshest and strongest. Each resort hosting a stop of the Red Bull Super Hit series will construct a unique, creative feature just for the contest, providing the most progressive feature for area skiers, whether it is a jump, halfpipe, or quarterpipe.

The top skier at each of the four stops of Red Bull Super Hit will earned a trip (including paid travel and lodging) to the Dumont Cup which took place this past weekend. The Dumont Cup is a Pro/Am competition hosted by Red Bull athlete and world-renowned freeskier, Simon Dumont, and is being held at Sunday River in Maine's Mahoosuc Mountains.

Although results on how Mailoux placed in the event weren't available at press time, he made the following entry on his Facebook page Sunday: "I had a lot of fun riding with all the pros but that sums it up. It was a pro contest so I did well for my self. I'm not injured so I came out on top."

Mailoux, 21, got his start in skiing on Charlevoix's Mount McSauba. He currently is working in Maine.

School seeks help from the community

With school budgets continually tightening, school staff, parents and even students in many schools are coming up with creative ways to save money or bring in a few extra dollar for school programs.

Charlevoix Elementary School is a perfect example of people finding creative ways to generate money for education.

For example, a parent, Bob Harmon, is bringing in extra money for the school through a "curbside" recycling program he created. Bob had the idea of taking tin cans, even old appliances and scrap metal to sell for school funds. He collects these items from the elementary school every week for the direct benefit of his children's education, and the environment.

Officials with the school's parent teacher organization are hoping that the community will get in the spirit and take advantage of one of the many programs through wich the school is trying to raise some additional money. Much of the money allows the parent-teacher organization to fund author visits, field trips like the fourth grade Beaver Island trip, playground equipment, Weekly Readers, swim lessons, library books, and curriculum material, along with many other programs.

Here are a few ways the community can chip in to help:

— Curbside recycling at the elementary school: Rinse and save your tin cans and drop them off every Friday in front of the school. Bob Harmon, a parent, takes them to be sold for 9 cents per pound. So far, he has helped the school earn almost $100.

— Recycle printer cartridges and cell phones: Bring these items to the school office or drop them off at the Charlevoix Public Library, Citizen's Bank, State Bank, or County Building.

— Box Tops for Education: Found on all General Mills and many other products. Clip and save, drop them at the Elementary School or at the Glen's Market service desk. Charlevoix Elementary School earns 10 cents for every box top.

— Campbell's Labels for Education: Remove the lables and bring them to the school or Glen's Market drop box. These labels help the school purchase much needed playground equipment or art supplies, free of charge.

— Oleson's Receipts: Residents can turn in every Oleson's receipt to any of the schools for cash applied to a number of school activities.

— Glen's Market: Go to www.myrewards.com and click "yes" on the right side of the screen. The Charlevoix Elementary School group number is 87662. This does not interfere with your personal "Yes" Rewards. It is just a bonus for the school. You can also go to the customer service desk and ask them to add Charlevoix Schools to your rewards card.

— Gordon's Food Service: Go to the customer service desk and ask them to apply your GFS purchases toward benefitting the school of your choice.

Bay Shore Steel Works inks $7.3 million contract

Company expects military contract will create 15 new positions

BAY SHORE — Bay Shore Steel Works, LLC, recently announced that the company has received a $7.3 million two-year contract with General Dynamics Land Systems, suppliers of military vehicles to the federal government, to produce the riser and counterweight components for the Stabilized Commanders Weapons Station used on the M1A2 Abrams main battle tank.

Bay Shore Steel Works is a subsidiary of DCL, Inc. of Charlevoix. The company is a machining and fabrication source, specializing in turnkey precision armor plate and component fabrication. They also have a CARC painting system certified to military paint specifications.

"A contract of this nature really excites our staff, particularly our hourly employees," said Anton Matye, general manager at Bay Shore Steel Works. "This type of work pushes (the company) to the next level, which is what we have been striving for since the DCL purchase of Bay Shore Steel Works. This next level includes investment in capital equipment, rethinking manufacturing processes and reducing waste through lean techniques, all positive things for our employee base."

Matye added, "The capital improvements at Bay Shore Steel Works are a direct result of our parent company, DCL's, active support. Since purchasing the former Bay Shore Steel company in August 2008, DCL provided the horsepower to implement cutting edge technology through vital capital equipment acquisitions."

The company anticipates hiring 15 new employees to help fulfill ongoing contracts as current employees are teamed to ramp up for the new contract.

Alec Amstutz of DCL, said, "We appreciate Hayes Township's support of our company. With assistance from the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance, they awarded Bay Shore Steel Works two tax abatements that helped make the machinery investment viable."

Glowing, glowing, gone

Bullfrog Candle Company, signature glowing candles will soon melt into history

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

It's a dim day for many in Charlevoix and around Northern Michigan as word has begun to spread that one of the community's best known products — Bullfrog Candles — and the company that makes them will soon be a thing of the past.

The owners of Bullfrog Candle Company, Bill and Betsy Stewart, announced recently that they will soon no longer be producing their famous glowing candles.

The Stewarts told the Courier last week that they have entered into a business arrangement that will allow another company to use their specially-developed candle making process and, after filling their last batches of orders, they expect to close the business sometime in the next two to three months. At that time, Bullfrog Candles will no longer be made.

Bill Stewart said terms of the business agreement do not allow him to elaborate on details, including the company that will be using the special candle-making technique he perfected about 30 years ago in a shop outside the couple's then-home in the Saginaw County community of Saint Charles.

Bill, who ran a family-owned fabric shop at the time, began tinkering around with candle-making when his children needed help with a school project. The children ultimately moved on from the project, but Bill kept at it until, in 1981 he started the Bullfrog Candle Company in his shop.

The name for the company, the Stewarts said, was inspired by the singing of the bullfrogs in the nearby Shiawasee Flats Game Refuge that could be heard from their home at the time they started the company.

The popularity of the candles grew quickly and in 1985, when it became obvious that the existing shop was too small, the Stewarts decided if they were going to build a new shop, why not build it in a place they'd like to live

That place turned out to be Charlevoix — where the couple had visited with friends on many occasions and fell in love not only with the community, but also with the sailing opportunities it offered.

So they built the factory, located at its now-well-known site hidden in the woods on the west side of M 66 near the corner of Loeb Road.

Although it might seem strange to some that a business that attracts thousands of visitors every year to buy various styles of the company's well-known candles to be hidden back in the woods, there is a very good reason for its location.

It was never intended to be a retail store.

The Stewarts said when they started the company they were strictly a wholesale business, selling mostly to gift stores around the Midwest.

But as word spread about the product they were making back in the woods, people started stopping by and asking if they could purchase the candles right on the spot

"We really weren't set up

Road commission drops Beach Drive counter-suit

BOYNE CITY — The Charlevoix County Road Commission has agreed to drop their lawsuit against Beach Drive property owners in Charlevoix Township.

The road commission voted this week to drop its counter-suit after the Michigan Supreme Court ruled in favor of the property owners who successfully sued for riparian rights to Lake Charlevoix.

Lakefront property owners groups across the state closely watched the case that pitted inland landowners against those closer to shore.

"We spent enough money on the project as it is," said road commissioner Keith Ogden.

The case began in 2007 as a dispute between property owners in a subdivision along the north shore of Lake Charlevoix. Front lot residents closest to the lake had used the shoreline along Beach Drive to place docks and moor boats, and a number of inland lot owners claimed they were entitled to the same access.

The Charlevoix County Road Commission joined the case with the argument that the residents' lakeshore use encroached on the county's right of way with landscaping, sidewalks, boat docks and more.

"We contended the riparian

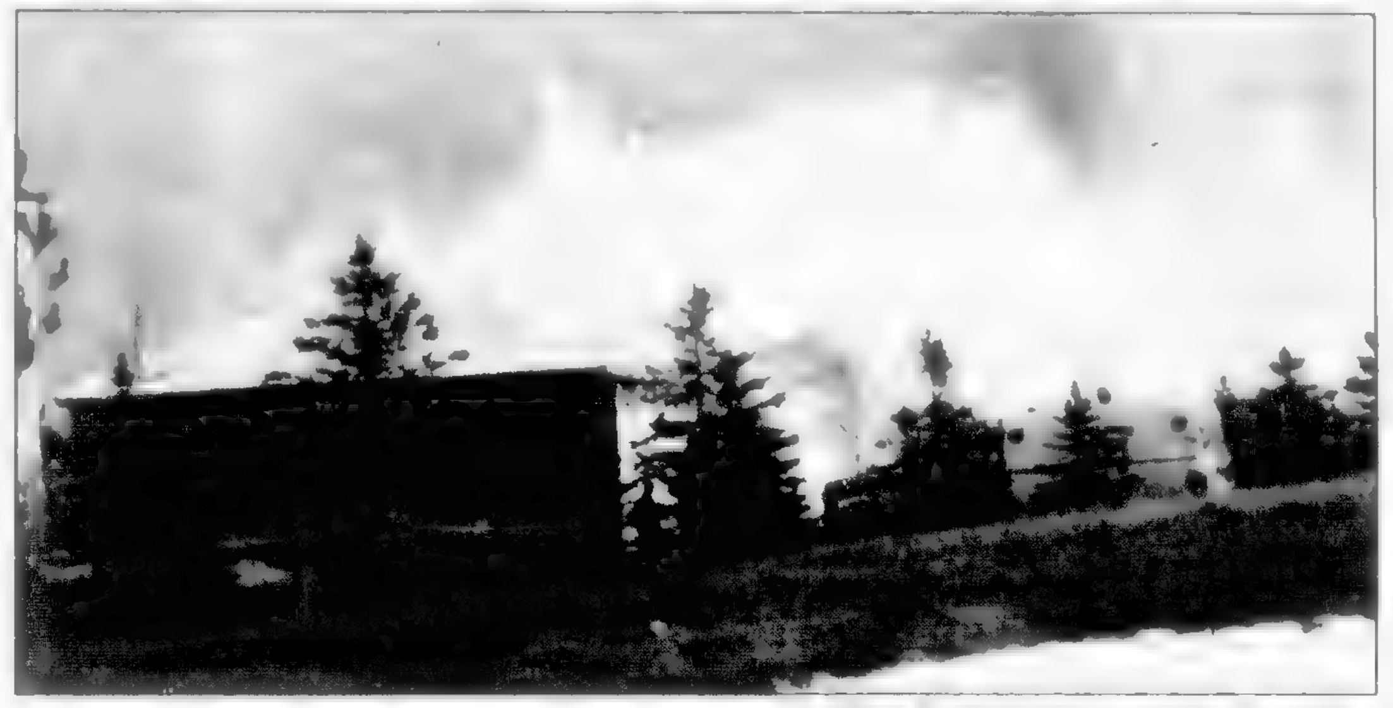
Fire destroyes Hayes Township building Wednesday, March 30



STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

BAY SHORE — Fire officials are looking into the cause of a fire that destroyed a pole building near a home in Charlevoix County's Hayes Township Wednesday, March 30.

Charlevoix Township Fire Chief Curt Thompson said firefighter were called to the Steve Crandell residence at 10349 Burnette Road at about 2:30 p.m. when a neighbor noticed smoke coming from the area of the pole building.

The first emergency responder on the scene, a Charlevoix County Sheriff's office deputy found heavy smoke coming from the pole building. Thompson said flames were visible through the roof when the first fire crews arrived on the scene.

He said it took firefighters about an hour and about 15,000 gallons of water — much of it shuttled from a nearby underground water reservoir at the corner of Upper Bay Shore and Burnette road — to put the bulk of the fire out.

Thompson said the pole building, which he estimated was about 30 feet by 40 feet, and most of its contents were a total loss. He said the building contained various lawn and garden tools and equipment, an antique car and other items.

The owners did have insurance on the building.

Thompson said the fire appears to have started on the east side of the building, but it was not clear what might have started the blaze. He said there was nothing to suggest anything suspicious about the cause of the blaze.

City of Charlevoix firefighters assisted at the scene and helped truck water to the scene. Firefighters were on the scene until about 4:30 p.m.

for that," Bill Stewart said.

But demand continued to grow and they opened up a retail "outlet" store on the site never dreaming that years later sale through the retail store and through online sales would eclipse sales in gift shops.

The Stewarts said the decision to close the business was a difficult one, and the experience has already been bittersweet.

One of the bitter parts was letting the company's dozen employees — some who have been with the Stewarts for many years — know about the decision to close.

"There were a lot of tears," Betsy said. "We are like a family here."

Part of the reason they feel so close to their employees, Bill and Betsy said, is that they put so much care and expertise into their work.

"There is a lot of hand crafting that goes into making these candles," Bill said.

And that's where the sweet part comes in.

The Stewarts said not only have they had some great employees over the years, but they've made many good friends both as customers and in the community at large.

"We've heard from so many people since we made the announcement," Betsy said.

Most of the notes have had three common elements: words of disappointment at the news of the closure, words of thanks and well wishes and orders — lots and lots of orders.

Bill and Betsy said once they close the business they plan to retire, continue living in Charlevoix and enjoy as much sailing as they possibly can.

But they've got to get all those last orders filled before they can sail off into the sunset together.

Bullfrog Candles can no longer be purchased online, but they will still be available for the next few months at the outlet store until the business closes sometime this summer.

Hearing set in Gregory murder case

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

A Charlevoix-area woman facing a murder charge in connection with the death of her 94-year-old mother last month is scheduled to face a preliminary examination on the charge at 2:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 12.

At her arraignment on Tuesday, April 29, Sandra Gregory, 74, was ordered to be held without bond on a charge of open murder.

Gregory is accused of killing her 94-year-old mother, Amelia Gregory in the home that they shared south of Charlevoix on March 27. If convicted, Sandra Gregory could face up to life in prison.

A preliminary examination is a hearing held in felony cases in which the prosecutor must convince a judge that sufficient evidence exists to bind the case over to circuit court for trial.

Gregory has retained attorney Kraag Lieberman to represent her.

'Exceptional' language sends the wrong message

Roger Knutson

One of the prominent political catchphrases of the moment is "American exceptionalism." Like other potentially powerful phrases, it is most powerful if left undefined. The phrase "family values," similarly works well if not too carefully examined. The Manson family's values are not what the political speakers have in mind. As long as the reader or listener is left to their own definition, such phrases can sway elections.

American exceptionalism is especially troubling to me. Part of the reason for confusion is the double-edged meaning of "exceptional." H. L. Menken suggested decades ago that Americans were exceptionally gullible. He did not mean it as a compliment. Exceptional could mean better than, but it is more likely to suggest out of the ordinary.

Most political users of the phrase seem to suggest that because America is so exceptional, the rules that might apply to other nations do not necessarily apply to us, even rules about truth or reality.

To state, as many politicians do, that, "the American health care system is the finest in the world," is an example of that exceptionalism, even though it is false by any serious measure of health care outcomes. To suggest that we have the finest education system anywhere is similarly exceptionalistic and equally false. Even the claim that we are the world's strongest economy, while it may make us seem exceptional, is open to some doubt.

The us-them split produced by the idea of American exceptionalism is exaggerated by those who believe in it. This makes our nation seem to be a chosen people, the elect of God, with a divinely ordained destiny clearly understood by only a few.

If I understand the language correctly, supposing that God favors you or your country over other people or countries is blasphemy, and is certainly not appropriate religious thinking. The persistent idea that "God is on our side," especially when both sides claim that distinction, makes no religious sense.

The political position, "My country, right or wrong, but right or wrong, my country" has a name. Historically it was called "jingoism" after a popular 19th century song. Jingoistic politicians were rightly laughed out of power and office by most, but now jingoism is often mainstream political thinking.

Exceptionalism has historically provided the rationale for fascism, racism and religious intolerance. It is all well and good to think of your country as an exceptional place, but to suggest that it has a God-given function in history is dangerous. Patriotism is love of country, it is not thinking that other countries as less, or less worthy, or less favored. To suggest that someone who does not "believe in" American exceptionalism is unpatriotic is, at the very least, unnecessarily divisive, and at its worst, the basis for the flourishing of destructive ideas and actions.

We may be good, but we are not THAT good.

Kudos to Business Expo organizers

Editor:

Thank you! As a new resident I am grateful to the exhibitors at the first (Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce) Business Expo who took the time and effort to help me learn what is available in this area. I think there was a good turnout and it was very well exhibited. I especially appreciated various companies efforts to be "green" by handing out reusable bags. I only wish they could have been made in the USA instead of China, but perhaps next year. Well done.

Sincerely,
Mary Shook,

You can help prevent prescription drug abuse

Editor:

As Sheriff of Charlevoix County, I witness firsthand the problems that misuse of prescription drugs are causing in our community. Living in a rural area, it's easy to feel insulated from issues we see in national headlines. But, in the case of prescription drug abuse, people are being harmed right here in Charlevoix County.

We may not see drug dealers on our street corners, but that doesn't mean the problem doesn't exist. Young people are accessing these drugs in the comfort of home; it can be as easy as opening a cupboard, drawer, or medicine cabinet. And, break-ins at pharmacies, and in homes, by people looking for prescription drugs are on the increase.

The good news is that you can help prevent prescription drug abuse by storing drugs in a safe, secure place, monitoring your prescription bottles, and disposing of expired or unneeded drugs properly. We stand ready to accept/receive prescription drugs that need to be disposed of here at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office in an environmentally safe manner. Help us make your community safe

Wish come true

Coast Guard command shifts

A boundary realignment that began Friday, April 1, will shift U.S. Coast Guard Station Charlevoix under the command of Sector Sault Ste. Marie for future operations.

Charlevoix — previously under the command of Sector Lake Michigan in Milwaukee — is being realigned as the Ninth Coast Guard District shifts three sector boundaries in the Great Lakes. Station Alpena will also be realigned to Sector Sault Ste. Marie from Sector Detroit.

"The change will not impact our operations at all," said Boatswain's Mate 1st class William Hosford, at Station Charlevoix.

The move is meant to improve efficiency for both the subordinate units and the maritime industry.

According to a release by the U.S. Coast Guard, realignment of subordinate units in the Great Lakes is being done as "an opportunity to provide better customer service to the maritime industry."

The transition is specifically aimed at providing services such as commercial vessel inspections in Northern Michigan closer to their home port, rather then require them to travel to Grand Haven or Detroit.

A fourth area of operations, Sector Buffalo, will not be changed.

Amelia P. "Meady" Gregory, 94, of Charlevoix, died Sunday, March 27, 2011, at her home. She was born April 20, 1916, in Norwood Township, the daughter of Edward and Anna (Oosterbon) Scott. Geraldine L. Brady:
Sept. 15, 1925 - March 30, 2011

Geraldine L. Brady, was born in Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 15, 1925, and died on a cold and sunny Tuesday, March 30, 2011, surrounded by family and friends.

Bearing witness to nearly nine decades of astounding social, historical, and political change, Jerry examined the world's problems and progress with her own brand of comedic commentary among family, friends, and the girls from bridge.

The eldest daughter of Grace and Henry Vick, she was preceded in death by her sisters Dallas Butler and Doris Coleman as well as her beloved husband H. William Brady.

After graduating from Concordia College in Morehead, Minn. with a degree in nursing, she took a position at the Veteran's Hospital of Detroit. There she met a very nice man, a police officer named Bill Brady whom she wed on May 7, 1949. After many years in Detroit the couple, along with their four children, settled in Charlevoix in 1968. With just a blue Chevy Impala and her social charm, she started the first Welcome Wagon for the city before joining the Charlevoix Public School system working as a nurse for 14 years.

Never one to shy away from an opinion, Jerry put a high value on hard work, education, and chocolate – in any form (sentiments she successfully passed down to both kids and grand kids, who proceeded her). She loved traveling abroad, cooking, cards, and the many great friends she has left behind.

Greatly remembered and fondly missed she leaves behind two daughters, Kristen (Paul) Goldstein, and Sheilah (Dick) Bogart; two sons, Brian (Diane) and Michael (Lisa) Brady; grandchildren, Nicholas and Kate Bogart, Erin and Meghan Brady, Mitchell Brady; step-grandchildren, Adam; Jason, and Stephanie Goldstein; step great-grand children, Charlotte, Aiden, Andrew, Audrey; and many nieces and nephews.

Her family would like to extend their deepest gratitude for the kind and loving care she received from Debbie Berry and Chelsea Clark. They'd also like to thank the entire staff at Sunnybank Assisted Living of Charlevoix for giving her a home away from home as well as Hospice of Charlevoix.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of Northwest Michigan, 220 West Garfield, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

A memorial service took place at 11:30 a.m., Saturday, April 2, at the Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix. Friends may meet the Brady family at the church from 10:30 a.m. until the time of the service.

A pig-kissing party

During the month of March, the staff at Charlevoix Elementary School challenged their students to read a combined 115,000 minutes. If they reached their goal their principal, Doug Drenth (along with some other staff members) agreed to kiss a pig in front of the whole student body. The reading challenge theme, "Stick with Reading," was done in conjunction with the student's reading of "Charlottes's Web." To reach their goal, students received paper pigs for each 100 minutes they read and the students reached their goal Wednesday when the line of paper pigs posted on the wall made it all the way around the school. As an added incentive, the teacher of the class in each grade who had the most reading minutes also kissed the pig and the students with the most reading time in each class had the chance to pet the pig. The number one reader for the entire school was fourth-grade student Julie Ivester, who read for 3,285 minutes.

BEACH DRIVE

State Supreme Court justices decided in late 2010 that the property owners closest to the lake do have riparian rights, after all. However, the ruling came in a 4-3 split decision.

As a result, the road commission's argument about right-of-way encroachments became a moot point.

The motion to dismiss the counterclaim requested the decision be made without prejudice because the specific argument was never addressed and the "circumstances concerning the use of the platted Beach Drive property could change in the future," documents show.

One point of contention remains in the case, though.

A counterclaim filed by more inland landowners in the subdivision remains active at the circuit level. The plaintiffs initially sued for both riparian rights and to prevent the inland property owners from using the lakeshore, as the latter argued they'd done for years.

Those more inland landowners counter-sued to acquire the right to continue to use the lakeshore. Now a key factor in the case -- since last year's ruling on riparian rights -- is how the Michigan Supreme Court denied all public access rights to the lakeshore along Beach Drive.

Road Commission members said they have no interest in that aspect of the case.

"We do not want to be a part of a neighborhood feud," Ogden said.

Road commission chairman Doug Way did not attend this week's board meeting.

State seeks input on island deer harvest restrictions

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources is considering imposing antler restrictions on deer harvested on Beaver Island — but only if the proposal has the support of the public.

The proposal would require bucks to have at least three points on one side for hunters to harvest them legally. If the proposal is well received, the Natural Resource Commission will also consider including variations on the proposal such as an exemption for youth hunters.

Beaver Island residents, landowners, hunters and wildlife enthusiasts are invited to discuss the proposal at a meeting hosted by the Beaver Island Wildlife Club at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 11, at the Beaver Island Community Center. Department of Natural Resources Wildlife Division staff will be in attendance.

SPORTS reviewing the action

New coach to lead Rayder softball team this season

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Although Mother Nature hasn't been too cooperative for spring sports athletes so far this spring, Charlevoix's new head softball coach is looking forward to what he expects to be a fun season.

Hoffman

In March the Charlevoix school board approved hiring Ken Hoffman, who has about 10 years softball coaching experience in various capacities (five of them as an assistant coach in Charlevoix), as the team's new head coach.

"The upcoming season will be a lot of fun," Hoffman said. "We have a really competitive conference with some good programs. So, the next few weeks will be a good measuring stick for us."

Indeed it will. Rayders open on April 12 (the first day back after spring break) against Kalkaska at home and then travel to Traverse City St. Francis on April 15. The Rayders then end their first week with the Charlevoix Invitational. The Rayders then play at Boyne City, at home against Harbor Spring then at Grayling. That's five league games in a little more than two weeks.

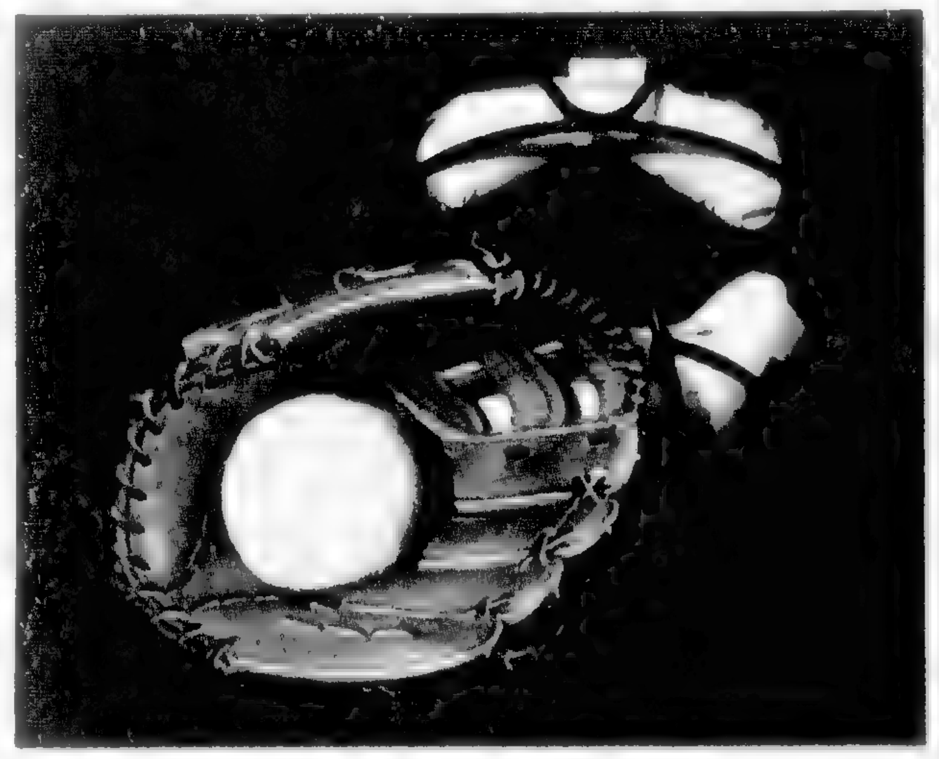
To do that Hoffman said he'll be relying on the leadership of returning leading players such as senior pitcher Hannah Hybl, senior outfielder Emily Mielke, junior infielder Chelsie Hoffman, junior infielder Madison Zimmerman, junior pitcher Kristen Mielke, junior outfielder Anna Moon, and sophomore pitcher/catcher Katie Hybl.

"We return 10 players from last year's team and have a good group of young players that can play. Pitching and defense will be solid and our hitting is getting better every day," Hoffman said.



He added, "We are really focusing on defense this year. With the pitching mound moving back to 43 feet this year, I think it will be more of a hitter game."

He said one challenge the team faces is the fact that it carries 17 girls on the roster this year and getting all of them playing time will be a struggle.

In fact, one of Hoffman's goals for the program would help with the playing time issue, starting a junior varsity team.

"We are getting really close. Hopefully next year we have a JV program," Hoffman said.

With that said, Hoffman feels confident that the underclassmen can be an asset to the varsity.

"Our freshmen are doing a really great job learning the system. I really think they could help us out this year," Hoffman said.

Boys track preview: Rayders could be regional contenders again

Eric Buday

Senior distance standout Eric Buday returns to lead the Rayders, who once again should contend for Lake Michigan Conference and Division III regional titles.

Buday, a five time All Stater in track and cross country, finished third in the 800 meter run in the state finals last spring and competed in the 1600 and 3200 relays.

"This year, we have some experienced veteran leadership in Eric," coach Ken Plude said. "And we have added some really good athletes into the mix."

Senior Will Larsen and junior Andrew Plude are among a slew of talented distance runners, which never seem to be in short supply at Charlevoix.

Ben Myers, who is headed to Clemson to play soccer, along with John Shea are among several versatile athletes on the Rayder roster.

"They have enough athleticism to plug in holes where they are needed," coach Plude said.

East Jordan

The Red Devils strength would appear to lie in the sprints, where returnees Robbie Crick, Aikeem Brogan and Chris Yettaw lead the way.

The Red Devils also have a pair of solid distance runners in junior Luke Hawley and freshman Josh Wojan. Hawley qualifed for the Division III state cross country finals last fall.

"We should be very competitive this year," coach Rick Hawley said. "We have good numbers, good athletes, and we may surprise many."

Former Courier editor Ken Winter to be inducted in Journalism Hall of Fame

NEWS-REVEIW
STAFF WRITER

Being interviewed makes Ken Winter, 60, a bit uncomfortable. Despite more than 40 years in journalism, Winter is used to being on the other side of the conversation.

For Winter, the former publisher of the News-Review and current political science and journalism professor at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey, his work has never been about him or the recognition he has received. Instead, his desire to write the truth, tell compelling stories and his love of the Petoskey community, have fueled his successful career.

On Sunday, April 17, Winter will be inducted into the Michigan Journalism Hall of Fame in Lansing. There, he'll join a long list of notable journalists, photographers and publishers who have advanced the legacy of free and responsible press, while also inspiring a new generation.

"It really is a mind blower. It's hard to get my mind around," Winter said of the honor. "I look around at the past inductees and there are Pulitzer Prize winners. I don't see myself at that level. For me it's always just been about doing a job, a job I love."

> "Over the last couple years, I've begun to see clearly that I want to help people grow and become leaders. I want to help the next generation,"

Winter began his career at the age of 14, in his words, "hanging out" at his hometown newspaper, the Lansing State Journal. He often teamed up with staff reporters for stories and interviewed subjects from a youth perspective. It was there he honed his skills as a reporter.

Winter

"I walked away with a real love of journalism along with all the skills they embedded me," he said.

Winter remained at the Lansing State Journal until 1972, the same year he graduated from Michigan State University with a degree in journalism.

While he had hoped to stay in Lansing, Winter found himself in Northern Michigan, working as one of two reporters at the News-Review.

Winter covered the Charlevoix County beat for just six months before returning for a quick stint back at the Lansing State Journal. But things didn't work out and once again, in 1973, he found himself back in Petoskey.

"My career at the News Review was really based on a handshake, I never worked under a contract," Winter explained. "At the time, the paper was owned by the Schaller family and I think working on a handshake was a reflection of the community at the time — you just took someone's word."

Over the next three decades, Winter worked his way up at the News-Review, from reporter, to editor and general manager of both the News-Review and the Charlevoix Courier. And in 2001, Winter became publisher of the News-Review.

During his career, Winter received numerous awards for his work, including several awards from the Michigan Press Association and took part in and led a variety of seminars, workshops and projects.

While working as editor of the Charlevoix Courier, Winter recalled one of his most memorable stories. He reported that contaminants were found in farm feed and resulted in the death of several cattle. The story garnered statewide attention.

"Here's this little weekly in Northern Michigan blowing this story up," Winter said. "It was by far, the most memorable thing I covered."

As his career advanced, Winter was offered jobs at major papers such as the New York Times, Chicago Tribune and the Detroit Free Press. But he grew to love Northern Michigan, and made the decision to stay in Petoskey.

"I wanted to show that good reporting can happen anywhere. You don't have to work in a big city to be a good journalist and that's what I wanted to prove while at the News-Review," he said. "I wanted to be known as a good, tough paper."

Winter left the News-Review in March, 2007.

During his last few years as publisher, Winter worked to receive his certificate in secondary education. He now focuses his energy on teaching students at North Central Michigan College the art of journalism and the role government plays in our lives.

"Over the last couple years, I've begun to see clearly that I want to help people grow and become leaders. I want to help the next generation," Winter said. "It makes me feel good to watch these young people grow up and become their own success stories and move forward on a successful career path. That's now my role."

In addition to teaching, Winter remains active in several organizations and boards, including Crooked Tree Arts Center, Kiwanis Club of Petoskey and is the co-founder and mentor of the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce's Leadership Little Traverse.

Winter and his wife, Ginger, live in Petoskey. His son, Michael, is currently in grad school in California.

Charlevoix County approves proposed trail grant application

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix County leaders agreed to apply for a $300,000 state grant to build the first phase of a non-motorized, recreational trail along Boyne City Charlevoix Road, despite lingering questions Tuesday, March 29.

The board of commissioners voted 4-1 to approve a Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund grant on Tuesday, just before the April 1 deadline for submissions. Commissioner Richard Gillespie voted against the grant application and commissioner Shirlene Tripp was absent from the meeting.

Gillespie

"There are too many confusing issues," Gillespie said before casting his dissenting vote.

Charlevoix County commissioners discussed at great length the five year journey the proposed recreational trail has taken so far, including the lack of a specific planned route and possible maintenance costs. They also took extensive public comment.

Roger Conaway, of Bay Township, said public informational meetings planned for May are inadequate to discuss the trail with the nearby property owners. The road hasn't been surveyed, so right-of-ways are unknown and property owners deserve better, he said.

"Get the road surveyed and move the center line of that road," Conaway said. "Let the people know by stakes in the ground where this trail is going to go. We have the right to protect our property and we will.".

Others spoke in favor of the proposed trail.

"I know there are people who live along that road who are happy to have the trail come through that property," said Stephen Van Dam, a Bay Township resident and a township planning commission member.

County commissioners discussed how they wished the trail's specific design and maintenance responsibilities were already determined, as local residents still have concerns about the project.

Christensen

"I just feel the county has a role here and we owe a little more diligence than we're providing," said commissioner Chris Christensen.

The board eventually approved the grant application, but only after striking a paragraph from a proposed resolution that detailed how Charlevoix County's contribution to the project included maintenance of the portion of the trail outside Boyne City.

That move may put the project in jeopardy, some suggest.

"It will be up to the funding agencies to decide whether it will be appropriate to grant the funding with the fact that nobody stepped up to the table to take responsibility for liability or maintenance of the trail," said Larry Sullivan, county planning director.

Estimated annual maintenance costs likely would be around $800, he said, based on the costs to maintain the portion Little Traverse Wheelway in Charlevoix County.

The first phase of the trail would stretch a little more than three miles from Boyne City, past Young State Park and to the Bay and Evangeline township line at the northern end of Springwater Beach Road. Officials estimate the cost of the project at nearly $1 million.

Boyne City officials agreed to contribute more than $11,000 and applied for a $565,900 federal Transportation Enhancement Act grant, while Evangeline Township has pledged more than $33,000. About $45,000 is needed in private donations.

"If any of these funding sources fails to materialize, all the grant applications will be withdrawn," Sullivan said.

Meanwhile, public information and input meetings are scheduled for 2:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. on Thursday, May 26, and at 9 a.m. on Saturday, May 28 at the Evangeline Township Hall, 02746 Wildwood Harbor Road.

No ferry woes on horizon for Beaver Island

Unique public-private partnership keeps service running

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

There are few more sure (and for some, more welcome) signs that spring has arrived in Charlevoix than the first visit of the season for the Emerald Isle after a long winter holed up at her winter berth on Beaver Island.

This year the big day came on Wednesday, April 6 — a day likely circled in red on many island residents' calendars.

But as notable as the first crossing of the season is for people here and on the island, it all happened with far less notoriety than the first crossings of the season to a perhaps more widely known (and certainly more visited) island about 45 miles to the northeast.

Since last fall, Mackinac Island, normally known for fudge, the Grand Hotel, lilacs and prohibition of cars, has been at the center of a dispute involving the island's city council and the franchises it has with the three ferry companies that serve the island.

Fortunately for the folks on Beaver Island, no such rancor appears likely to crop up any time soon between them and the ferry company that serves them.

That's because while Beaver Island and Mackinac Island share some things in common — both rely heavily on ferries for their own transportation, logistics and commerce — the two islands differ in many ways.

One big difference is the relationship the island's government and its people have with the Beaver Island Boat Company — the sole ferry company that serves the island.

The two entities aren't adversaries, they're partners.

And if you purchase gas in Michigan, so are you.

Little-known authority

Perhaps only well-known on Beaver Island, in 1993 St. James Township (one of the two townships on the island) incorporated the Beaver Island Transportation Authority for the purpose of receiving state and federal grant money for the purchase of a new ferry to serve the island.

The authority took delivery of the Emerald Isle in 1997 and entered into a 30-year agreement with the Beaver Island Boat Company to operate the vessel (along with its own vessel, the Beaver Islander) between the island and Charlevoix.

The authority is made up of a five member board, which is appointed by the township board and meets monthly to plan, promote and improve the boat service to and from the island and oversees the state funding the authority gets to help run and maintain the Emerald Isle.

Schwartzfisher noted there is only one other publicly subsidized ferry operation like Beaver Island's in the state and that is the Eastern Upper Peninsula Transportation Authority, which provides ferry service linking Drummond, Neebish, and Sugar islands with the Chippewa County mainland. Unlike Beaver Island, that authority operates its own ferries.

Schwartzfisher said the state pays Beaver Island Transportation Authority for 50 percent of the cost to operate the Emerald Isle and 90 percent of any needed capital improvement to the vessel or its dock on Beaver Island. This year that amounts to about $336,000 in state grants for operations and about $200,000 for capital improvements.

State to evaluate murder suspect's mental status

Gregory will assert insanity defense if case goes to trial

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The preliminary examination for Sandra Gregory, the Charlevoix woman accused of killing her 94-year-old mother in the home the two shared last month, has been put on hold while her mental competency to stand trial is evaluated.

Last week 90th District Court Judge Richard W. May granted a motion by Gregory's defense attorney Kraag Lieberman, to have officials at the Michigan Center for Forensic Psychiatry examine his client to determine if she is fit to stand trail.

Gregory, 74, faces a charge of open murder, which is punishable by up to life in prison, in connection with the March 27 death of her 94-year old mother Amelia Patricia Gregory.

In his motion seeking the evaluation, Lieberman writes, "In consultations with defense counsel, the defendant has exhibited periods of incoherency, wide mood swings, made inappropriate comments at inappropriate times, expressed suicidal desires and made spontaneous remarks about her involvement in the charged offense that are against her penal interest and which cause concern about her capacity to assist in her own defense in a rational manner."

Under Michigan law a person may be found incompetent to stand trial "if (s)he is incapable because of (her) mental condition of understanding the nature and object of the proceedings against (her) or of assisting in (her) defense in a rational manner."

The judge's order for the evaluation followed a stipulation (agreement) to the order by both Lieberman and Charlevoix subsidy, which comes from the state's per-gallon gas tax, ticket prices would be much higher, which would create a huge burden on island residents both for their own personal transportation needs and the impact it would likely have on the island's tourism.

Schwartzfisher said the operating agreement with the boat company stipulates how fares are determined. Any rate increase above the rate of inflation must be approved by the transportation authority board.

She explained that under the operating agreement, the authority is responsible for major repairs and upgrades to the Emerald Isle, while the Beaver Island Boat Company is responsible for staffing the vessel and routine daily cleaning and maintenance of the vessel

She gave the example of some automatic external defibrillators recently purchased for the vessel. She said the authority paid for the purchase of the units, while the boat company is responsible for maintaining them.

She also noted that under the terms of the operating agreement the authority and the boat company are to meet once every three years to discuss the agreement and ways to make it work better.

But Schwartzfisher said those discussions take place on a much more regular basis.

"We work very well together," she said. "Over time it has evolved into a great partnership. It's gotten to be so seamless."

"We have grown in our relationship with each other and that's something that I'm very proud of. And it has only benefitted the community," she added.

The Beaver Island Transportation Authority meets the second Tuesday of each month.

Each year the Beaver Island Boat Company ferries make about 375 round trips to the island, travel more than 24,000 miles, transport more than 40,000 passengers, carry around 6,500 vehicles and about 10,000 tons of freight.

For more information on fares and schedules, visit www.beaverislandboatcompany.com.

County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema.

The stipulation filing, signed by both attorneys, reads, "It is undisputed that the defendant caused the death of her mother Amelia Gregory, however, in the interests of justice, it is essential to try to determine if the defendant suffers from some mental health malady or condition that would address the issue of her criminal responsibility for the crime committed."

Charlevoix County Chief Assistant Prosecutor Shaynee Fanara said it likely will take several weeks before the state's evaluation and report on Gregory is complete. The judge will then use the report to help him make a determination on her competency to stand trail. In the meantime Gregory remains lodged in the Charlevoix County Jail. She has been denied bond.

— If the court determines that there is a reasonable chance she could, with treatment, again become competent to stand trial, the judge would order the treatment to take place, likely through a commitment to the Michigan Department of Mental Health or other inpatient facility. If she were later found to be competent, the case would then could go forward.

— If the judge determines it is unlikely that treatment will eventually render her competent, the judge could find that she is a danger to herself or others and order her committed to an institution until such time that she is no longer deemed a danger.

Lieberman has also filed a notice of intent to offer an insanity defense to the murder charge at trial, if the case gets that far.

If Gregory is ultimately found competent to be tried and the case goes to trial, the jury could find her guilty, not guilty or not guilty by reason of insanity.

To be found not guilty by reason of insanity a jury would have to find by a preponderance of the evidence (a lesser standard than they usual "beyond a reasonable doubt" for a finding of guilt) that "as a result of mental illness ... or as a result of being mentally retarded ... that person lacks substantial capacity either to appreciate the nature and quality or the wrongfulness of his or her conduct or to conform his or her conduct to the requirements of the law."

If found not guilty by reason of insanity, a defendant is still referred to the state for a mental health evaluation and could still be committed to an institution if he or she is believed to be a danger to himself/herself or others

Emergency crews were called to the Gregory residence south of Charlevoix around 8 p.m. on March 27 to a report of a deceased elderly woman in the residence.

According to court documents, Gregory told police that earlier in the day her mother had told her she would rather be with her dead husband than be admitted to a nursing home and that sometime after that conversation she attempted to smother her mother with a pillow and then hit her on the head with a lamp.

Police: Woman drove erratically prior to crash

Police say an Ellsworth woman was driving erratically in the moments before she sustained minor injuries in a two-vehicle traffic crash south of Charlevoix early Monday.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider identified the injured driver as Kaleigh Matley, 21, of Ellsworth. Matley was transported Charlevoix Area Hospital by Charlevoix Ambulance where she was treated for minor injuries and released.

Deputies said the crash happened shortly before 7 a.m. on U.S. 31 near Heise Road.

Police said a Michigan Department of Natural Resources conservation officer reported that he had been attempting to stop the vehicle Matley was driving for erratic driving when her northbound vehicle crossed the centerline and struck a southbound vehicle that had pulled off the road for the conservation officer, who had his vehicle's emergency lights and siren activated.

The driver of the second vehicle, 37-year-old Petoskey resident Brandie Ryan, was checked by ambulance crews at the scene and released. The crash remains under investigation

The Charlevoix Fire Department also responded to the scene.

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

It's difficult sometimes to come up with what we consider the 'right words' to say when someone loses a parent, spouse, friend or other relative to death whether from a lingering illness or tragic accident. Comforting words are good, but if they don't come easily. A hug, listening ear or a great casserole can help. We all expect to die, what's really hard is saying good-bye. I'm not very good with good byes even if a friend is visiting. I am already missing them once they are out the door. So you can imagine the feelings of loss some of us experience when we know we won't see one of our favorite people ever again in the physical sense.

The reason I am bringing this up has something to do with my social life lately revolving around funerals. I expected this might be the norm when I turned 80, but lately some of our recent losses make me think a little bit more about living. I gave up the hectic pace, time spent in a car getting from one place to the next and expected a healthier longer life by moving to Northern Michigan. Maybe I was wrong all along. No matter where we choose to live or raise our families there will always be some type of risk and nobody said living was meant to be easy. So I'll turn this sad topic around and say I will be extra careful on the roads and try to eat farm fresh hormone free foods whenever possible. I will try my best to be kind to others, watch what I say and live each day thankful that I woke up.

With living in mind, I am back to my own list of things I want to accomplish and enjoy while here in this realm. In my late teens I pushed the envelope with art school and went from selling my wares in art shows to completing a degree in art education. While teaching my trade there was the lingering feeling I was missing out on something. I reviewed slides with my students describing the artist's life and feelings I felt personally surrounded each piece. Art appreciation is a part of who I am and I have the reputation of being asked to leave some of our wonderful art museums because I love to touch the canvas that braced the hand of a once living artist. At this point in my life I want to visit landmarks where Monet decided, "Now this is great place to sit down for a spell and just paint".

As a teen I was also interested in cooking and loved to watch Julia Child as she spoke to me from our Pepto-Bismol pink portable TV. What I'm leading up to is my trip to Paris where I hope to ramble along the same brick paths once graced by the feet of my favorite Impressionists. I have also signed up for a cooking class in the home of one of the locals. There will be five other classmates each from a different country. This type of learning experience may enrich my desire to see other countries or at least encourage me to work on my foreign language skills.

Although the US dollar has declined in value, I couldn't decline my desire to see what's across our pond and meet people from other lands. No checked luggage, no five-star hotels. Keeping it simple, living out of a carry-on the color of fresh limes and ready to taste, see, hear and feel what life still has to offer. An added note to my family: I will promise to behave and not touch any art work that is guarded or roped off. I will, however, get lost (easy for me) in a culture that will enrich this chapter of my life.

Weekend grass fires herald start of wildfire season

HEATHER LOCKWOOD
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Area fire officials responded to several grass fires over the weekend, including two in Charlevoix County's Bay and Marion townships.

The Charlevoix Township Fire Department responded to a grass fire at 2003 Barnard Road in Marion Township about 2 p.m. Saturday, said chief Curt Thompson.

Thompson said the fire, which spread to about two acres of a grass field, started when a resident was burning trash. It is unclear whether the trash was being burned in a barrel or on the ground, he said.

It took officials about 10-15 minutes to get the fire under control, Thompson said.

"Don't burn outside this time of year unless you're sitting with a hose in your hand," he said.

Boyne City Fire Department responded to a call of a grass fre Saturday that spread to about 1.5 acres in Bay Township.

Fire chief Dennis Amesbury said the call came in about noon for a grass fire that started after a resident emptied ashes from his wood burning stove. The resident reported the fire, he said.

"Ashes will hold heat for quite a long time," he said.

It took firefighters about 30 minutes to get the blaze under control, Amesbury said, and they spent about an hour at the scene, located on Boyne City Road between Horton Bay Road North and Pincherry Road.

Amesbury advised residents who want to conduct burns to obtain a burn permit, never leave fires unattended and make sure they are properly extinguished. He said area residents should keep in mind that at this time of the year, when the snow is melting, the grass is dry and fires can spread quickly.

"Everything is dry right now," he said.

What should Bridge Street be?

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix city officials are wrestling with a proposed zoning ordinance amendment that would clarify and slightly expand the types of business that are allowed on Bridge Street in the city's downtown.

The amendment, which has been under discussion by the city's planning commission and others for a few months was tossed around at Monday's planning commission meeting.

Currently the ordinance is pretty simple: "Uses developed in the central business district having their front entrances on Bridge Street shall be used strictly for retail purposes."

That's it. That's all the ordinance has had to say on the matter since it was enacted in four decades ago.

Besides indicating that the restriction applies only to first floor uses, the rule doesn't say anymore on what constitutes a "retail use."

City planner Mike Spencer, who was the architect of the proposed revised language, said it's long been accepted that food service qualifies as a retail use, but nowhere is it spelled out.

Spencer

So, Spencer set out to define some of the uses.

The proposed new language defines permitted uses to include food and beverage service; retail stores with less than 5,000 square feet of space (excluding appliance furniture and similar stores); art galleries, frame shops and photography and art studios; beauty salons and barber shops; marine related uses including rentals and charter services; rental businesses for movies, bikes, mopeds, etc.; travel agencies; and Internet cafes.

Spencer acknowledged that the barbershops, travel agencies and Internet cafes were additions to what might have previously been considered retail.

The proposed new language also creates a provision under which the planning commission may determine if a use is similar or comparable to a listed use to qualify as a permitted use; or allow the commission to consider approving non-qualifying uses through a special use permit.

Spencer told the commission that writing the language for the proposed amendment is difficult for two reasons.

First, he said, it's difficult to anticipate every possible business that might want to locate on Bridge Street. Secondly, he said its difficult to balance the desire by property owners to have an ordinance that allows flexibility to fill vacant store spaces and at the same time appease downtown business owners who wish to keep the character of Bridge Street very retail-oriented.

Indeed, the retail committee of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce recently sent a letter to Spencer indicating its recommendation that the ordinance be modified only slightly to read that businesses with their front entrances in Bridge Street "shall be used primarily for retail and/or food and beverage service."

"The retail committee believes this small change allows the integrity of the original ordinance to remain intact," the letter reads.

"Our opinion is that we are competing with surrounding resort towns for each consumer dollar. The more attractive the town is to the consumer, the more dollars that will trickle down into Charlevoix's economy. The true spenders are looking for retail establishments, not service oriented establishments or professional offices."

However, planning commission member Sherm Chamberlain said he'd like to see more businesses that cater to locals in the downtown.

The planning commission had been slated to vote on the proposed zoning amendment Monday, but held off because two of its members were absent. The commission will take up the matter again at its May 9 meeting. If the commission approves recommending the change, the matter would then be considered by the Charlevoix City Council for possible adoption.

Tour slated for island senior housing project

Forest View Community, a new apartment community for senior citizens on Beaver Island, is holding a Sneak Peek Construction Tour from 1-3 p.m. on Sunday, April 17, to show off the progress on construction of the apartments. Forest View Community is a six-unit apartment building for senior citizens, defined as at least 62 years of age, or disabled of any age. The one and two bedroom apartments are energy efficient and feature in-floor radiant heat supplied by a geothermal heating system. The apartments are conveniently located next door to the Beaver Island Rural Health Center.

Forest View Community is a project of Beaver Island Community Development Corporation. More than 10 years ago Pete LoDico, president of the corporation, saw the need for senior housing on Beaver Island and started working towards his goal of providing apartments on the island.

"My father-in-law grew up on Beaver Island and was well known in the community. As he grew old and could no longer live on his own he had nowhere he could stay on the island and had to go over to the mainland," LoDico said.

He said he hopes the apartments will help other seniors remain on the island for a longer time, closer to family and friends. "The apartments are not assisted-living, but we built them next to the health center so that some services can be provided, if needed."

Financing for the apartments has been provided through a loan from the USDA-Rural Development office, a grant from the Michigan State Housing Development Authority and donations by Beaver Island residents. Susan Dennis, area specialist with the federal agency, has been visiting the construction project every month this winter to inspect the progress. "This is the first apartment complex we have built that uses a geothermal heating system. We are very excited about having an energy efficient system on Beaver Island and the in-floor heat should make the senior citizen residents very comfortable next winter."

Construction is expected to be completed June 2011. Applications are being accepted for residents for the apartments. Call Jane Crawford at (989) 721-7254 for an application.

OBITUARY

Johnson

Harold Robert Johnson, born June 20, 1935, died April 9, 2011. Harold was born in Battle Creek and graduated from Michigan State University in 1957 with bachelor's degree in hotel and restaurant administration. His parents, Caroline Peterson and Harold Johnson and two stepmothers, Marianne Johnson and Priscilla Tripp Johnson, preceded him in death. He is survived by his wife Kathy, his sister, Ginger (Tom) Hood of Knoxville, Tenn., seven children, eight grandchildren, nieces and nephews and grand nieces and grand nephews.

Harold spent 20 years in the restaurant business, later pursuing other interests. He worked as a lineman for the KATY Railroad in Dallas, was a potter, artist, actor and spent several years teaching food service at Petoskey High School. He loved his time there with students and staff. He appeared in more than 225 mystery productions – mostly at the Terrace Inn and KOA Campground and he also appeared in three movies – one, "Straight to the Heart," in which he played the sheriff – was shot in Northern Michigan.

A longtime volunteer for Charlevoix Area Hospital, a Master Gardener, member of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild; and the Charlevoix Area Garden Club, he loved his time working in and creating gardens at his home near Afton, Va. He was a member of the Kiwanis Club of Waynesboro, Va. and a volunteer for the Wayne Theatre Alliance.

Donations are suggested to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation, the Charlevoix Area Garden Club or the donor's charity of choice. Harold was a tissue and eye donor through LifeMet Health (800-847-7831). A memorial service is planned sometime in May in Afton.

Several area cities lift parking restrictions

With winter having come to an end, so have the seasonal restrictions which several cities around Emmet and Charlevoix counties place on overnight parking.

Those restrictions — which typically involve prohibiting all on-street parking during overnight hours or restricting parked vehicles to alternating sides of the street — came to an end for the season on April 1, in Petoskey, Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and East Jordan.

Boyne City, however, prohibits its parking on city streets between 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. daily throughout the year. Violators can be issued a $20 ticket, and vehicles also may be towed.

Spring white-out

Waiting for summer

(Left) With the landmark Charlevoix lighthouse reduced to a dark shadow in the fog a lifeguard chair sits empty on Michigan Beach waiting to be used this coming summer. Last year the beaches were left unguarded much of the summer because of city budget cuts. But, thanks to a $10,000 donation from Bill Schuiling, all three of the city's beaches will be staffed with lifeguards this summer. City recreation department officials are still accepting applications for five full-time and two part-time lifeguard positions for this summer. Reimbursement for training may also be considered for applicants. For more information, contact the City of Charlevoix recreation department at (231) 547-3253.

Bond conditions modified in school assault case

East Jordan art teacher, drama director now allowed on school property

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

East Jordan teacher Paula Vollbach's bond is no longer prohibits her from being on school property, though she remains on unpaid leave after an alleged assault on a 10 year old boy last month.

Vollbach

Vollbach, 49, is charged with misdemeanor assault for an alleged incident on March 3 in which she is accused of striking a child on the hand with a ruler. She appeared last week in 90th District Court to request a condition of her $2,000 personal recognizance bond be amended.

Judge Richard May granted the request to lift the condition of Vollbach's bond that prevents her from entering East Jordan Public Schools property. Vollbach is an art teacher at East Jordan Elementary School with more than 20 years in the district.

Mary Beth Kur, defense attorney from Petoskey, said the court appearance was not a major development in the case.

"It's just going through the court system," Kur said.

Shaynee Fanara, chief assistant prosecutor, objected to the request to amend Vollbach's bond.

"I objected because the student is still going to the school and possible witnesses," Fanara said.

However, the judge ensured Vollbach is not to have any contact with the victim, she said.

An East Jordan police report shows the child victim asked Vollbach for help with an assignment. She then asked the boy whether he needed to be in a class for students who require "special help," the report shows.

East Jordan schools superintendent Susan Wooden said the internal investigation is ongoing.

"We are taking our next step very seriously," Wooden said.

Wooden sent a March 24 letter to Vollbach that indicating she would no longer be on paid administrative leave and would not receive a salary during the time she is unable to teach. Vollbach's next scheduled court appearance was for a pre-trial hearing on Tuesday, April 12, in district court.

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

A Charlevoix resident faces sentencing on felony charges for allegedly selling heroin near East Jordan Middle School and later trying to barter for a better deal with prosecutors in exchange for information about a child molestation case.

Joshua Scott Eads, 32, is charged with both felony possession and delivery of heroin within 1,000 feet of school property in late November last year. He pleaded guilty to controlled substance delivery on March 18 in a deal that dropped a previous drug delivery charge for an illegal prescription drug sale earlier in November, court records show.

Authorities arrested Eads immediately after he allegedly sold heroin to a police informant. Police pulled him over as he drove away from the Manning Drive residence where the drug sale allegedly occurred, court records show.

Police confiscated a small packet of heroin and a needle from Eads when they arrested him.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider said his investigators see heroin cases more and more frequently. He's eager to see Eads locked up for it.

"My philosophy is if you want to deal dope in my county, you're going to jail," Schneider said.

Eads is scheduled to be sentenced on Friday, April 22, in Charlevoix County's 33rd Circuit Court. He faces decades in state prison and a possible $75,000 fine.

Now comes the wrinkle in the case.

Authorities said Eads in recent days tried to negotiate a better deal in exchange for information about a then-unknown toddler molestation victim. He would only divulge the information if prosecutors sweetened the deal, Charleyoix County Chief Assistant Prosecutor Shaynee Fanara said.

Eads

Instead, "we decided to add an obstruction of justice charge," Fanara said.

The additional charge is a felony, as well.

In the end, authorities quickly learned more details about the potential molestation case from another source. That investigation is now under way, Fanara said.

Court-appointed defense attorney Kraag Lieberman represents Eads, but declined to comment on the case.

Court records show Eads has a 2005 drug use conviction on his criminal record from the 67th District Court in Flint. Eads remains lodged at Charlevoix County Jail in lieu of bond.

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix Rayder varsity baseball team will rely on a nucleus of seven juniors who are in their third year as varsity players as they looks to continue improving on gains made last season.

Head coach Allen Telgenhof said his team is ready to jump into the season after returning from its version of spring training during spring break last week.

During the break 14 players and three coaches traveled to Nashville, Tenn. for our spring training. On the way, the Rayders played at Charlestown, Ind. where they lost 13-3 and 11-1.

In game one the Rayders led most of the way until a nine-run sixth inning.

In the first game Coby Herriman, Andrew Potter, Tommy Zipp and Shane Sutherland, a freshman playing in his first varsity game had hits. Tag McCreadie, a sophomore also playing in his first varsity game, hit an RBI sacrifice fly.

Herriman took the pitching loss, going 4 1/3 innings, giving up four hits, seven walks, and getting nine strike outs.

In game 2, in the first inning, Potter reached on an error and Herriman doubled him in to give the Rayders an early lead, but then it was all Charlestown. Potter took the loss on the mound. Herriman had the team's only hit.

Despite the lopsided losses during the trip, Telgenhof is optimistic about the coming season.

"We were 14-20 last year which was disappointing but a big improvement over the seven wins we had in 2009," Telgenhof said.

He pointed to Herriman as the team's top returnee. Herriman was all-district last year, hitting .367 overall and .444 in the Lake Michigan Conference. On the mound, he had a 3.04 ERA, striking out 61 in 46 innings. He threw a no-hitter against Ellsworth. Potter will return as starting shortstop and number two pitcher.

Jordan Farmer, who threw out a school record 24 baserunners last season, will be behind the plate for his third season.

Other junior starters will likely be Jesse Drost at first, and Myles Kerr and Isaac Klooster in the outfield. Sophomore Tommy Zipp will start either at third or in the outfield. The coach said McCreadie has the inside track at second base and others battling for playing time will be junior Morgan Stewart, freshman Sutherland, senior Dylan Sladek and juniors River Gauthier and Alex Waha.

"I am very excited about this season. We had our best off-season and pre-season in my six years as varsity coach. We have great leadership with captains Farmer, Herriman and Potter in their third years on the varsity. We have 30 players in the program and have a junior varsity team again after a two year absence. Things are looking up for the program. With no senior starters, this should be just the beginning of good things to come," Telgenhof said.

GIRLS TRACK

Versatile senior Karine Smolenyak and Jenna Way and Allison Hankins, both juniors, are the leading returnees for the Rayders, along with distance stalwarts Molly Jeakle, a junior, and Olivia Certa, a sophomore.

"We have a nice mix of veterans, and newcomers," coach Mary Plude said. "Our attitude is great, our goals are set for individuals and the team, and the girls know that hard work will accomplish those goals."

Caroline Boss, a freshmen, enters her first track season with some valuable experience competing at the state level in cross country during the fall season and breaking the school indoor track record by three seconds, 62.2.

"Although our leadership is young," coach Rick Hawley said. "We have a lot of potiential gained from the experiences last year."

The lone senior, Brianna Balough will provide leadership for the distance runners along with freshmen Holly Carson.

STEVE FOLEY
NEWS-REVIEW
SPORTS WRITER

The Charlevoix Rayder will look to make it three straight Division IV district crowns this season, and will attempt to do so with all of its defensive line and goalkeeper back in place.

Charlevoix went 15-6-2 last year.

"Last year, we replaced our whole back line and goalkeeper," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "This year we have them all back so that a nice luxury to have."

Sophomore goalkeeper Bailee Stevens is back following a solid tournament run, as is junior sweeper Savannah Joseph, junior stopper Kelly Greyerbiehl and outside backs Caroline Elowsky, a sophomore, and senior Hannah Doan.

Senior Taylor Smith, who last season finished with a team-high 29 goals and eight assists, has 42 goals and 16 assists entering her final season, while seniors Hallie Bills and Abbey Barnes also return.

Sophomore Anna Way also returns after seeing significant playing time last year.

"It will be really interesting to see how we do," Madison said. "We went to Olivet for a scrimmage and we played against three Division II teams and we held our own. The key for us will be figuring out that midfield position. You have to be really strong, see the field and distribute the ball well."

The Rayders open the season at home on Thursday, April 14, against Grayling in a Lake Michigan Conference contest.

Red Devils defeat Rayders on Quiz Central

The East Jordan Red Devils defeated the Charlevoix Rayders in an all-new "Quiz Central" Blue Division Semi-Final Game by a final score of 180 to 110. East Jordan will now move on to the Blue Division Championship game, inching their way closer to the Quiz Central Grand Championship game.

The Red Devils next appearance on the show has not yet been announced.

At 7:30 p.m. On Wednesday, April 13 the Northern Michigan Christian Comets take on the Kingston Cardinals, kicking off the Quiz Central Gold Division Semi-Final Games. Then, at 5:30 p.m. on Saturday, April 16, the Mount Pleasant Sacred Heart Irish battle the Flint Classical Academy Wolves. See an encore presentation of both games, at 2:30 p.m. and 3 p.m. Sunday, April 17.

Teams compete on "Quiz Central" in four divisions, based on school size. Division champions will be awarded four $2,500 one year scholarships to Central Michigan University. Again this season, "Quiz Central" is offering five textbook scholarships to seniors planning to attend Central Michigan University. The text book scholarships are provided by The CMU Bookstore.

"Stress Busters" for the Sandwich Generation

You may be too busy to realize it, but April is Stress Awareness Month. Sponsored by the Health Resource Network, a nonprofit health education group, Stress Awareness Month is designed to promote awareness about ways to reduce stress in our lives. And if you're a member of the so-called "Sandwich Generation," you may well have plenty of stress to deal with — especially financial stress. And that's why you may want to look at this month as an opportunity to explore ways of "de-stressing" yourself.

To understand the scope of the problem facing people in your situation, consider this: One out of every eight Americans aged 40 to 60 is raising a child while caring for an aging parent, according to the Pew Research Center. The definition of "eldercare" can range from having the parent living in one's home to helping pay for the parent's stay in an assisted living or nursing home facility. When you consider the costs involved in this type of care, added to the expenses of raising your children and possibly even providing some financial support to them as young adults, it's easy to see how you could potentially face enormous strains, both emotionally and financially.

To help ease this burden, consider these suggestions:

• Save. As a Sandwich Generation member, you're probably within shouting distance of your own retirement — so you need to save for it. This may not be easy. You don't know how much financial support you may someday have to provide your elderly parents — and even after your children are grown, they may need some help from you. Unfortunately, in helping these "boomerang" children, many people disrupt their day-to-day cash flow and raid their savings. That's why it's important to try to "pay yourself first" by deferring part of each paycheck into a 401(k) and by automatically moving money each month from your checking or savings account into an IRA.

• Talk. Many people in the "Greatest Generation" (over age 80) have not even prepared a will. If your parents are in that group, you may want to talk to them about taking action. Also, find out who, if anyone, is handling their investments. And ask if your parents understand how Medicare works and if they need to add supplemental health insurance, such as Medigap. Plus, you need to find out if your parents have created a power of attorney or health care directive. It's best to have these conversations sooner rather than later.

• Delegate. You eventually may have to take some responsibility for your parents' care — but you don't have to do it alone. You could, for example, work with a financial services provider that offers trust services, which can be invaluable if your parents are incapacitated and useful even if they aren't. A professional trust officer can, among other duties, help manage your parents' investments, pay their bills, keep their records and supervise distribution of their assets to beneficiaries. In short, a qualified trust officer can make life a lot easier for you.

Stress Awareness Month lasts only 30 days, but by taking the right steps, you can de-stress yourself for many years to come. After all, just because you're in the Sandwich Generation, it doesn't mean you have to be "squished."

The Petoskey News-Review brought home Michigan Associated Press newswriting and photography awards in the 2010 contest.

The annual Michigan AP Editorial Association newswriting, photography, graphics and Web site contest is an important media industry competition that distinguishes the best journalistic work across the state.

"These awards further highlight the fantastic work being done by everyone at the Petoskey News-Review," said Jeremy McBain, News-Review editor. "We continue to strive to be a newspaper our readers can be proud of."

The News-Review's big winner this year is sports writer Andy Sneddon, who received four awards, including a total sweep of the first, second and third place spots in the sports writing category for newspapers with circulation up to 15,000, or Division I. Judges honored Sneddon for the entries "Quarter heartbreak," "Top of the heap," and "Instant Classic."

Sneddon also received the second-place award in the sports enterprise category for "High hurdles."

Another key win came with the first-place award for news reporter Rachel Brougham with her entry "Mineral rights leases," a four-part series on the oil and gas boon last summer and the potential effects on both the economy and the environment.

Charlevoix Courier editor Steve Zucker earned a third-place award for breaking news with former News-Review reporter Christina Rohn. Their entry was "Conway landmark destroyed by fire."

Renée Tanner took first place in the informational graphics category with a map of "The long walk." The graphic illustrated the 135-mile journey of Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa elder Frank Ettawageshik. The story was written by Rohn.

Photographer G. Randall Goss won the first-place prize for a feature picture entry called "Laughing horse," a submission that also took the judges' sweepstakes award.

Doug Caldwell, News-Review publisher, said the awards signify the newspaper staff's focus on community.

"I'm very pleased with the awards and am even more pleased with the individuals who won their categories in the AP contest," he said. "It's evidence of the journalistic quality at the Petoskey News-Review."

The Petoskey News-Review competes in Division I against newspapers such as the Livingston County Daily Press and Argus in Howell, the Ludington Daily News, The Mining Journal in Marquette and The Argus-Press in Owosso.

Bayside Beverage wins MillerCoors President's Award

Long

MillerCoors President Tom Long recently awarded local beer distributor Bayside Beverage with the "MillerCoors President's Award" in front of some 2,000 fellow distributors from across the country.

The President's Award was presented at the annual MillerCoors Distributor Convention which took place March 23 in San Antonio, Texas. MillerCoors recognizes sales excellence by rewarding the top 32 performing distributors from across the five MillerCoors sales regions with the coveted President's Award.

"I couldn't be more proud of our team at Bayside Beverage," said Steve Arbaugh, President of the beer and wine distribution company. "We employ 36 very talented men and women who work on behalf of our retailer partners here in northern Michigan, day in and day out, and they performed at the highest possible level in 2010."

"We are proud to be the only locally-owned beer and wine distributor in our area, and we are proud of being recognized as performing among the best distributors nationally," Arbaugh said.

MillerCoors has 500 distributors nationwide who are eligible for the President's Award. Bayside Beverage was the only winner from Michigan. This is Bayside Beverage's second President's Award, having first earned it in 2003. Bayside Beverage distributes beer and wine in Emmet, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Otsego, Antrim and Mackinac counties.

Sheri McWhirter joins News-Review editorial staff

MORGAN SHERBURNE
STAFF WRITER

McWhirter

The Petoskey News-Review, a sister publication to the Charlevoix Courier, welcomed Sheri McWhirter to its staff on March 21.

Previous to her working at the News-Review, McWhirter spent six years at the Traverse City Record Eagle, reporting on many areas, but focusing on the environmental beat.

"I got to do a lot of pretty great things, including crawling into a bear den for a story," said McWhirter, remembering a day spent with the Department of Natural Resources as officials evaluated black bears for their reproductive status.

Bears are not the only animals McWhirter has encountered while on the job.

"I have done a lot of reporting on various rivers such as the Au Sable, and I have watched people tag sturgeon in the Black River," she said. "They were these incredibly large fish, about six feet long. I watched a Michigan State University graduate student trying to tag a sturgeon, and it was slapping him in the back with its tail."

A reporter with more than 10 years of experience at three newspapers, McWhirter is a 2001 graduate of Southern Illinois University Edwardsville, where she majored in mass communication with a specialization in journalism, television and radio.

While in college, McWhirter completed a study abroad program through New York University. She spent a few weeks at NYU before studying in Amsterdam and followed the semester with a summer spent traveling in Europe.

McWhirter began her reporting career as an intern at The Telegraph, a daily paper based in Alton, Ill. The Telegraph hired her after her internship, and she remained with the paper for just under three years.

In 2004, McWhirter made the move to Northern Michigan, having split her years growing up between Alma, Ill., Highland, Ill., Kalkaska and a suburb on Spider Lake near Traverse City.

After her permanent move to Northern Michigan, McWhirter was hired by the Traverse City Record Eagle. Four of McWhirter's six years at the Record Eagle were spent working for the newspaper's Gaylord bureau, and the final two were spent in the Record Eagle's Traverse City office.

"I'm happy to be back at a daily paper," McWhirter said.

In her off time, McWhirter is a self-described science fiction fanatic — Han Solo is a particular favorite. She also enjoys golf, camping, river kayaking, hiking, snowmobiling and snowshoeing.

McWhirter will be covering Charlevoix County and the cities of Boyne City, Boyne Falls and East Jordan for the Petoskey News Review.

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW

One of the city's oldest water mains will be replaced in coming weeks.

The Charlevoix City Council unanimously agreed on Monday to award a $350,000 construction bid to Elmer's Crane and Dozer, of Traverse City. The work involves the installation of nearly 2,000 linear feet of new water main along Bridge Street.

"One of our concerns is to get this done before the busy summer season," said Rob Straebel, city manager.

The construction bid came in about 23.5 percent more expensive that the city engineer's estimate. The estimate was based on last year's water line project along Bridge Street, a bid now determined to be too low, Straebel said.

"Though we certainly would have liked the cost to come in a little bit less," he said.

Team Elmer's submitted the sole bid for the work at $358,000, though officials reduced it to $350,622 by eliminating some expenses. Officials opted to reduce some costs, rather than seek new bids for the work.

The 10-inch water line will be installed beneath the sidewalk along the east side of Bridge Street, from Green Street to Hurlbut Avenue.

Work is expected to begin within two or three weeks, once frost levels are reduced, and the project is set to be completed by May 27.

This section of the existing water main sometimes experiences leaks. It's among the oldest water mains in town, Straebel said.

The project is on Charlevoix's list of infrastructure improvements to be completed during the next 10 years. Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. and council member Bryan Vollmer did not attend Monday's meeting.

This service is offered by the Hospice of Michigan Team at no charge to anyone who is mourning the loss of a loved one. For more information or to register for the group, call Briana Thorold at (989)705-2603

Blood drives — Every day of every week people need blood for emergency and ongoing medical care. It's a need that doesn't take a break, regardless of the season. About 39,000 blood donations are needed daily by hospital patients undergoing treatment for serious diseases like cancer and sickle cell, for surgery, and for trauma and burn care. The challenge, Red Cross officials say, is that while blood needs are constant, blood donors sometimes take a break, particularly during peak travel times like early spring. Blood donors who would otherwise give, may wait until later to make and keep an appointment. In an effort to help increase donor turnout, the Red Cross has partnered with Meijer to offer every person who comes out to donate, the chance to win free groceries ($250 value). In addition, everyone who attempts to donate in April will receive a free sample of Pacific Shaving Company's shaving oil and a chance to win a Mother's Day Out package ($125 value) at a local salon and spa. In May, everyone who comes out to donate has a chance to win a $125 gift card to Lowe's for dad as part of a "Dad's to-do List" promotion.

To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-REDCROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate

Moratorium extended

City needs more time to finalize zoning for medical marijuana

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The city of Charlevoix is going to take another six months to consider how it will amend its zoning ordinance to accommodate medical marijuana production, sale and distribution.

At Monday's regular semi-monthly Charlevoix City Council meeting the council voted unanimously to extend the city's moratorium on medical marijuana production and dispensing operations in the city. The previous six-month moratorium expired on April 4.

City planner Mike Spencer said significant progress was made during the first six months, but he said more time is needed to get the zoning proposals finalized.

Spencer said city officials have met with county and Charlevoix Township leaders, the city's legal counsel and other cities dealing with the same issues around the state. He said he is also working with the county's geological information systems department to generate maps that include buffer zones around schools and churches.

The resolution extending the moratorium reads, in part, "despite reasonable, good faith efforts, the planning process is still not complete due, in part, to the complex nature of regulating medical marijuana, attempting to interpret the poorly written (medical marijuana act) and the time consuming nature of evaluating varying interpretations of the (act) and new information related to this topic that continues to be found by city planning staff."

Spencer explained that much like sexually-oriented businesses, Michigan law does not allow cities to completely ban a legal property use from all locations within its borders and therefore the city needs to come up with the best locations for such businesses.

That is, he said, unless a city follows Livonia's lead and bans medical marijuana outright. Spencer said Livonia, which based its decision on the fact that federal law is at odds with the state law and does not permit medical marijuana, is now at the center of a lawsuit because of its position.

Spencer said he is confident that the language for the proposed zoning will be ready for the council's consideration by the end of the six month period.

And there is interest in establishing such businesses in Charlevoix, Spencer said.

He said he's fielded several calls inquiring about starting a medical marijuana business, the most recent was a couple weeks ago.

Pressure points

If you see portions of some fire hydrants around the city start to change color in the coming months, it's not because they are slowly molting, rather it is part of a new color-coding system that will help firefighters quickly identify which hydrants will provide the best water flow near the scene of a fire.

The city council gave fire chief Paul Ivan their blessing for his proposal to paint tops and nozzle caps of the hydrants with the color coding scheme of light blue for the best supply of 1,500 gallons per-minute or more, down through green, orange and then red for hydrants with a supply of 500 gallons per minute or less.

Ivan said that the city's various hydrant locations and their capacities are already listed in the department's pre-planning documents which are accessible by computers in the fire trucks, but said the visual cues are a much quicker indicator in an emergency situation.

He said the program shouldn't cost the city much, especially if people step for-

Forbes: Charlevoix is pretty beautiful

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

It's pretty well-known that Charlevoix is a pretty visually appealing place.

In fact, the community announces it pretty prominently with the city's long-held slogan, "Charlevoix the Beautiful" emblazoned on signs at the city's main entrances.

As it turns out, at least according to the folks at Forbes magazine, "beautiful" is pretty close.

Last week the magazine listed Charlevoix as one of 11 in a list of "America's Prettiest Towns."

Forbes blog writer John Giuffo explains the selection process thus: "Working with travel experts from Frommer's, Rough Guides and Midwestern Living magazine, we've pulled together a list of some of America's prettiest, most enchanting towns. We looked for places that offer not only aesthetic bounty, but memorable activities and destinations nearby.

Photos of each of the 11 towns and a description of each town appear on a slideshow on the publication's website. The entry for Charlevoix, which accompanies a photo of the Pine River Channel looking east from the bridge, reads: "'Charlevoix has just the most picturesque, beautiful downtown you can imagine,' says (Kendra Williams, travel editor of Midwest Living). There's a popular inland lake, which in summer is chock full of vacationers — those who aren't at the summer Venetian Festival and accompanying art fair. Located on an isthmus between

The council also approved the purchase of a reserve pump for the Bridge Park sewage lift station at a cost of $19,867. City crews put the previous back-up pump into full time service last year and therefore had no reserve pump to put into service when one of the three pumps in the station needs to be repaired.

School nurse keeping busy in grant-funded position

Since beginning her job about six weeks ago as the Charlevoix Public School District's new school nurse Kristie Robarge, has bandaged more cuts and bruises than she can count. She's taken temperatures and administered medicines. She's helped a student having a seizure. She's called parents, doctors, and 9-1-1. She's also led a school-wide healthy living challenge in which every staff member participated—and that's all at the elementary school. When you add her duties at the middle school and high school, the list just keeps growing.

Thanks in part to start-up funds provided by The Chicago Club through a fund at the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, Robarge's grant-funded position enables students and staff to have full-time access to a nurse. Robarge travels between the schools, bringing her knowledge of health and wellness with her. The position is funded through a partnership between the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, Charlevoix Area Hospital, and the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation.

Robarge says she loves being able to support students, staff, and families in healthy living. "I get to be a positive influence in a young person's life and create change for the better. My job is what I make it, and I intend on putting everything I have into it. I love it."

Robarge has been a welcome addition to the schools.

"We did the best we could before," said elementary school principal Doug Drenth, "but we just didn't have the expertise. Having Kristie here allows us to have a healthier population, keep children in school more, and ultimately improve their success."

In addition to providing care for ankle sprains, asthma attacks, and broken bones, Robarge will support the health curriculum to all ages. "Kristie will take up the charge for health and wellness," says middle school principal Travis Garrett. "That's something we have not been able to do. With her medical expertise and the time she has to devote to this, we are hoping that she can influence many of our students and staff to eat right, exercise, and create a healthier Charlevoix."

That goal is one The Chicago Club shares as well. Eleven years ago, club members created a fund at the Charlevoix County Community Foundation dedicated to improving the health and well-being of Charlevoix school-aged children. To date, more than $98,000 has been distributed from the fund.

The Chicago Club has a long history of supporting local causes, community foundation president Chip Hansen said.

"The school nurse program is an important addition to the thriving Charlevoix schools," he said. "We are grateful to the Chicago Club for choosing to make the program a priority. Their support is just another indicator of their positive impact on the community."

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a grassroots charitable organization made up of various funds—all of them established by local donors. Some funds are earmarked for specific causes, and others are open-ended to meet changing needs. The funds are held in permanent endowment, so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix County, now and for generations to come. For more information, please contact the Charlevoix County Community Foundation at (231) 536-2440, or online at www.c3f.org

Plant a seed and grow some patience

Roger Knutson

I taught botany to college students for more than 30 years. One of the things that I always required of my students was an experiment that measured plant growth. Each student was required to precisely determine the rate of growth of a plant. They could choose the plant, but I required that they measure the initial growth rate beginning with seed, for a two week period. It is difficult to know for certain what the students learned from this experience, but I learned something surprising.

College students are inclined to leave what must be done until the last possible moment and then work unceasingly to prepare for that examination or write that research paper. Many of my students procrastinated about their plant growth experiment only to find that there was no way to get a two-week-old plant in less than 14 days, no matter how many all-nighters they put in. Somehow, they felt that if they put in a lot of hours, the plants should grow faster. Discovering the error of their ways may have been more important to their education than any information about how fast some particular plant grew.

I have suspected for a long time that people who grow plants, either as a vocation or as a hobby, are more patient than the general populace who do not have such a connection to live, growing plants. Maybe that is just botanical arrogance, but it seems true.

The idea that anything can be produced, developed or accessed faster and faster is almost a given in today's world. We are willing to pay for faster Internet service, faster telephone connections, faster airplanes. Products or services described as "instant' are unquestionably popular. We even expect wars to be over quickly. Patience would seem to be at an all-time low.

I think it is time we turned that trend around. If growing plants and deriving some value, whether food or pleasure, from that process, were to become a part of everyday life for most or at least more people, I suspect we might be more comfortable and patient with other time-consuming activities. I don't want people to study scientific botany, but only to grow plants and take note of the fact that the process can hardly be speeded up. Even the breeders and producers of new kinds and varieties of plants, who have been extraordinarily successful at making more productive plants, have hardly been able to speed up plant growth. A wheat plant may produce more kernels in the same amount of time, but it will hardly grow faster just because we are in a hurry.

Only a few generations ago most of the people in the United States derived their livelihood from growing plants. They were a hardy group. Tom Brokaw called them "The Greatest Generation." Did participating in plant growth as a necessity make them that way? I am sure it contributed.

No need to go back to sharecropping or the endless toil of 19th century agriculture. Just grow a few plants and watch your patience grow as well. Could we use more patience with each other and with our society? Yes. Could we get it by growing a few plants and watching that unfolding process? Maybe. I think it is worth a try.

20th anniversary celebration for Raven Hill

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

EAST JORDAN — There's a place on a hill in rural Charlevoix County where magic happens.

That magic is life-long learning about science, history and art at Raven Hill Discovery Center, a nonprofit organization in its 20th year. Perhaps that history is a little magical, too.

"It was founded in 1991 by myself and my husband, Tim, as a place to experience informal learning and make connections. We think it's a better way to learn," said Cheri Leach, owner.

The center functions as a perfect destination for school field trips, Boy Scout programs and weekend visits by families with children. It's also a resource for area teachers with its library of reference material that can be borrowed for lesson planning.

"I think it's a valuable resource because of all the different things the kids can learn and experience," said Nancy Wandrie, of Alanson, a teacher for Inland Lakes Schools.

Wandrie brought her family to Raven Hill on Saturday, where her daughter, Vanessa, 11, experimented with the different sounds made by dragging her finger around the edge of wine glasses filled with various amounts of water.

Megan Pernicano is the center's sole employee, save for owners Cheri and Tim Leach, along with a host of volunteers. It's a great job for her and her teaching degree, she said.

"I learn something every day. I call Cheri a walking encyclopedia," Pernicano laughed.

The place has animals — snakes, turtles and other reptiles — along with a hands-on museum filled with scientific demonstrations that look more like toys.

"I like the magnets," said Sophie Schomak, 8, of Petoskey.

Sophie toiled to turn a wheel that operated a system of magnets that moved around a chunk of metal, first upwards, then sideways, upside-down and back around.

"It's amazing here. It's kind of like the Detroit Science Center. Just because you move up north doesn't mean there's no place like this to go," said Deb Cadieux, Sophie's grandmother.

Sophie's sister, Riley, 9, turned in circles, overwhelmed by the many museum displays and hands-on activities, eager for her turn in the animal room.

"So far I like the energy thing with the bike. I don't know why, I just do," Riley said.

Already in the animal room were Keaton and Kaiden McDowell, 8 and 6, respectively, and their friend Mya Hansen, 8, all from the Detroit area. They came up north to visit family in Bellaire and came to Raven Hill with Mya's mother, Michelle Hansen.

"I love it here because they can explore science without realizing they are doing it," Michelle Hansen said.

"Whoa," Kaiden said.

But then out came Leroy, the python snake.

"When you see Leroy stick his tongue out like that he's actually smelling," Pernicano said as she held the reptile and slowly walked past the amazed children who sat in a row with anxious expressions.

Raven Hill also is packed with mounted animals from Northern Michigan, musical instruments mounted to the wall and a new section is set to debut as part of the 20th anniversary celebration. The new Warren Loranger Great Room and Christopher's Art Corridor will be unveiled at the free open house event planned for noon-4 p.m. on Sunday, May 1.

"I look back at all we've done and get excited about 20 more years to come," Cheri Leach said.

Future goals include financial sustainability and continual updates to educational programming, she said.

The center sits on about 157 acres on Fuller Road, near the intersection of East Jordan-Boyne City and Pearsall roads and adjacent to 140 acres of protected land called Raven Ridge Nature Preserve.

Raven Hill is open on weekends and by appointment during the academic school year, but in the summer is open from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Friday, noon-4 p.m. on Saturday and 2-4 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is $8 per person.

LETTER to the editor

Taxpayers, pick up your phones

Editor:

By now, every one has heard about G. E. making 14.2 billion dollars, paying no tax, and getting a 3.2 billion dollar refund.

At the same time, the far right are attacking teachers, police, firemen, the elderly, and EMT's.

If you, for some reason, think this is irrational or immoral, pick up your phone and call your representatives in Lansing and Washington.

They are also being paid by you taxpayers.

Ironton Ferry opens for season, horn returns

SHERI MCWHIRTER

IRONTON - The historic four-car cable ferry in Ironton is again on the move.

The Ironton Ferry resumed its frequent daily crossings of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix Friday. It comes with the much-discussed horn blasts required by the federal government.

"We have to do that. The (U.S.) Coast Guard says the horn must be blown at departure from either side," said Doug Way, chairman of the Charlevoix County Transportation Authority.

Ferry operators didn't use the horn in past years, save for poor visibility or emergency situations. Then a couple of years ago an anonymous tipster told the Coast Guard the ferry wasn't following federal rules.

Federal officials clamped down on the operation and forced the nearby residents to endure the loud and frequent horn blasts. Now the horn sounds each time it leaves the dock for its 600-foot journey across the lake, a trip that takes just minutes.

The ferry traverses the narrow northern portion of the lake's South Arm, cutting off nearly 20 miles for motorists who otherwise would have to journey south around the South Arm or north around the main portion of Lake Charlevoix.

"It saves a lot of miles going from Charlevoix to Boyne City," Way said.

Daily ferry hours are from 6:30 a.m.-10:30 p.m. and ticket prices did not change from last season. Crossings cost $3.25 per car, $1 for a person with a bicycle and 50 cents for a person without a vehicle or bicycle.

The ferry's season runs from mid-April until just before Thanksgiving.

Ripley's Believe it or Not once featured the ferry for traveling 15,000 miles while the captain was never more than a quarter-mile from his home over a period of years.

Coast Guard officials refer to the ferry as the "vessel Charlevoix," though most locals call it the Ironton Ferry.

Charlevoix County road projects on tap

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

BOYNE CITY — Charlevoix County road officials are geared up for summer construction projects and expect to award contracts soon.

The Charlevoix County Road Commission met on Monday, April 11, and discussed a number of coming road construction projects. Trouble is, the money may not be immediately available to do all the planned work at once.

A $1.1 million project on Springvale Road may end up with less ditch work completed, an effort to save some cash. The commission also may ask Charlevoix County leaders for a temporary $150,000 loan to cover the shortfall, something that's previously been done.

"If we did have to borrow, it will only be for three or four months," said Pat Harmon, manager.

The low bid came from Rieth-Riley, a multi-state contractor with facilities in Bay Shore, to grade and pave nearly five miles along Springvale Road, from River Road in Melrose Township to Chandler Hill Road in Chandler Township.

Harmon said it will cost more in the end to shorten the planned work and send the crew back out a second time to complete it.

"The best way to do that road is all at once. Don't pull them off and then send them back," said Doug Way, the road commission's chairman.

All three commission members agreed to seek a temporary loan from the county.

Also, a $993,000 project on Camp Ten Road in Hudson Township will involve grading and paving about 6.4 miles from Thumb Lake Road to County Line Road. Rieth-Riley submitted the low bid for that job, too.

The contracts for those two construction projects could be awarded by month's end, said Jim Vanek, the commission's engineer.

Road commissioners also opened sealed bids for two other construction projects and one equipment purchase.

Three companies bid on a paving job for about one mile on Burgess Road in Hayes Township. Payne and Dolan of Gaylord submitted the low bid at $168,262.

The same company submitted the low bid — $40,376 — for a paving job on a quarter-mile of Miles Road in South Arm Township. Finally, Grand Equipment Company of Hudsonville submitted the lowest bid for the purchase of a new self-propelled road sweeper at $42,166.

The next Charlevoix County Road Commission meeting will be at 9 a.m. on Monday, April 25, in Boyne City.

Editor's note: This school year marks the 50th anniversary of the last year Charlevoix High School occupied the building on Mason Street. To commemorate the milestone, over the next several months, the Courier will publish photos taken in the spring of 1961 by well-known photographer Bob Miles. The photos, and accompanying information are provided by Miles' son and Historical Society museum co-director David Miles.

For more than three decades, all public school students often heard the loud clackety-clack of the gymnasium chairs being set up and taken down, here by members of the custodial staff Willard Bodley, left, and Harlow Bettis.

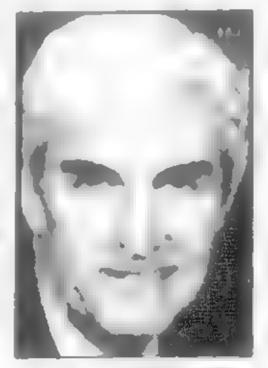
James N. Roberts, age 81, of (Mercer Township, Butler Colo.) Harrisville, Pa., passed away at his residence at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 13, 2011

Jim was born in Lake City, Mich. on Aug. 23, 1929, to parents Bertha and Carlyle Roberts. He was the fifth of eight children. When Jim was 11 his family moved to a farm in Charlevoix. Later he graduated from Charlevoix High School and then received his bachelor's degree from Central Michigan University in 1951. Following graduation, Jim served in the U.S. Army of Occupation in Germany for two years.

Jim pursued a career in education as a teacher in Battle Creek and a principal in Mount Pleasant,. He continued to move forward in his profession earning a master's degree followed by a doctorate from Wayne State University in Detroit.



Roberts

Jim became academic dean at the University of the Ozarks in Clarkesville, Ark., from 1962 to 1966. He spent 27 years at Slippery Rock University as vice president of academic affairs, interim president and professor of mathematics and student teaching. He retired in 1993.

He is survived by his wife Ila, whom he married in 1953; two daughters: Attorney Michele Roberts of Milwaukee, Wis.; and Dr. Kimberley Roberts and husband Ron Buikema of Silver Springs, Md. Also surviving are two brothers: Jack Roberts of Charlevoix and Carl Roberts (wife Martha) of Northport, as well as three sisters: Mary Schrandt (husband Jim) of Lansing; Arlyle Kohler of Detroit, and Joan Jolliffe (husband Fred); of Charlevoix. Two sisters are deceased: Marjorie and Phyllis. He is also survived by several nieces, nephews, and grand nieces and nephews.

Jim will be missed beyond measure by those who love him. His courage, integrity and compassion set a life gold standard. The list of lives he loved and aided is endless. He loved his farm and took great pride in his garden, which he shared with many. The world is a better place for the presence he had in it.

Memorial Services took place at 3 p.m. on Sunday, April 17, 2011 at Center United Presbyterian Church, 211 Center St, Slippery Rock, Pa. with the Rev. William Mumaw, pastor of the church officiating.

Robert James Roth: May 24, 1967 - April 10, 2011

Robert James Roth, 43, of Charlevoix, was battling an insidious disease and he suddenly lost the battle with this progressive illness, on Sunday, April 10, 2011, at his home. He was born May 24, 1967, in Lansing, the son of James Roth and Janis Sullivan. He grew up in Haslett, Michigan, where he broke many records on the swim team and then graduated with the class of 1985. Giving up a full-ride scholarship for swimming, he pursued his passion to work under water by completing the deep sea diving program in Seattle, Wash. From Washington he moved to Hawaii where he discovered his love for surfing. He then returned to his beloved Michigan to study turf management at Michigan State University. In the summer of 1997 Rob moved to Charlevoix where he met his best friend and love of his life, Shelley Kay, whom he married on 07-07-07 at 07:07 on Old Mission Point. He was employed by Glen's Market in Charlevoix, then was promoted to grocery manager in Petoskey and later was employed by Petoskey Plastics in shipping and receiving. He was currently and very proudly employed at Harbor Industries of Charlevoix.

Rob's deepest love and loyalty was for anything Michigan, except the Wolverines. GO STATE! He was an extremely loyal fan of the MSU Spartans, Detroit Lions, Red Wings, and Tigers and enjoyed following the local high school teams especially when they would advance into playoffs. His obsession was to know all of the sports statistics for use in conversation. Rob loved the water for swimming, sailing, surfing, and diving. He believed that there was so much more to explore and discover under the water than out in space. Rob was most passionate about the Great Lakes and Northern Michigan. He would like to say to the West Coast, where he resided for a bit, "Your sun sets on salt water, but mine sets on fresh water." Ultimately, Rob was proud to be an American. He was dedicated to the heritage of our Founding Fathers and our right to bear arms. Job, tradition, and family were his motivation and family included the household pets. Rob was a faithful and loving husband and was an extremely proud stepfather as he sang the praises of "his girls." He had deep love and concern for his immediate family, as well as his extended family. In recent years he had become a member of the recovering community and developed a deeper love and understanding of his Higher Power who he chose to call God. Rob's infectious and endless energy, along with his above average intelligence and stature, is what will be remembered most by those who even spent a brief moment with him.

He is survived by his wife, Shelley; his step-daughters, Sarah Titus, and Rachel Titus of Charlevoix; father and stepmother, James and Joanne Roth of Haslett; mother, Janis Sullivan of Redondo Beach, Calif.; sister, Laura and her husband Michael Lawrence of Manhattan Beach, Calif.; father and mother-in-law, Arthur and Linda Barnhard of Fremont; sister-in-law, Sherry (Rick) Woodland of Grant; brother-in-law, Steven (Casey) Barnhard of Dorr; nieces, Shay, Elle, and Nya Woodland; Holly, Rebecca, and Megan Barnhard.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Alano Club, 106 Mason Street, Charlevoix, 49720; to the Charlevoix County Humane Society, 614 Beardsley, Boyne City, MI 49712 or directly to Shelley Roth in the care of Winchester Funeral Home, 209 State Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Those who'd like to share a memory of Rob, or condolences, may do so at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com.

Weather wreaks havoc on early season sports

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Mother Nature has not been cooperative with the Charlevoix Rayders' spring sports schedule so far.

The past week alone, the cold, rainy weather prompted the cancellation of baseball, softball, tennis and track events, including a four team baseball and softball tournament that had been set for this past Saturday.

On Monday, despite the sunny weather, a baseball game on Monday against Ellsworth, a golf meet in Boyne City and a track meet in East Jordan were also cancelled.

Charlevoix athletic director said the baseball game was the only Monday event that was up to him to cancel. He explained not only is the cold uncomfortable for the athletes, but some of the bats used by the teams are not rated to be used in weather colder than 40 degrees.

So far, girls soccer is the only sport that hasn't faced an event cancellation.

And the forecast for the rest of the week doesn't look much more promising.

At press time Northern Michigan was under a winter storm watch, in which the National Weather Service was predicting six or more inches of snow to fall on the area late Tuesday and into Wednesday. That means there is a good chance that more sports events will be cancelled because of the weather.

Certa said in most cases non-conference events will not be made up, although he is hoping to reschedule the baseball and softball tournament for mid-May. He said as the seasons move forward rescheduling games becomes more and more difficult and it could become necessary to cancel a non-conference game to fit in a conference contest.

"It's frustrating for athletic directors and for the athletes," Certa said. "They want to get out there and play."

Braving the elements

A pair of hearty golfers seem to have more faith in the calendar than the weather forecast as they play an early season round of golf at Belvedere Golf and Country Club in 34-degree weather Monday afternoon. Mother Nature has not been cooperating with the start of the spring sports season as cold, rainy and snowy weather has prompted many events to be cancelled in recent days.

SOFTBALL

Lady Rayders split conference openers

On Tuesday, April 12, Hannah Hybl had three hits including a three run homer in the nightcap as Charlevoix rolled past Kalkaska, 18-3, to salvage a split of its season opening and Lake Michigan Conference opening softball doubleheader.

Junior Kristen Mielke struck out seven in tossing a no-hitter for the Rayders. The game was called after four innings because of the mercy rule.

Katie Hybl had three hits including a double for the Rayders, while Chelsie Hoffman and Mielke had two hits apiece, and Maddie Zimmerman, Paige Montgomery, Rachel Schull and Anna Moon each singled.

Kalkaska used a three run fifth inning to rally from a 6-4 deficit in taking the opener, 7-6. Jamie Myas earned the victory.

Hannah Hybl struck out six, allowed nine hits and walked three in taking the loss.

Mielke had three hits including a double to lead Charlevoix at the plate, while Schull doubled, and Katie Hybl, Hoffman, Zimmerman and Moon each singled.

The Rayders were scheduled to travel to Boyne City on Tuesday, April 19 and host Harbor Springs on Thursday, April 21, weather permitting.

BASEBALL

Rayders drop conference opening double-header

On Tuesday, April 13, the Rayders committed nine errors leading to six unearned runs en route to dropping their Lake Michigan Conference opening doubleheader to Kalkaska, 5-4 and 10-5.

"I was happy with the way we battled back and with the pitching of Andrew Potter and Coby Herriman," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "But our defense put us in big holes in both games."

Potter struck out five and walked one over 4 1-3 innings in taking the loss in the opener.

Herriman singled, doubled and drove in two runs to lead the Rayders at the plate, while Potter doubled. Jordan Farmer also had a suicide squeeze bunt to bring in a run for Charlevoix.

The Rayders trailed 3-0 early, then cut their deficit to 3-2. Kalkaska answered with a pair of runs in the fifth to extend its lead to 5-2, and the Rayders came back with two more runs in the bottom of the inning to draw within 5-4. The Rayders stranded a runner at third base in both the fifth and sixth innings.

Herriman allowed four hits and struck out six in taking the loss in the nightcap.

Potter singled, doubled and drove in two runs to lead the Rayder hitters, while Myles Kerr added a two run double and Herriman had an RBI single.

River Gauthier finished with five stolen bases on day for Charlevoix, 0-4.

"We just made too many errors to compete," Telgenhoff said of the games against Kalkaska. "They are one of the best teams in the league and you can't give them that many chances. I was happy with the way we came back in both games, but we need to start winning those games."

The coach added, "Coby Herriman and Andrew Potter are both off to great starts, leading our team at the plate and on the mound."

The Rayders were scheduled to play at Boyne City on Tuesday, April 19 and host Harbor Springs at home on Thursday, April 21, weather permitting.

JV falls 6-2, 5-0

The Rayder junior varsity baseball team dropped their season-opening doubleheader to Kalkaska on Tuesday.

Shane Sutherland had two hits including a double and drove in a run to lead the Rayders at the plate, while Luke Klinger and J.J. Bottomley each doubled.

Sutherland started and struck out four for the Rayders in the opener, while Justin Pearl relieved and fanned one. Bottomley was the Rayder pitcher in the nightcap.

Rayder boys win division at invitational meet

For Charlevoix, Buday won the 1600 in 4:59 and the 3200 in 11:01. He also ran a leg on the Rayders' winning 3,200 relay team, which included John Shea, Plude and Will Larsen. They combined to finish in 8:42.

Plude won the long jump at 18-11 1/2; and the 400, 56.0. Shea, Matt Klooster, John Boss and Jared Reibel combined to win the 400 relay in 48.0.

Tony Faulk was second in the pole vault and he ran a leg on the Rayders' 800 relay team, which also placed second. Klooster, Larsen and Shea joined Faulk in the event. Shutler also placed second in the high jump, and teammate Cam Canupp was second in the discus.

Shutler had a pair of thirds, those coming in the 110 hurdles and the 300 hurdles, while Klooster was third in the 200, and Faulk was third in the shot put.

The Charlevoix girls captured three firsts. Molly Jeakle won the 800 in 2:38.6, Caroline Boss won the 200 in 28.37, and those two combined with Stirling Witthoeft and Annie Dipert to win the 1600 relay in 4:45.

Dipert, Jeakle, Olivia Certa and Hilary Way teamed up to place second in the 3200 relay.

The Petoskey High School girls' track team to a first-place finish in the large-school division of the meet while the Petoskey boys finished second in the large school division behind host Cadillac.

Petoskey coaches noted that weather conditions during the meet were a nasty combination of cold temperatures and strong winds coming of Lake Cadillac.

The eight team meet the Rayders were slated to compete in on Monday in East Jordan was cancelled because of the weather. The track team's next scheduled meet is at 4 p.m. on Thursday, April 21 at Harbor Springs, weather permitting.

SOCCER

Rayders rebound from loss

KALKASKSA — Hallie Bills scored on a cross from Taylor Smith 37 seconds into the game Monday and Charlevoix rolled past Kalkaska, 8-0, in a Lake Michigan Conference soccer match.

The Rayders, who led 6-0 at halftime, improved to 1-1 overall and in the league.

Smith and Abbey Barnes scored two goals apiece, while Hannah Herboldsheimer, Anna Way and freshman Kaitlyn Hinkley added one each. Hannah Doan, Way, Hinkley and Katie Mays each had an assist.

On Thursday, the Rayders opened their conference season with a 2-0 loss to Grayling.

The Rayders outshot the Vikings, 25-7, with 19 of those shots coming in the second half.

"We had great opportunities, set up by our new midfielder, Abby Barnes," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "We just could not finish."

The Rayders play host to the Traverse City Liberty on Wednesday, April 20, and to Marquette on Friday, April 22. The match against the Liberty is a conference contest.

Blood drives — Every day of every week, people need blood for emergency and ongoing medical care. It's a need that doesn't take a break, regardless of the season. About 39,000 blood donations are needed daily by hospital patients undergoing treatment for serious diseases like cancer and sickle cell, for surgery, and for trauma and burn care. The challenge, Red Cross officials say, is that while blood needs are constant, blood donors sometimes take a break, particularly during peak travel times like early spring. Blood donors who would otherwise give, may wait until later to make and keep an appointment. In an effort to help increase donor turnout, the Red Cross has partnered with Meijer to offer every person who comes out to donate, the chance to win free groceries ($250 value). In addition, everyone who attempts to donate in April will receive a free sample of Pacific Shaving Company's shaving oil and a chance to win a Mother's Day Out package ($125 value) at a local salon and spa. In May, everyone who comes out to donate has a chance to win a $125 gift card to Lowe's for dad as part of a "Dad's to-do List" promotion.
To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-REDCROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

Picnic plans still brewing

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Plans are moving forward among Charlevoix leaders to add a one-day summer picnic-themed event to the lineup of Charlevoix's many festivals and events this year.

Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority director Keith Carey updated the authority's board on the progress he and officials with the Charlevoix Convention and Visitor's Bureau are making on plans for the Great American Picnic, slated to take place in East Park on July 2. The event will have three main features: a micro-brew sampling area, a barbecue contest and entertainment in the form of several musical groups that will perform throughout the day.

In February, while seeking approval from the city council for the festival, Carey said the idea of the festival is to try to capitalize on some of the Fourth of July-driven business in the area without trying to directly compete with the many other Independence Day celebrations in neighboring communities.

At the time of the council's approval, Carey had anticipated that, because the authority's coffers are so bare this year, its financial support of the event would be limited to about $2,000 — or the equivalent of one performance in its concert in the park series.

Carey

However at Monday's authority board meeting Carey sought and was given permission to spend some additional money on hiring an event coordinator who has extensive experience in organizing events such as the picnic.

Carey explained that Michigan's complex liquor laws have made planning the beer-tasting portion of the event difficult and the coordinator with whom he's been in contact has extensive experience specifically with micro-brew events.

He said the same person may also lend some help in coordinating the barbecue contest portion of the event — especially in working out details on what, if any of the barbecue will be offered to those in attendance. The coordinator will also help promote the event, Carey said.

The added money to pay for those services will come from approximately $1,540 the authority will save through changes in promotional materials to be placed in the Charlevoix Visitor's Guide and $1,600 that it will not have to pay for the Monday Movies by the Marina series because Huntington Bank has again agreed to sponsor the series.

Carey said the general plan, as approved by the city council calls for about three-quarters of East Park to be fenced off for the event. Those entering would receive an armband indicating if they are over 21. Tickets would be sold to the micro brew portion of the event. Plans call for an area nonprofit organization and its volunteers have a major role in staffing the event.

Carey said his vision for the music portion of the event is to have local talent make up the first few time slots with hopes of bringing in a bigger act for the final slot of the day.

In other business, the authority's board approved a measure to again lease office space in its Bridge Park building to Keweenaw Excursion, which will be starting its third season operating from the dock that was formerly home to the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Acacia. Last fall the city approved a new lease for the dock space with the tour boat company which allowed the company to keep its vessel, the Keweenaw Star, docked there through the winter. The company plans to begin operating for the season in mid-May, according to its website.

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Beaver Island, it appears, will likely remain the only location in Charlevoix County that will be home to a piece of one of the darkest days in U.S. history.

In December, Charlevoix city officials learned that the city's bid to receive a chunk of steel salvaged from the wreckage of the World Trade Center following the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks to use as a memorial was unsuccessful.

In October the Charlevoix City Council voted to take St. Marys Cement up on its offer to transport a piece of steel to Charlevoix as part

Northwest Academy band members fare well at festival

Students from Northwest Academy Intermediate and Advanced Bands recently attended the second annual Michigan Charter School and Solo Ensemble Festival. Students receiving Superior Ratings or a Division I Blue Medal were: Trumpet Solos, Graham Kroon and Dustin Prevo; Clarinet Solo, Beth Gohs; Woodwind Duet, Ivy Rouch and Rena Knowitzke; Cello, Johnathan Sherwood; trombone, Aaron Schmidt; saxaphone quartet, Madalyn May, Meredith May, Elizabeth Hodgson, and Abigail Kroon. Students receiving an Excellent Rating or a Division II Red Medal were: Guitar solo, Nicholas Currier and John James Witherspoon, saxaphone quartet, Meredith May, Hannah Davis, Parker Ebert, and John James Witherspoon

"These students worked hard to achieve the high level of musicianship that they all reached," band director and school administrator Gary Stutzman said. "Both the intermediate and advanced bands have shown tremendous improvement during the time that the students have worked to improve their individual performance levels as they have prepared their individual and group presentations for this year's festival. Our program is stronger today because of the great deal of effort that was put forth by each student."

NO STEEL

of a program whereby the New York Port Authority was accepting applications from municipalities and other nonprofit organizations who would like to have an artifact from the World Trade Center site.

It turns out, Charlevoix Fire Chief Paul Ivan said, demand for the artifacts far outpaced the supply.

In fact, only three cities in Michigan received the steel section salvaged from the World Trade Center.

Earlier this month the Grand Traverse Metro Fire Department received one of the Michigan-bound artifacts. That piece is slated to eventually be placed on display at the department's headquarters at Three Mile Road and Parsons Road. On Friday, another section arrived in Frankenmuth to be displayed outside that community's fire station. The third section went to North Farmington High School and it will be placed in a garden at the school.

In October, the city council had approved a plan to place the steel section, estimated at about half the size of a standard office desk, on the lawn on State Street in front of city hall.

Ivan said the section that was placed as a memorial on Beaver Island in 2004 was obtained through different avenues than this most recent program.

Kiwanis essay contest namesake embodied its values

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Merle Vandenberg was an active citizen who was an excellent teacher, mentor, husband, father and grandfather. He quickly made himself available whenever asked to participate in activities that would improve the life of a child or young adult. Merle Vandenberg or "Mr. V" as he was fondly referred to by his students always put his best foot forward which was usually a recently shined wing tip. Students would remark that he was the only substitute teacher who arrived in a suit and tie. He was dressed to focus conscientiously on work and expected the same from his students.

Merle was active in the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club. He led the organization as its president and lieutenant governor. Never one to shy away from a challenge, he also assisted with the Volunteers in Probation Program at the Charlevoix County Probate Court, matching volunteers to spend time with a victim by lending them a kind and listening ear. He made himself available for children in the foster care system by providing them with needed math tutoring often helping them to attain knowledge surpassing their grade level. When the Alano Club was looking for a mentor it was Merle who volunteered, providing guidance and role modeling for young men who are still successful and living in the area today.

This is the man after whom the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club named their nonprofit essay contest. The Vandenberg Essay Contest encourages fifth graders to research area organizations that do so much to help others — something very much akin to "Mr. V" himself. If Merle was alive today, he would be embarrassed by all the attention but proud of what the fifth graders accomplished. At the award ceremony each year, his presence is felt among his fellow Kiwanis members. Tall in stature, loud in voice, dressed for the occasion, he wouldn't miss any of the celebration handed out to the kids. These groups of students are much too young to appreciate who the contest is named after but they are not too young to understand the concept of giving and helping others.

I am proud to say I am also a member of this dedicated group. I was asked to be part of this service club by my former boss, Vane Smith. It was historical when I joined in 1986, only because of my gender. I was the second woman inducted into this former all men's group. This was an era when sap was still collected in steel buckets that hung from the sugar maple trees all around town. Club members taught me how to drive the old truck and trailer. (Maybe that was part of my initiation). My trouble finding the gears occasionally would cause sap to teasingly reach the rims of the large metal containers and then sap would find its way to the pavement. It didn't take long for my fellow members to figure out I did better at foraging through the snow drifts to collect the sweet stuff. I've learned a lot from the members and maybe they've learned a little bit more about women from me. The networking, camaraderie and focus on youth bring like-minded individuals together and energize us to assist, lead, and organize locally and internationally. The club is still strong today in part thanks to Merle who proudly sported his red shirt with the Kiwanis logo to every meeting and of course completed his ensemble with his recently shined wing tips. Thank you "Mr. V" for inspiring us all.

United Way seeks help with Day of Caring planning

The Day of Caring committee and Char-Em United Way has started planning this year's event. Day of Caring will be Thursday, Sept. 15 in honor of the National Day of Service and Remembrance on Sept. 11. The one-day event is an opportunity for people in the community to get involved and volunteer their time to complete projects that area non-profits and organizations just don't have the staff, funds or time to complete without help.

Volunteers are matched with nonprofits, schools, and government agencies from all over Charlevoix and Emmet counties during Day of Caring. With such a large geographical area, help is needed to ensure a successful event for all who are involved. The committee organizing the event is seeking new members to assist with planning from the Boyne City, East Jordan, and northern Emmet County areas.

The committee will meet monthly from April through September sharing skills and ideas to organize and promote Day of Caring. Last year the committee helped bring 690 volunteers together with 48 projects.

If you would like to join the Day of Caring planning committee or have ideas to share, contact Char-Em United Way at (231) 487-1006, info@charemunitedway.org or www.charemunitedway.org.

LETTER to the editor

Old street signs could generate revenue

Editor:

I was sad to read bout the changing of the classic Charlevoix street signs, but understand that visual advantages to new ones are reasonable. With time comes change, and I can store the old signs in my memory bank along with all my other treasured Charlevoix memories.

However, it dawns on me that there is a possibility for Charlevoix to profit from the discarded signs. Perhaps the public would be interested in purchasing signs for nostalgic reasons. This could be done in an auction format or perhaps offered for sale during this year's Venetian Festival. Even a mailing identifying which signs are available might arouse interest and bring in revenue.

Just thought I would share this idea with Charlevoix the Beautiful. I, for one, would enjoy having one or two signs to share with future generations. A memory is worth a thousand words and could give Charlevoix's revenue a boost.

Sally Winter
Winnetka, Ill.

Editor's note: Charlevoix city officials are already working on a plan to make the old signs available to residents when they are taken down, although details have not yet been finalized.

A royal reception for 'Real People'

Unable to catch a flight across "the pond" for the royal wedding of Prince William to Kate Middleton on Friday? Come to your own local castle to celebrate instead.

Real People Media, a nonprofit organization, is hosting "Reception for the Commoners" at Castle Farms in Charlevoix. The event is a fundraiser for Real People Media, which is based in Charlevoix, and teaches people how to use digital media to tell their stories. Director Rebecca Glotfelty says the idea for the fundraiser came from volunteers Molly Tate and Alice Harvey.

"It was such a fun idea — it goes with our tagline: Giving everyone a voice," Glotfelty said.

The reception will include traditional British wedding fare, provided by Blackbird Gardens, a cash bar with wine from Black Star Farms and local beer from Short's Brewery. A variety of local musicians are donating their time for the event. Dwain Martin, Jetty Rae, the Charlevoix Sax Quartet, Northwest Academy, Castle Brass, Jazzin' It Up with Steve Little, and Gary Stutzman and Pine River Jazz will all be performing. The evening will feature costume and royal look-alike contests, wedding cake and broadcast of the wedding on the big screen. Tickets are $30, and can be purchased online at realpeoplemedia.org, or at Revolution Bike, Picture This, Elements, and Round Lake Bookstore in Charlevoix.

All proceeds will benefit Real People Media, which provides workshops for both children and adults to teach them the necessary skills to use digital media to tell their stories. Workshop topics include animation, using digital media to preserve local history and folklore, community storytelling and documentary interview. For more information, contact Real People Media at (231) 838-6460.

17th Annual breast cancer run/walk to take place May 7

The 17th Annual Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer 5K Walk/Run will take place on May 7 starting from East Park in Charlevoix.

The event honors two local women: Sue DeYoung, a young mother of four children who died in 1992, and Judy Edger, who was a driving force behind this event until her death in March 1999. Monies raised this year will go to the Charlevoix County's Circle of Strength Foundation, to provide mammograms for women in need, and the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, to be used for the free cervical screening program for Charlevoix County residents.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. and the walk and run begin at 9 a.m. Individual walkers, runners and teams can collect "pledges" for participating in the walk, or sponsor themselves with a one-time donation. All entries with $25 or more in donations will receive a commemorative t-shirt. Participant and sponsor forms are available at walkruncure.weebly.com and also at local chambers of commerce, libraries, and fitness centers.

Other ways to participate in the event include volunteering to assist on the day of the walk or by simply making a contribution to the fund.

Those wishing to volunteer should call event co-chair Denise Sadison at (231) 675-5280 for more information and those wishing to make a contribution may do so online at www.c3f.org/misc/misc-makeagift.htm (make sure to note Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund.)

Corporations and individuals can also direct their contributions to the endowment portion of the Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund. By electing to do this, the donor is eligible for a 50% tax credit as well as a charitable deduction on their federal tax form for those who itemize deductions.

Charlevoix Women's Circle (formerly Kappa Sigma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi) is in the sixth year of helping with the walk and the fifth year of running the walk. All monies raised stay in Charlevoix County, administered through the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

LOOKING BACK…

Editor's note: This school year marks the 50th anniversary of the last year Charlevoix High School occupied the building on Mason Street. To commemorate the milestone, over the next several months, the Courier will publish photos taken in the spring of 1961 by well-known photographer Bob Miles. The photos, and accompanying information are provided by Miles' son and Historical Society museum co-director David Miles.

Latin teacher Laura Courtade, (right) instructs Ben Cunningham and an unidentified student on the location of where the language began in Italy. Anyone who might be able to help with the name of the unidentified student may call Miles at (231) 547-0373.

Historical society to present program on channel bridges

Since around 1859, Charlevoix's channel that leads from Round Lake to Lake Michigan has been crossed by a total of six different bridges. They have been the town's fulcrum, its center of attraction, the focal point around which the town revolves. The stories that relate their construction and history range from comic to heartbreaking, catastrophic to mundane, with jaw-dropping statistics along the way. Over the course of their existence, Charlevoix's bridges have long become, for various reasons, both the most loved and loathed objects in town.

The Charlevoix Historical Society will presenting an illustrated program on the history of the bridges at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, May 3, at the Depot located next to Depot Beach. It will be given by David L. Miles, co-director of the society's Harsha House Museum as an introduction to the society's fourth historical publication, "Charlevoix's Channel Bridges," that will be available in the museum store by summer.

Light refreshments will be served. There will be no admission charge, but supportive donations always appreciated. Call (231) 547 0373 for further information.

OBITUARIES

John Binkley Hodge: Jan. 10, 1918 - April 13, 2011

Hodge

John Binkley Hodge passed away peacefully on April 13, 2011, at his winter home in Dade City, Fla. He was 93 years old.

He leaves his wife of 26 years, Dolores "Dee" Hodge, of East Jordan, as well as four children, Jim Hodge (Susan) of Pekin, Ill., Jean Van Dam (Steve) of Boyne City, Jill Matchinski of Petoskey, and Jack Hodge (Gaye) of Charlevoix, as well as eight grandchildren and two great grandchildren. John was preceded in death by his daughter, Polly Jane Hodge of Harbor Springs, as well as sisters, Mary Frances Black of Colorado, Alice Lane of Oklahoma, and Polly Louthan Ziesler of Oregon.

John's story is one of a life well lived. John was known for his unique stories, broad smile, keen sense of humor, and the ability to make each person he spoke with feel like they were the most important person in the world to him.

He was born on Jan. 10, 1918, in Oklahoma City, Okla. His character was formed during the Great Depression and the Dust Bowl. His father left the family early in his life and his beloved mother, Mabel Malpass from East Jordan, raised John and his three sisters by herself during some of the most trying times in our history. His overriding memories of youth have to do with being hungry and he began working at a grocery store at a very early age simply for food for his family. John was paid often in the form of leftover meat and produce that was otherwise unsalable. In 1927, the family traveled in a Model T from Oklahoma to East Jordan to help Mabel's family harvest cherries. With no suspension and terrible roads, the trip took two weeks but it introduced him to his extended Malpass family.

John worked his way through college the hard way. He spent two years at Oklahoma University before transferring and earning a bachelor's degree in forestry from Michigan State University. After college, he volunteered for the Army Air Force and completed three years in World War II, much of that in the South Pacific.

He married Jacqueline (Haff) Hodge of Coffeyville, Kan., in 1945 and started a family of five children shortly thereafter. The pull of East Jordan was great so he purchased a 4,000-tree cherry orchard there which he operated for 10 years while also earning an additional degree in agriculture and a master's in resource development from MSU.

Work was always a labor of love for John. In 1954, he was offered a position to start an agriculture program at Harbor Springs High School and this began his love for the city that would be his home for the next 27 years. In 1957, he had the foresight, despite a limited salary, to purchase a house on the bluff in Harbor Springs where he could enjoy what he considered the most beautiful view in the world.

Michigan State would become an even larger part of his life as an opportunity came to work for MSU's Cooperative Extension service in 1956 as a county agent and later as the extension supervisor for the north region covering 30 counties in Northern Lower Michigan. He won numerous awards including the Distinguished Service Award from the National Association of Agricultural Agents. He traveled extensively in his job and his sense of humor plus upbringing with no running water, led him to evolve a unique presentation about outhouses. He took pictures of all manner of structures throughout his travels and created a slide show filled with humorous anecdotes. He gave this talk to thousands of people throughout the Midwest and became known far and wide for the "Hodge-Podge Outhouse Program."

Never one to sit around and waste time, John purchased a piece of property from his mother's family on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix and built a cottage for the family. He has spent the better part of every summer there since it was built in 1963.

John had real concerns for the pace of development in Northern Michigan and spent a great deal of his time working with county and township officials on planning and zoning issues during the incredible boom times, including writing many of the first zoning ordinances in the north. He also sat on the Northern Great Lakes Resource Development Commission, a regional committee that covered 119 northern counties in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

John was known for his love of trees. He owned a number of woodlots in his lifetime and loved to spend time amongst the big timber. In retirement, he and Dee began traveling to Florida for the winter and established residence in a community with a small nine-hole golf course that allowed him free reign to plant trees to his heart's content. He spent his last 20 years transforming the course from a flat little piece of property with just a few stands of pines, to a beautiful palm tree paradise. He planted his last tree not three weeks before his death and played golf up to two weeks before he passed away.

A memorial service will take place at 3 p.m. Saturday, May 14, at the First Presbyterian Church of East Jordan. Memorial contributions can be made to the Little Traverse Conservancy in Harbor Springs.

Christy James Monte: April 22, 2011

Rayder boys win Ram Scram meet

Girls finish third, several meet records set

HARBOR SPRINGS Eric Buday had a hand in four first places Thursday, leading Charlevoix to victory in the boys' portion of the annual Ram Scram track and field meet at Harbor Springs' Reynolds Field.

The Rayders finished with 137 points, followed by host Harbor Springs, 103; Sault Ste. Marie, 85; and Boyne City, 74.

Selena Meser set two meet records and won three events in leading Sault Ste. Marie to first place in the girls' portion of the event. The Blue Devils finished with 131 points, followed by Harbor, 121, Charlevoix, 110; and Boyne City, 76.

A total six meet records were set on the cold but clear day. Meser set records in both the 100-meter hurdles, 16.14 seconds; and the 300 hurdles, 47.09, while Julien Flynn of St. Basil's (Ontario) established a girls' 1,600-meter record in 5 minutes, 35.40 seconds. Ben Katajamaki of White Pines (Ontario) set a meet record in the long jump, winning at 40 feet, 3 1/2 inches. The long jump is tabulated by taking two jumps per athlete.

Charlevoix set two meet records. The Rayders' Jenna Way, Allison Hankins, Marc Durkee and Tony Fulk combined to win the shot put relay in 52.56 seconds, while teammates Molly Jeakle, Andrew Plude, Caroline Boss and Buday combined to win the 1,600 co-ed relay in a meet-record 3:50.70.

Buday also placed first in the boys' 800, 2:06.14; the boys' 1600, 4:29.96; and ran a leg on the Rayders' winning 3,200 co-ed relay. Plude, Annie Dipert and Jeakle joined Buday in that relay. They finished in 9:20.27.

Harbor Springs' Jay Lechner the shot put at 87-8; and Patrick Frank won the boys' 400 in 53.26.

"I was very pleased for our performance," Charlevoix coach Ken Plude said. "The kids were anxious to get a meet in and it was a good meet for us."

The meet was also the first of the season for the host Rams. Harbor coach Emily Kloss grabbed a shovel in the morning to clear off several inches of snow near the field events.

"It was good just to finally get a meet in," Kloss said. "All things considered, I was pretty happy with how we did and now we see what we can work on and build on."

Snow luck in Boyne

Rayders continue early season struggles in cold, snowy 9-1 loss

BOYNE CITY Kolbi Shumaker struck out seven, walked three and allowed two hits as the Boyne City High School baseball team posted a 9-1 Lake Michigan Conference victory over Charlevoix Tuesday, April 19 on a day more suited for a playoff football game than baseball.

Shumaker singled and doubled and Gage Burt tripled to lead the Ramblers at the plate in a game played in falling snow and frigid temperatures. James O'Brien, Mike Evans, Chris Myers and Austin Gardner added a hit apiece for Boyne, which improved to 3-1-1.

Shumaker smacked a two-run double and O'Brien tipped a bases-loaded single to drive in two runs, highlighting a six run second inning for Boyne.

The game was called after four innings because of the weather.

For Charlevoix, which is 0-5 overall, 0-3 league, Alex Waha had an RBI single and Jordan Farmer singled.

JJ Bottomley (four strikeouts) and Logan Eckhard (two) did the pitching for Charlevoix. Luke Klinger had the Rayders' lone hit.

The varsity Rayders' home game against Harbor Springs on Thursday was called off because of the weather. That game has been rescheduled for 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 17. The Rayders were slated to play at Grayling on Tuesday, April 26 and then are scheduled to host to Sutton Bay on Friday, April 29; Harbor Light Christian on Monday, May 2 and East Jordan on Tuesday, May 3. Game times are all 4:30 p.m.

GOLF

STEVE FOLEY
NEWS-REVIEW SPORTS WRITER

Although winter, which has been reluctant to go away this spring, is typically a down time of the year for most Michigan golf course operators, it's was a pretty good winter for Charlevoix Golf and Country Club owner and general manager Dave Mocini.

In mid-February, Mocini was named the Michigan PGA Section Golf Professional of the Year for 2011, as voted on by the Michigan PGA Section and Chapters.

Mocini, 56, was awarded by the Michigan PGA for demonstrating outstanding qualities of leadership, strong moral character, maintaining a substantial record of service to the association and game of golf, and was recognized as a well-regarded and model PGA golf professional.

"It's certainly nice to receive and it was totally unexpected," Mocini said. "As I told my friend, typically when you receive an award such as this, it means you're either passed away, or you're just getting older."

Mocini, who last summer hosted the Michigan PGA Senior Championship, began his golf professional career in 1981 at Saugatuck before moving up to True North of Harbor Springs in 2004. In 2009, Mocini took over at the Charlevoix Golf and Country Club.

"I've been actively involved for 30 years," Mocini said. "I've just worked my way into the PGA and stayed active in the chapters."

Mocini, who was nominated by the Michigan PGA Northern Chapter (president Ian Ziska, vice president Mike Cote, secretary Shaun Bezilla, and tournament chair Harry Dixon), went through an interview process along with two or three other candidates prior to being selected.

"I knew it was a possibility, but it was a very nice surprise," Mocini said.

A first-time winner of the award, Mocini said the Michigan PGA Section Golf Professional of the Year is typically awarded to an individual who's been heavily involved and active in the game for at least 10-15 years.

"Just to get it is very special," Mocini said. "I can't tell you to number of people I've met over the years through this association and through the industry. Now, I'm able to go to places throughout the country because of my service with the Michigan PGA and the business."

Mocini, one of 14 members of the PGA National Board of Directors, served as an on-course announcer at the 91st PGA Championship in Chaska, Minnesota, in 2009, and in 2010 was at the 92nd PGA Championship at Whistling Straits in Kohler, Wisconsin again as an announcer.

"It's really a relationship sport," Mocini said. "You are truly developing relationships and golf is not always about the score, but more so about the great day you've had and spent time with someone and enjoying the surroundings."

Along with Mocini, Little Traverse Bay Golf Club professional John Paul Westbrook was also awarded as the 2011 PGA Merchandiser of the Year for public golf facilities by the Michigan PGA Section and the PGA of America.

Health and fitness expo coming to college

"For the Health of It — a Health and Fitness Expo" will take place from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. on Saturday, April 30 at North Central Michigan College student center gymnasium in Petoskey and will provide Northwest Michigan consumers with an opportunity to learn more about health and fitness resources available locally.

There is no charge for admission.

The event, organized by the Petoskey News-Review, features local interventional cardiologist Dr. Louis Cannon who will deliver the keynote address entitled "Dr. Cannon's Keys to Longevity" at noon that day.

News-Review sales leader, Anne McDevitt expects that more than 50 vendors will be available to offer the latest health and fitness information.

Cannon

"There is definite interest from consumers to keep up on the latest that the healthcare industry has to offer. We planned this expo to be available and of interest to all age groups, so we hope we will get many to come out and learn about what is new in healthcare," McDevitt said.

Fitness demonstrations will be offered during the expo as well as tips on healthy eating, massage therapy, exercise classes, exercise facilities, yoga, sleep disorders, weight management and much more.

Lunch items furnished by Julianne Tomatoes will be available for sale during the expo. For additional information about the event, contact McDevitt at (231) 439-9396 or amcdevitt@petoskeynews.com.

Kiwanis Club essay contest winners

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club recently recognized the winners of its annual Vandenberg Essay Contest with an award ceremony which took place on April 19 at the Charlevoix Public Library.

The contest is named in honor of the late Merle Vandeberg, who was a Kiwanis member known for his work with many area non-profit organizations, especially those that serve youth in the community.

Students in the fifth grade were asked to write an essay about a non-profit in which they are interested in or in which they may have had some personal experience. The contest drew entries from 71 students.

The committee of five Kiwanis members who reviewed the essays were originally charged with selecting was to four winning essays, but the group was so pleased with the entries, that they ended up choosing six winning essays.

For their efforts, five of the students received a $50 check to present to the non-profit organization about which they wrote. One essay was selected as the overall winner and that student received a check for $100 to present to the writer's subject non-profit organization. As an added surprise, Huntington Bank also presented each winning student with a check for $25.

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club organized the event with the help of sponsors who provided gift certificates and awards including: Ace Hardware, Charlevoix State Bank, The Community Shopper, Round Lake Bookstore, the Bergmann Center AKtion Club, The First Congregational Church, Carolyn Navarre, Dave and Cynthia Garland and Roger and Cynthia Postmus

Sarah Martin from Charlevoix Middle School wrote about Hospice of Northwest Michigan.

"This charity is so amazing! They don't just help the person that is dying they help the family too. When my grandma was dying they came to her house so she would feel comfortable. The nurse she had was wonderful. She was always so helpful she encouraged my family to say it's alright and let go. She made us realize my grandma had a long happy life. Just imagine how hard that job would be."

Grace Ochs from Charlevoix Middle School wrote her essay about Girls Scouts of Michigan Shore to Shore.

"The Girls Scouts want to build courage, confidence, and character in girls of all ages who they hope will make the world a better place. They also want to help the world enjoy yummilicious cookies. They really are with recycling and reusing. They work on a lot of fun stuff to keep the girls and the earth healthy and teach you a lot of information all while in a fun environment."

Kenzi Cunningham from Charlevoix Middle School wrote her essay about the Charlevoix County Humane Society

"The Humane Society takes in animals people have neglected, animals that people have to give up and stray animals. They also try to return the animals to their owners or find them a new home. The Humane Society takes animals in that people can't keep any more and take care of anymore and the owners will know their animals are in a safe place."

"Habitat for Humanity needs money. Houses don't magically appear, it takes money for wood, hammers, nails everything. Everybody should live in a decent home with food, water and a bed. Habitat for Humanity is a hard working organization. For so many years they have helped families all around the world. Let's let everyone live in a safe home."

Tucker Hilligan of Charlevoix Middle School wrote about B.A.S.E.S.

"B.A.S.E.S. helps people stop doing drugs. It is place where people on drugs can leave a message and a staff member can listen to the message and see if that person is having trouble with something. The life skills program focuses on skill building. Drug testing tells the parents if their children are on drugs."

And Grand Prize winner for best overall went to Naomi Batdorff from Charlevoix Middle School for her essay about the American Red Cross.

"Hundreds of people die due to disasters each year. The American Red Cross tries to prevent deaths. They deserve the money because they help people around the world providing needed resources like blood, medical assistance and shelter. They give blood to sick children. They have blood drives in Charlevoix but only three out of one hundred people give blood. When the earthquake in Haiti happened I wanted to help but didn't know how. I hated sitting on the couch while people were dying and needed help. If I win the money I'll have done something to help."

State law requires that citizens be informed of certain governmental activity through paid public notices like the ones in this newspaper.

It's one way to make government accountable to the people.

Nearly two-thirds of active Michigan voters* would be concerned if government placed these notices on Web sites because important information could be concealed from the public.

So, what's it worth to you to be able to pick up this newspaper and find out what's going on in your town, your county, or your local schools?

This newspaper supports your right to know.

Blood drives — Every day of every week, people need blood for emergency and ongoing medical care. It's a need that doesn't take a break, regardless of the season. About 39,000 blood donations are needed daily by hospital patients undergoing treatment for serious diseases like cancer and sickle cell, for surgery, and for trauma and burn care. The challenge, Red Cross officials say, is that while blood needs are constant, blood donors sometimes take a break, particularly during peak travel times like early spring. Blood donors who would otherwise give, may wait until later to make and keep an appointment. In an effort to help increase donor turnout, the Red Cross has partnered with Meijer to offer every person who comes out to donate, the chance to win free groceries ($250 value). In addition, everyone who attempts to donate in April will receive a free sample of Pacific Shaving Company's shaving oil and a chance to win a Mother's Day Out package ($125 value) at a local salon and spa. In May, everyone who comes out to donate has a chance to win a $125 gift card to Lowe's for dad as part of a "Dad's to-do List" promotion.

To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-RED-CROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Former electric employee sues city over firing

Russell Rotta claims he was dismissed in violation of Whistleblower Protection Act

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

A former city of Charlevoix electric department employee is suing the city and the head of its electric department claiming he was fired earlier this year in retaliation for filing a complaint with the Michigan Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

On April 12, Russell M. Rotta filed a lawsuit in Charlevoix County's 33rd Circuit Court naming the city of Charlevoix and electrical department head Donald Swem as defendants in a case claiming Rotta was wrongfully terminated under the terms of the state's Whistleblower Protection Act.

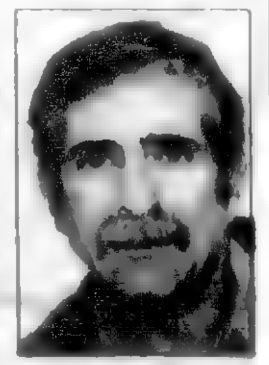
In the suit, Rotta claims he had been employed by the city since 2008 as a journeyman electrical lineman. Rotta claims in the suit that around July of 2010 he called the Michigan Occupation Safety and Health Administration to report workplace safety violations by the city and/or Swem.

Specifically, according to the suit, Rotta "reported that defendants were violating safety laws, rules and/or regulations by requiring employees to work on 3-phase, 7,200 volt circuits without qualified assistance on the ground; by requiring employees to work alone on 3-phase, 7,200 volt circuits; and by allowing improperly, inadequately trained employees to perform electrical work."

Rotta goes on to claim that "As a direct and proximate result of (Rotta's complaint to the state), defendants retaliated against (Rotta) by attempting to create a hostile work environment for (Rotta) and taking adverse employment action by terminating (Rotta) on or about Jan. 17, 2011, in violation of applicable law, including the (Whistleblower Protection Act).

In the suit Rotta claims he has suffered wrongful termination, damages to his reputation and standing in the community, mental, emotional and physical damages, as well as lost earnings, fringe and seniority benefits, and the enjoyment of the ordinary pleasures of everyday life, including the right to pursue gainful occupation of choice.

He seeks an amount in excess of $25,000 in compensatory damages, an amount in excess of $25,000 in exemplary (punitive) damages, a court order restoring him to his position with the city, and back pay and compensation for lost benefits from the date of his termination.



Swem

As of Friday, the city had not yet filed its answer to the lawsuit.

However, city manager Rob Straebel confirmed that Rotta did file a complaint with the Michigan Occupational Safety and Health Administration. Straebel added that the state agency conducted an investigation into Rotta's complaint and neither found any violations nor issued any citations to the city.

Straebel, who said he has been instructed by the city's attorney in the matter not to comment on the specifics of the case, also added the following statement about the Park place?

Hayes Township considers Camp Sea-Gull purchase

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

It's a long shot, but a very tentative idea to turn the site of a long-time summer camp on the north shore of Lake Charlevoix into a Hayes Township park is raising the eyebrows of township officials and some residents.

On Wednesday, April 27, the Hayes Township Board of Trustees conducted an informational meeting to learn more about the possibility of the township applying for a grant from the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund to purchase the 23 acre Camp Sea-Gull property and turn it into a park with amenities such as a boat launch ramp, swimming beach and perhaps other recreational facilities.

Earlier this year, members of the Schulman family who now own the all-girls camp that their parents established on the site some 55 years ago, announced they were closing the camp so family members could pursue other endeavors.

The camp property, with its 1,450 feet of Lake Charlevoix shoreline is currently listed for sale at $6.5 million. In February, Camp Sea-Gull co owner Bill Schulman told the Courier that the family would most like to see someone buy the property and continue to operate it as a camp. But, he noted, the property is zone agricultural and many uses are possible for it.

Recently, however, the idea of the township purchasing the property for a park has floated to the surface, prompting last week's informational meeting.

Ty Ratliff, a property protection specialist with the Little Traverse Conservancy was at the meeting to provide information on the grant application process.

The upshot of the meeting: There are many questions to answer before the township can even consider applying for the grant.

The first, and for now the most important of those questions is whether or not the Schulman family is interested in pursuing the sale to the township.

Bill Schulman, who was among the roughly two dozen people who attended the informational meeting, said the family may be interested in working with the township, but they still have many things to discuss before reaching a decision.

Ratliff, who said the conservancy would be willing to assist Hayes Township in applying for the grant, explained that pursuing project would involve some risk for both the Shulmans and the township.

First there's the time frame. Ratliff explained that trust fund officials, who previously accepted applications twice per year, now accept them only once annually — by April 1. That means the soonest the township could apply for the grant would be April 1, 2012, with an answer likely to come sometime in December. That means the sellers would have to wait more than 18 months to find out if the township will be approved for the grant to buy the property.

Then there's the uncertainty over what the price for the property will be. Ratliff explained that when applying for the grant, which requires a 25 percent local match, the township would have to make its best guess as to the selling price. However, the actual price that the state will authorize to pay for the parcel isn't determined until after the grant is approved. He noted that the price is determined by the board which oversees the trust fund and based two state-approved appraisers' opinions on the property's "highest economic value."

That figure could be close or vary widely from the amount that the township included in its grant request and what the seller is seeking.

A best-case scenario would have the township closing on the property sometime in the spring of 2013.

Ratliff noted that despite all questions about price and timing and the amount of competition the state typically sees for trust fund grants, the project is one that may score favorable with the state. He pointed to the fact that the property would give the public access to an inland lake, that such access is included in the township's master plan, and the fact that the township has not applied for trust fund money in the past as factors that would help the project score favorably with the state. He noted that if the proposed bike trail along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road were to become a reality, it would further strengthen the project's appeal to the state.

"Camp Sea-Gull would score very well, I think," Ratliff said. "The (trust fund board) has made it known that they want to give access to inland lakes."

Township supervisor Ethel Knepp said the township has been looking for an opportunity such as the Camp Sea-Gull property because there is very limited public access in or near the Hayes Township portion of the lake.

Knepp said she envisions the park as a day use facility that would offer swimming, boating, picnicking and perhaps other recreational amenities.

There seemed to be little interest among the board and audience in creating any sort of overnight campground on the property.

"Nothing's written in [illegible]," Knepp said, noting that many public hearings and information gathering sessions would be held before any firm proposals would be drawn up.

Knepp noted that another feature that makes the property appealing for a park is that it is large enough to create recreation facilities while still leaving buffer space on its boundaries to help lessen the impact on neighboring properties.

"We're very conscious of the neighbors," Knepp said. "We don't want it to be a problem. This property affords us the opportunity to create these buffers and we are definitely interested in not offending the neighbors.

Township trustee Jim Rudolph said he's spoken to some neighboring property owners who would prefer that the property become a park rather than be turned into a planned unit development which might allow as many as 14 units to be constructed.

Many in the audience said with the camp property being one of the few remaining large parcels on the lake, the purchase may be a "once-in-a-lifetime" opportunity.

What's next?

Bill Schulman told the board that he would be discussing the matter with his family in the next weeks and would let township officials know as soon as the family has decided if it wishes to pursue the grant purchase possibility.

If they do, Knepp said the township would likely then consider having a preliminary appraisal done on the property and begin the public input and planning process — including where the township would get its 25 percent match.

lawsuit: "In regards to the lawsuit, I have strong confidence that the city was justified in terminating Mr. Rotta based upon specific work-related performance issues that are not associated in any way with safety violations or the Whistleblower Protection Act. The city stands by its decision and looks forward to defending what we believe is a frivolous lawsuit."

On Monday, city clerk Carol Ochs indicated documents sought in a Freedom of Information Act request filed by the Courier on Friday from Rotta's personnel file were not expected to be available prior to the deadline for this week's publication. Under the act, government officials have up to five business days to respond to such document requests.

No court dates have yet been set in the case.

Forest full of springtime treasures

Roger Knutson

Forests dominate the land surface of the earth. There are more acres and more kinds of forests than any other sort of vegetation. In that world quilt of forest types, our local example is somewhat unusual. There are only a few places in the world where both spring and fall are worthy of attention. This is a good time of year to visit our currently leafless forests, the ones with maple, beech and oak trees especially.

A reasonably good and mostly undisturbed forest here in Northern Michigan houses literally hundreds of kinds of plants and multiple hundreds of animals. The most common animals are not the deer and squirrels we are likely to think of. Hundreds, even thousands of different kinds of insects and their smaller relatives find both food and housing in the layers of decaying leaves that characterize our forests.

A set of small plants that require full sunlight for their growth are dominant in early spring. Their whole above-ground life takes place before the leaves of the maples and beeches unfurl. On your walk through our early spring forests, don't miss the green and brown speckled leaves of trout lilies. And look diligently for morels. The most abundant potential food source in early spring are not morels, but the wild onions or wild garlic. The plants are commonly-called ramps, and spring up earlier than almost anything in the forest. Clumps of brilliant green tulip-like leaves are your first clue. Crushing a bit of one leaf between your fingers confirms that it is a ramp. They smell like strong onions. It is worthwhile to dig one up. You will not be threatening a rare species by doing that. The bulb beneath the ground looks much like an ordinary green onion, and eating one is a valuable experience. Everyone will know for hours what you have done. You will exhale strong ramp flavor for some time. Children have been sent home for indulging in such a treat on their walk to school. One such child breathing in a classroom would be obvious to everyone there.

While walking and nibbling in our forests consider their history. If time travel were possible and you could go back a million years in time, you would recognize maple trees, beech trees and the other large trees in the forest. Even 10 million years ago the forest would look much as it does now. The animals would be very different, but those large, old trees would barely be distinguishable from ones present now.

Why such constancy of trees? Trees have a very long life span if undisturbed by the axemen. The speed of evolution of any organism is directly related to its life span. Bacteria that reproduce themselves in 20 minutes can evolve rapidly, as testified to by the number of antibiotic-resistant, disease causing bacteria we now have in hospitals and even in our forests. By contrast, a maple tree from a million years ago is recognizably a maple tree.

Forests are remarkable places. Visit one, breathe deeply of the pervasive, organic smell of leaves decaying. Eat a ramp. Consider what an amazing place we live in. Don't forget to look for morels.

A blood drive 'thank you'

Editor,

I have chosen this time to write a general thank you to everyone involved in the last blood drive which was March 10. I wanted to remind everyone involved what wonderful things we all together achieved. In all, 66 pints of blood were given and 22 volunteers helped from the Lions Club, the Kiwanis Club, Round Lake Bookstore, Sunny Bank Assisted Living, Whitney's of Charlevoix, Clothing Company, Glen's Market, Oleson's, Bergman Marine, Petals, Subway, and Villager Pub. This is also a reminder that the next blood drive which will take place Thursday, May 12 is almost upon us. We are really hoping to increase our blood donors. Stop in and help us reach our goal of 80 pints. We are looking forward to seeing each and every one of you.

Food pantry thanks 9-year-old birthday girl

Editor:

The Charlevoix Community Food Pantry would like to acknowledge and thank Emma Buday, who asked guests invited to her recent 9th birthday party to bring items for the food pantry instead of personal gifts. Her thoughtfulness, generosity, and concern for other is most appreciated, and in our opinion, is a wonderful example for all of her young friends (as well as the rest of us living in the Charlevoix area) to follow.

Remember victims of domestic violence this Mother's Day

Editor:

When we think about what motherhood means, we may reflect on our memories of care by a loving person who feeds us, kisses bruised knees, tucks us into bed at night and helps us understand a confusing world. A mother is our biggest fan, a hero, a protector and pillar of strength.

Those who are in the midst of raising a family may define motherhood as relentless, tiring, all-consuming and at the same time rewarding. Motherhood is a tough job, no doubt about it.

Now, consider the mother who faces the complex challenges of violence in her own intimate relationship—raising her children while at the same time facing the terror, degradation and humiliation of domestic violence. In studies, domestic violence that begins as verbal abuse oftentimes escalates to physical abuse after the pregnancy of a first child.

Our society still tends to blame the victim: why can't she stop the violence, why doesn't she leave the relationship, why won't she press charges, how can she be a good mother and let this happen?

A woman in this situation is not only being controlled by an abusive partner, but she must concern herself with her own safety, the safety of her children, the fear of losing her children, shame and embarrassment for her perceived role in the abuse, a perceived lack of credibility, fear of losing economic resources and a fear of law enforcement.

She must make the tough decision to reach out for help, which has been shown to actually escalate violence as the perpetrator feels a shift in the control and power of the relationship. And the violence does not always end when a survivor leaves. A woman being victimized is often paralyzed with fear, rendering her immobile. There is the very real fear of losing her children to protective services. For example, if the mother is deemed unable to completely protect her children, they may be sent to foster care, even though systems are not in place to empower her to do this nearly impossible task.

As we gather with loved ones, this Mother's Day, let us remember the courageous mothers who must overcome multiple obstacles to find a safe life for themselves and their children; those who arrive at domestic violence shelters under a cloak of darkness with little more than the clothes on their backs and children at their feet; women who are good mothers in bad situations. These are mothers who still have to help with schoolwork, sit up with sick children, volunteer at school, transport children to extracurricular events, cloth and feed ever-growing bodies, discipline behavior and high-five successes.

This Mother's Day, we send support and encouragement to all mothers. May you be safe, happy and realize the dreams you have for yourself, your family and your children.

Happy Mother's Day!

CAROLENA ELOWSKY
CHARLEVOIX HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT

With spring break behind us at Charlevoix High School, summer is feeling closer than ever to the students. For the senior class of 2011, this brings them more anxiety than it did previous seniors.

According to the student handbook, this year's graduating class is required to take their final exams, even though previous seniors had the opportunity to be exempt from exams. This means that this year's seniors will be the first graduating class at Charlevoix High that has to take their final exams in recent years.

"It's really disappointing when you are looking forward to not having to take exams for four years, and you find out that you have to take them," said senior Hannah Hybl.

The old policy stated that seniors who had a "B" or better grade for both nine week marking periods in the second semester, had no more than three absences per class, per semester and had no suspensions, would not be required to take the final exam.

High school principal Suzanne Klinger said the policy was changed because of new regulations. The 2011 graduating class has stricter graduation requirements than classes before them. The state-mandated Michigan Merit Curriculum requires that each student take additional credits in core classes and the teachers are now instructed precisely what to teach their students.

"This year's seniors are the first class that is going to graduate with the new Michigan Merit Curriculum. They have to show a 60 percent or higher proficiency in their core classes, and because of the new trimester schedule, most of those classes fall in the last trimester. The exams have been set up in such a way to show how proficient the student is in each subject's requirements," said Klinger.

Even though it is because of academics, the seniors are still upset about the change.

"It feels like there is no seniority anymore. It is really unfair," said senior Thomas Moore.

According to research by Missouri State University, 85 percent of high school students feel increased stress and anxiety at exam time. Many seniors agree that exams just adds on to the other stresses that seniors already have in their life at this time, such as college and graduation and trying to figure out what they want to do with their life.

"As if we didn't have enough to worry about with financial aid and scholarships, now we have to worry about exams too when none of the seniors had to before us," said senior Morgan McCarthy.

Neighboring trimester schools, like Boyne City High School and Harbor Springs High School, are also on trimesters and both of their policy handbooks also state that seniors do not have the opportunity to be exempt from exams.

Mrs. Klinger said that, "No senior has yet to talk to me about it, but I am expecting it in the near future."

Carolena is the daughter of Grant and Bridget Elowsky. She is a sophomore at Charlevoix High School.

Concentrating on his school work, senior Logan Kline contemplates the new trimester and upcoming exams. "If the student has a "B" or better in a class, they shouldn't have to take their final exams. They shouldn't have changed the rule," said Kline.

Gregory case still on hold

Authorities still trying to make arrangements for mental evaluation

STEVE ZUCKER

Gregory

The murder case against a Charlevoix woman accused of killing her 94-year-old mother in March is still in a holding pattern while authorities try to make arrangements for her mental status to be evaluated.

Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema said authorities have had a difficult time scheduling a time for Sandra Gregory, 74, to be evaluated by officials from the Michigan Center for Forensic Psychiatry to determine if she is mentally competent to stand trial.

The problem, Jarema said, is that doctors at the secure mental hospital in Sault Ste. Marie where Gregory has been housed since shortly after her arrest, have not cleared her as medically able to travel for the mental evaluation.

Jarema said this week he plans to go before 90th District Court Judge Richard May and ask for permission to make arrangements for psychiatric center staff to visit Gregory in the hospital in Sault Ste. Marie to do the evaluation.

He said if the request is granted and arrangements can be made, it still likely will be at least the middle of this month before the evaluation takes place.

Last month Gregory's attorney, Kraag Lieberman, filed a motion seeking to have his client evaluated to determine her mental competency to stand trial — that is whether she is capable of understanding the nature of the proceedings against her and of assisting in her defense.

Lieberman has also put the court and prosecutor's office on notice that if she is found competent to stand trial, she will be asserting an insanity defense.

Gregory is facing up to life in prison on a charge of open murder in connection with the March 27 death of her 94-year-old mother Amelia Patricia Gregory.

Emergency crews were called to the Gregory residence south of Charlevoix around 8 p.m. on March 27 to a report of a deceased elderly woman in the residence.

According to court documents, Gregory told police that earlier in the day her mother had told her she would rather be with her dead husband than be admitted to a nursing home and that sometime after that conversation she attempted to smother her mother with a pillow and then hit her on the head with a lamp.

Editor's note: This school year marks the 50th anniversary of the last year Charlevoix High School occupied the building on Mason Street. To commemorate the milestone, over the next several months, the Courier will publish photos taken in the spring of 1961 by well-known photographer Bob Miles. The photos, and accompanying information are provided by Miles' son and Historical Society museum co-director David Miles.

Young artists' works to take center stage

Jordan River Arts Council to host two upcoming youth art exhibits

The work of young artists will take center stage at two upcoming Jordan River Arts Council exhibits.

The annual Jordan River Arts Council Scholarship Show for junior and senior students in Antrim and Charlevoix counties opens May 15. This year 13 students are submitting a portfolio of artwork. Three major prizes, the Betty Ann Osborne Scholarship, the Betty Beeby Scholarship and the JRAC Award will be given, as well as three Honorable Mentions. Judges this year will be Mary Guntzviller and Chuck Forman, both accomplished Antrim County artists. The awards will be announced at an awards ceremony slated for 2 p.m. on Sunday, May 22.

The show opening on May 15 will include a reception for the donors of the Betty Beeby Scholarship. This replaces the "Pearl in Hand Scholarship" which Betty had personally given for 17 years. When that scholarship ended, her friends and family worked together to create the new "Betty Beeby Scholarship." The Jordan River Arts Council thanks both the Betty Beeby donors and the family of Betty Osborne for their support of young art students.

The show will be open daily from 1-4 p.m. through May 27, at the Jordan River Art Center, 301 Main St., East Jordan. For further information contact chairperson, Cynthia Tschudy at (231) 544 6167.

The arts council will also host an "Emerging Artists Exhibit" opening later in May.

The council has invited five younger practicing artists with ties to the area to participate. In this "Emerging Artists Exhibit" artists and patrons will have an opportunity to view a body of work created by artists early in their careers.

The five artists exhibiting are: Cayla Tinney with works in mixed media and oils; Brianna Kenyon with works in digital prints with animals as a subject matter; Jeff Krino with works in mixed media sculpture; Michael Murphy with works in digital photographs; and Andrew Otis with works in pottery.

The show opens Sunday, May 29, with a reception for the artists. The exhibit will be open daily from 1-4 p.m. through June 17, at the Jordan River Art Center.

People fund accepting applicaitons

The Great Lakes Energy People Fund is accepting grant applications from non-profit organizations throughout its local service area. The upcoming grant application deadline is June 1.

The People Fund is supported solely by Great Lakes Energy members who allow their electric cooperative to round up their bill each month to the next dollar. Since 1999 more than $2 million in grants have been awarded to charitable and community organizations throughout Great Lakes Energy's 26-county service area, which stretches from Kalamazoo to the Mackinac Straits.

"The People Fund is made possible by the generosity of our members who contribute a few cents each month by rounding-up their bill," said president/CEO Steve Boeckman. "We encourage non-profit community organizations to apply so that the funds can be put to good use in our local service area."

Non-profit organizations can apply for a grant through the People Fund by downloading the application at www.gtlakes.com or by calling Great Lakes Energy, (88) 485-2537, ext. 1313. Organizations that are unable to apply by June 1 will have another opportunity to submit an application this fall.

Winner named in Ice Out fundraiser

The Great Lake Charlevoix Ice Out event, sponsored jointly by the Boyne City and Charlevoix Alano Clubs ended at 8:22 a.m. April 10 when Proofrock, a 200-pound boulder, fell through the ice south of the Boyne City municipal marina.

Members of each Alano club helped raise funds by selling tickets which pinpointed the buyer's estimated date and time of the rock's descent. The Ice Out winner, John Osher, a Bay Harbor summer resident, purchased the ticket on which his friend, Jeanine Rouleau, guessed [illegible] in the late days of winter and the fact that both Alano Clubs were able to reap some benefit from it is an added bonus," said Richard O'Leary, manager of the Charlevoix Alano Club, Serenity House.

Richard Fish, president of the Boyne Area Alano Club, Unity Hall, said that club board member Bill Bolger, board spent nearly a week constructing the clock tower apparatus which precisely recorded the time of the rock's fall. Bolger tethered the boulder to an atomic clock housed in the seven-foot wooden tower.

"I want to thank Bill, all the Boyne City and Charlevoix Alano Club members and participating merchants who sold tickets," Fish said. "We split the Ice Out ticket proceeds with the Charlevoix Alano Club and plan to make this an annual fundraiser."

Inspiration for the Ice Out contest came from a town in north central Vermont. "I think some guys who were bored with winter were sitting around one day and decided to make a game out of guessing when the ice would go out," said O'Leary.

"Terry Left, of the Charlevoix Alano Club, brought the idea to Boyne City's Unity Hall members," Boyne City Alano Club board member Arch Wright said. "We share Lake Charlevoix and the chief purpose of our organizations is to provide meeting space for 12-step substance abuse programs which include Alcoholics Anonymous. It is important to remember that statistics show seven out of 10 people are somehow affected by substance abuse."

For more information regarding The Boyne Area Alano Club - Unity Hall, 509 N. East St., Boyne City, call Lorne Chiera (231) 675-1532. The Charlevoix Alano Club - Serenity House, (231) 547-9184, is located at 106 Mason St., Charlevoix.

Beach Drive lake access settlement proposed

Inland property owners propose common dock to resolve remaining access dispute

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

A possible lawsuit settlement idea will be floated past front lot owners on Beach Drive in Charlevoix Township, where disputed access to Lake Charlevoix is the basis of a neighborhood feud.

A common dock for use by inland property owners — also called back lot owners — could help solve a lingering lake access dispute between them and front lot owners on Beach Drive who successfully sued for riparian rights. It's unknown whether the settlement suggestion will sink or swim, or whether county and township officials will sign off on the idea.

"We're just exploring different ideas knowing we'll be going into mediation in the future," said Allen Telgenhof, the Charlevoix attorney who represents the back lot owners.

Michigan Supreme Court justices decided late last year that property owners along Beach Drive have riparian rights to [illegible] Charlevoix. The front lot owners initially sued for their riparian rights and to prevent the inland property owners from using the lakeshore, so the back lot owners in turn counter-sued to acquire the right to continue to use the lakeshore as they argue they've done for years.

Telgenhof sent a letter to Petoskey attorney Joel Wurster, who represents the front lot owners, that asks whether a common dock for use by the back lot owners at the end of Central Avenue would be agreeable to his clients.

Wurster said he doesn't know enough about the proposal to say whether his clients would be inclined to settle.

The hiccup is that road ends on the water in Michigan are by law public access points. An unknown factor is whether the proposed common dock would be for back lot owners' exclusive use, or if the public would also have legal access.

Then comes the complication that could involve both county and township officials.

Because the possible common dock would be installed at a public access spot, both Charlevoix County Road Commission and Charlevoix Township officials may be asked to approve the situation, should the proposed settlement move forward.

Dale Glass, Charlevoix Township supervisor, said he has no comment on the common dock proposal.

"At this point, it would be wild, premature speculation," he said.

Doug Way, chairman of the county's road commission, said he thinks a common dock may be a good solution to the neighborhood spat.

"We've always said 'why don't they get together, put in a common dock and everybody can get along,'" Way said.

The road commission is no longer interested in the pursuit of legal arguments on the case, Way said, especially since dropping its counter-suit a month ago.

Beaver Island Citizen of the Year named

BEAVER ISLAND — Pete LoDico was named Beaver Island's Citizen of the Year at the 10th annual Chamber of Commerce award banquet, held at Stoney Acre on April 30. Chamber President Kathy Speck presented LoDico with a plaque inscribed with an architectural rendering of the nearly completed Forest View Community facility, a project LoDico spearheaded. LoDico also received a special tribute from the State of Michigan signed by Governor Rick Snyder, State Senator Howard Walker and State Representative Greg MacMaster.

Speaking during the event, Speck said that this is the most letters the chamber had ever received for a single nominee, one letter even signed by 12 people. She summarized LoDico's many accomplishments for the Island community, work undertaken when he and his wife Sandy could have chosen to simply enjoy retirement.

The letters nominating LoDico noted:

- His commitment and love for his family
- His willingness to volunteer to do more than his fair share of the work
- His work on the Health Center Board, where for years he organized the annual car raffle and sold more tickets than any other
- His ability to never let his ego get in the way of accomplishing good and generosity in giving credit to others
- His work on the Peaine Township Board and many community-related committees
- His integrity, willingness to listen openly to both sides of an issue and weigh the pros and cons before making a decision
- His decade of work spearheading the Forest View Community projects and commitment in seeing it through despite setbacks and hurdles along the way

"A few words written in one of the letters we received sums it up perfectly," said Speck: 'There are many wonderful people on the Island that also deserved this recognition. He (Pete) has made his mark as a most valued citizen and we would like him to understand that we truly appreciate his hard work and loyalty to Beaver Island.'"

Speaking to the crowd after receiving the award, LoDico, offered his thanks for the honor and said he'd come a long way from a ten year old boy, orphaned and growing up in foster care. He said he'd found a sense of belonging on Beaver Island and, as a "70 year old geezer," had just a few words of wisdom: "If you believe in something strongly, get others to believe as well, keep pushing and never, ever give up. There's no future in giving up."

Other nominees for the citizen of the year honor this year included:

— The Yellow Ribbon Ladies: Kate Garland, Mary Palmer, Marie LaFreniere and Tara Palmer who organized the Island-wide Yellow Ribbon Campaign

— Donna Stambaugh who started and manages the Island Treasurers Resale Shop.

— Ed Wojan was nominated for the decades he has served the Island behind the scenes, without recognition for his professional assistance on numerous Island endeavors.

— Gail Weede was nominated posthumously in a letter signed by several people

— Bill McDonough was honored for his many contributions on the Island's behalf and his tireless work in promoting the Island with our elected officials.

— Judy Boyle was nominated for her generous giving spirit and hard work on behalf of many organizations and projects was noted in her nomination letters.

BASEBALL

Rayders notch season's first win

CHARLEVOIX — Freshman right hander Shane Sutherland struck out seven in tossing a two-hitter in his first varsity start as Charlevoix defeated Harbor Light Christian, 3-1, in the nightcap Monday of a non-league high school baseball doubleheader.

It was the first victory of the season for Charlevoix, 1-8. Harbor Light, 9-3, won the opener, 6-1.

Sutherland did not walk a batter in game two, which was called after four innings because of darkness.

Andrew Potter and Paul Stolt each singled for the Rayders, and Tag McCreadie had an RBI sacrifice fly.

Jake Ellis took the loss. Collin Hewitt had both of Harbor Light's hits, while Daniel Klevorn drove in the Swordsmen run with a sacrifice fly.

Hewitt struck out nine and walked seven in tossing a three-hitter for the victory in game one.

Hewitt doubled to lead the Swordsmen at the plate, while Klevorn, Nathan Cook, Ellis and Trevor Schaar each singled. Klevorn had two RBI and Schaar added one.

Morgan Stewart had two hits and McCreadie had one for the Rayders.

Tommy Zipp allowed four hits, walked three and struck out eight in taking the loss. All six of Harbor Light's runs were unearned.

"Both teams struggled tonight to make plays," Harbor Light coach Tom DeKorte said. "It was a tough night to get a grip of the ball and the bat."

On Thursday, the Rayder's dropped a league doubleheader to Grayling losing 7-0 and 9-2 on the Vikings' home field.

Grayling's Zach Wolcott walked one and struck out 12 for the win in game one. Tommy Zipp had the lone hit for Charlevoix. Coby Herriman struck out eight in taking the loss.

The Rayders trailed, 4-2, in the nightcap when Grayling exploded for a five-run fifth inning to put it out of reach.

The Rayders were slated to host East Jordan on Tuesday. The team is then scheduled to play at Travese City St. Francis on Saturday and to host Mancelona on Monday.

Charlevoix's Jordan Farmer's diving tag is just a bit late to prevent a Harbor Light Christian player from scoring late in the first of two games the Rayder's played against the Swordsmen at home Monday.

Rayder, Elks play to scoreless tie

ELK RAPIDS — Charlevoix keeper Lynzie Gotshall made seven saves as the Rayders and Elks played to a draw in a Lake Michigan Conference match on Thursday.

"We played a great game, especially in the first half," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "It was probably our best-played game all season."

The Rayders' defensive line of Hannah Doan, Savannah Joseph, and Carolena Elowsky provided played well, Madison said, while Anna Way played well in distributing the ball to set up scoring chances for the Rayders.

"We had some really good opportunities, but we just could not score tonight," Madison said.

Charlevoix, 2-2-1 overall will host Glen Lake on Wednesday, travel to Harbor Springs on Thursday, travel to Suttons Bay on Saturday and then host Grayling on Monday.

COLLEGE

He allowed two runs on six hits and struck out seven over five innings to earn the win in Highlands' 7-2 victory. Waha's first nine appearances of the season came in relief. He is 1-1 with a 5.94 earned run average. He has allowed 11 earned runs on 20 hits with 12 walks and 19 strikeouts in 16 2-3 innings.

Golf program accepting scholarship applications

The Charlevoix County Junior Golf Program is accepting scholarship applications for the week-long golf camp which will take place on the campus of Ferris State University this summer.

To be eligible, players must have attended at least half of the 2010 Junior Golf Program summer instructional program and be at least 12 years old.

For the past 16 years, five to seven area juniors have been selected each year to attend the golf camp.

Dean Davenport, executive director of the Junior Golf Program, noted that applications have been mailed to those players who are eligible for the scholarship.

Davenport said if someone who is eligible did not receive an application, he may be reached at (231) 769-7252 for assistance. The deadline for applications to be submitted is May 20.

Junior Golf Program board treasurer Sam Supernaw Sr. noted that the scholarships, and many of the program's other functions are supported through pledges made to the organization's one annual fundraiser, Marty Joy's 100 holes in a day golf event.

Supernaw also said the program is supported by many volunteers and the Charlevoix Golf and Country Club, Belvedere Golf Club, the city's municipal Charlevoix Golf Club and Antrim Dells, who offer their facilities free of charge for the program.

Scholarship winners will be announced on June 12, the same day of Junior Golf registration and orientation for 8-17 year-olds at the Charlevoix Golf Club. Further details on this year's Junior Golf Program will be announced in coming weeks.

Blood drives — Every day of every week, people need blood for emergency and ongoing medical care. It's a need that doesn't take a break, regardless of the season. About 39,000 blood donations are needed daily by hospital patients undergoing treatment for serious diseases like cancer and sickle cell, for surgery, and for trauma and burn care. The challenge, Red Cross officials say, is that while blood needs are constant, blood donors sometimes take a break, particularly during peak travel times like early spring. Blood donors who would otherwise give, may wait until later to make and keep an appointment. In an effort to help increase donor turnout, the Red Cross has partnered with Meijer to offer every person who comes out to donate, the chance to win free groceries ($250 value). In May, everyone who comes out to donate has a chance to win a $125 gift card to Lowe's for Dad as part of a "Dad's to-do List" promotion.
To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-REDCROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

A hero's welcome

MARK LINDSAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Brett Maudrie, a life long resident of Beaver Island, will be returning to the island this week after serving in the U.S. Army in Afghanistan for the past eight months.

Maudrie is scheduled to arrive on Beaver Island Saturday May 14, after spending time at Fort Campell, Ky. transitioning from his deployment. He will be traveling on an Island Airways flight from Charlevoix around 4:30 p.m. that day.

Island Airways has offered to fly Maudrie to the island at no charge, as a show of support for the returning soldier.

"He's one of our island boys" said Mary Delamater, Island Airway's general manager. "We wanted to make sure he got home."

According Maudrie's mother Kathy Maudrie, quite a reception has been planned for her son's arrival, and supporters are encouraged to attend.

"There has been a lot of support for him since he first was deployed" Kathy Maudrie said. "We just couldn't be happier that he's coming home safe now, and we want to celebrate that. Having my son home and safe is the best Mother's Day present you could ever get."

Maudrie

Residents of the island have shown a lot of support for recent island veterans. Locals have organized several activities to show their appreciation from yellow ribbons decorating much of the island to care packages sent to those serving. It's likely that most residents have plans to turn out for the Brett Muadrie's homecoming.

Maudrie is a graduate of Beaver Island Community Schools, and has always been active in island events.

He has been serving in the U.S. Army since late 2010, first stationed at Fort Benning, Ga. for training and Fort Campbell, Ky. before being deployed to Afghanistan. Maudrie serves with BCO-327, the second battalion of the 327th infantry.

As an Infantryman in Afghanistan, Maudrie said he's required to be able to fill any position, but primarily has been a machine gunner.

"My company is one of the fastest to be deployed" Maudrie said. "We saw a lot of action, sometimes we'd be in firefights four or five days a week."

Maudrie was deployed in the Kunar Province which has a reputation of being one of the most dangerous areas in the region.

"The national news recently reported on a mission we were on," Maudrie said. "We were supposed to go in and secure an area over a 48 hour period and we got pinned down for 10 days. We spent 10 days there, sometimes in seven-hour-long firefights in pouring rain and hail storms. It got pretty bad for a while, but we got through it."

When asked what he thought about his time in Afghanistan Maudrie said, "I think it's important for peope here (in the U.S.) to know how tough it is over there,

Water works

Crews from Team Elmers work on installing a new section of water main under the Bridge Street sidewalk as traffic and pedestrians pass by last week. The project, which will include replacing the water main from Green Street to Hurlbut Street, got off to a later-than-expected start because of bad weather last month. Work is expected to be complete by mid-June. Traffic will be reduced to one lane on the northbound side of Bridge Street while the work is under way.

Yachts of good press

Charlevoix ranks among top 50 in Yachting Magazine poll

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The tide of national recognition for Charlevoix as a great place to visit keeps rolling in.

Last month it was Forbes magazine listing Charlevoix on its list of 11 prettiest towns in the country, and now — just in time for the start of the boating season, comes Yachting Magazine which recently listed Charlevoix among its top 50 finalists in its poll for "best yachting town."

Although many towns on the finalist list are East Coast or West Coast communities, Charlevoix was one of only two in Michigan and three on the Great Lakes to make the cut.

On its website the Yachting Magazine staff explains that the list follows a six-month long poll of its readers. And besides the requirement that the community be located on the water, the staff left the definition of "best" up to the readers.

"You're the ones who decide whether a town with luxury marina facilities is better than one with room for two visitors to tie up at a town dock for free, whether being world-renowned as a yachting destination is better than being a hidden gem tucked into a sleepy backwater, whether a small town with a boatbuilding tradition trumps being the premier destination for superyachts," the Yachting staff writes. "Greatness — like beauty — is in the eye of the beholder."

The magazine leaves its description of Charlevoix to a submission by Steve Klein who wrote, "Charlevoix offers some of the best boating in the world for anyone with a watercraft, no matter the size,

Corrections:

Petoskey lawyer Joel Wurster was incorrectly identified in a May 3 Petoskey News-Review article on page A3 as the attorney for front lot owners in the Charlevoix Township Beach Drive lake access dispute. Wurster represents the Charlevoix County Road Commission.

It's good to be a woman

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Women are better at most things than men.

Now that I have your attention I will explain the facts. I found this revelation true from a very young age but now it's been studied, researched and is documented in black and white in Dan Abrams new book "Man Down."

I don't want to offend my male readers but c'mon, when you can't find the mayo in the fridge or you've misplaced your glasses who do ask for help finding them. Growing up I respected my father for all he could do, but he was smart enough to defer to my mom in matters of money, travel tips, even down to the food selection in a restaurant.

Due to estrogen, women have a better sense of smell and thus have a better sense of taste. That's why the major beer companies hire women to test the final product before it reaches the consumer. So on your next trip to a local brewery or vineyard be certain to share this venture with your female counterpart.

Men are known to take more risks but women like to look at the whole picture. As a result women make better money investments and save more money than men. Remember this information is in general terms looking at women as an entire group; there will always be an exception to the rule.

When I was a freshman in college and the Vietnam War was at its peak, I often wondered if we would have been in such turmoil had there been women leaders. I believe that women with our estrogen in tow would want to sit down and discuss the issues at hand and come to a compromise rather that see who has the strongest and biggest artillery and troops to take over a nation. If there were more women leaders I feel we would focus on alternative energy and not take over countries where we feel oil is our right.

Research in Abrams book also pointed to women having more integrity and more passion about defending ethical behavior. A direct quote from his book: "Countries having greater representation of women in government or in the market world have lower levels of corruption." Not all politicians are crooks but women do behave less badly in the workforce and in the political world.

Estrogen rears itself in the medical world as well. Studies have shown "Female doctors tend to be more encouraging and reassuring, use shared decision making and spend more time with patients than male doctors do." Women as whole tend to be more cautious and not rush through surgery or to see their next patient.

In this sagging economy the women again are faring better. More than half of Americans who hold more than one job are women. Yes, we multi- task well. Overall women make fewer errors, are less corrupt, more conscientious and are more careful with their risk taking.

I love the fact that men are stronger physically than women which is also brought to light in Abram's book. See, I do say some positives about men. My husband excels at repairing things, building projects and outdoor yard work. I appreciate him, but on the other hand he appreciates that I handle money well, purchase foods that are healthy and can write this column while balancing the checkbook and answering his questions. Yes dear, we do have mayo and it's behind the pickles in the fridge. Now I rest my case.

LETTER to the editor

Editor,

For many of us, the surest sign that spring is truly here is the presence of orange cones along the highway through town, and indication that work is being done in preparation for petunia planting day. Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc. has once again "laid the groundwork" for a breathtaking display of those blooms that have become part of our heritage.

As the economy continues to challenge our state and region, displays such as ours become a constant reminder of the simple joys we all need to stay upbeat. It is this knowledge that pushes the board members of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, led by Aaron Wilkin, to continuously give more and more of themselves to this project. One example of this is a cost-saving measure that will increase the time commitment of several board members. Recent legislation has made allowances for non-certified people to fertilize the flower beds. What once cost the organization about $1,000 in professional fess will now cost 75 percent less given many extra hours of volunteer time and energy — time generously provided by members of this board. It is a privilege to work alongside so many committed individuals.

Many supporters of this community have given their time and money to contribute to maintain the level of excellence the petunia project demands. Nearly all of the products provided at the planting day picnic are given with little to no cost to the organization, and the event is entirely staffed by board members and community volunteers. This speaks volumes on the importance of this project. But we still need your support. We are putting out another call to this community to give to this worthwhile project. Your time, your monetary donations and your enthusiasm make not only the flowers bloom, but the pride and strength of the spirit of this community as well. Planting day is quickly approaching — May 26 — so, please join us in making it a community success. Donations may be mailed to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720.

Sincerely,

Vikki Seger,
Secretary, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc.

Maudrie has also participated in organizing support for people of the region he's in. Several of the soldiers in his company were shipped school supplies from home which they gathered and delivered to local schools badly in need of aid.

"There are some really good people in Afghanistan" Maudrie noted.

Once he arrives back home, Maudrie will have a 30-day leave to spend on the Island with family and visiting friends in the area.

"I have a Harley-Davidson. I plan to spend some time on it while I'm home."

He added: "The support from people back home has been incredible. Most of the time I got more stuff then I could ever use, I got packages from people I didn't even know."

As for long term plans, Maudrie is planning to try out for special forces and, if accepted, make a career of it. He will return to Fort Campbell after this visit, and if needed, re-deploy to Afghanistan within the next 18 months.

"We couldn't have said it better, Mr. Klein," Yachting staff adds.

When the contest is over, Yachting will visit the winning town to present the award.

Since voting began after Yachting Magazine published the list on April 21, Charlevoix has been holding its own in the voting. As of Tuesday, Charlevoix was in third place with 47 votes behind second place Oxford, Md., with 120 votes and the leader South Haven, with 149 votes.

But there's still time.

CMU Public Radio series to feature East Jordan

Central Michigan University Public Radio's (Harbor Springs, 103.9 fm) next edition of its locally-produced series, "On the Map," will feature a look at East Jordan. The programs will air at 8:35 a.m. during "Morning Edition," with a repeat broadcast at 5:45 p.m. during "All Things Considered" Tuesday, May 17, through Friday, May 20.

In part one of the series, the show tours East Jordan Iron Works, a business that helped the community survive in a post-lumber economy. The show will explore the historical roots of the company and listeners will hear about a surprising influence on this major manufacturer's product line.

The show's industrial focus will continue in part two of the series with a visit East Jordan plastics. This business that works with a product that, some scientists say, takes 500 years or more to biodegrade, is laser-focused on recycling and sustainability.

In part three, the show will visit the East Jordan public schools. At a time when many school districts are implementing anti-bullying policies, this school is working to stay at the forefront of such efforts. The school's push to create a "caring majority" has just been launched and school officials say it will play a pivotal role in the future of education in the community.

The series will conclude its visit to East Jordan with a report on a group of kids with a lot of heart. In it's history, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation's Youth Advisory Council has granted well over half-a-million dollars to community organizations. The show will introduce listeners to some of the teens who, this year, are tasked with the responsibility of deciding which groups will receive grant funding.

Charlevoix teen takes first in state history contest

Paul Vermeesch will now compete in national event in June

A Charlevoix area high school freshman has been selected to represent Michigan at the 2011 National History Day competition in Washington DC, beginning June 12.

Paul Vermeesch, 14, placed first in the high school documentary film division at the Michigan History Day state finals, which took place at Grand Valley State University in Grand Rapids on April 30.

Vermeesch's short film, "Truman's Palestine," was one of two national finalist awards given in the senior documentary division. Judging was sponsored by the Historical Society of Michigan. Winners proceed to the National History Day competition at the University of Maryland, College Park, outside Washington DC.

The National History Day competition is a four-day Olympics-styled event where students present historical research, competing against other state finalists from across the U.S. The 2011 National History Day theme is "Debate and Diplomacy in History: Successes, Failures, and Consequences."

Each year more than half a million students participate in the National History Day contest. About 2,400 make it to the national finals to compete for 48 gold, silver or bronze medals. There are five categories of presentation format: research paper, exhibit, performance, documentary or web site.

The documentary gold medal award is a $5,000 prize from The History Channel.

The History Channel airs a live webcast of the National History Day awards ceremony on June 16 between from 8:30-11 a.m.

An early sign off?

The owners of Bullfrog Candle Company may be closing their doors in a couple months, but they weren't quite ready to take down their well-know sign at the store's M-66 entrance. Around 1:30 p.m. on Tuesday, May 3, the driver of this delivery truck mistakenly tried to use the M-66 entrance and knocked down the sign. The sign damaged the truck's windshield but the driver was not injured. The sign has been temporarily placed in the lawn next to the driveway and may be replaced to its former position prior to the business' expected closing sometime in July.

Community teams up to preserve island trip

A 25-year-old Charlevoix Elementary School tradition that at one time appeared in danger of fading into memory is alive and well thanks to the efforts of parents, service groups and the community at large.

Fourth grade teacher John Haan explains that for more than 25 years Charlevoix Elementary School third graders, led by teacher Erik Lundteigen annually took an overnight, school-funded trip to Beaver Island.

However in the 2008-09 school year, funding for the trip was cut and Lundteigen retired prompting the trip to be shelved for the year.

For the 2009-10 school year, the fourth grade parents and staff decided to raise the money to continue the tradition resulting in about 90 students and 30 chaperones traveling to the island in May of 2010. For this school year, Haan said, parents raised money by working at Venetian Festival, organizing a can drive, hosting a Halloween dance and through donations from the Charlevoix Elementary School Parent-Teacher Organization, The Charlevoix Elks Lodge, The Rotary Club of Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Lions Club.

And their efforts have paid off.

The first group of fourth graders will travel to the island on May 31 and return on June 1. The second group will leave on June 2 and return June 3.

"The trip reinforces history, geography, ecology and geology concepts learned in school," Haan said. "In addition relationships are strengthened between students, parents and teachers."

While on the Island students view artifacts and hear Beaver Island stories from Bill Cashman of the Beaver Island Historical Society. Haan noted that students are fascinated with the stories of King Strang, battles over fishing grounds and Native American history. Students also tour a restored fishing vessel at the Marine Museum and view classic toys at the Toy Museum.

Other activities during the trip include racing up to the top of Mount Pisgah, the highest point on Beaver Island. A visit Dr. Protar's house, Dr. Protar's Tomb and climb of the "Big Rock."

The group also visits the Lighthouse School property which is an alternative school owned by Charlevoix Public Schools. Students and chaperones sleep in cabins and tents and eat on picnic tables outside or in the school's dining room. At the campground, students play volleyball and other sports, build sandcastles, make S'mores, climb the lighthouse and take a nature hike.

The 17th annual Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer 5K Walk/Run took place on May 7 starting from East Park in Charlevoix. The event honors two local women: Sue DeYoung, a young mother of four children who died in 1992, and Judy Edger, who was a driving force behind this event until her death in March 1999. Monies raised this year will go to the Charlevoix County's Circle of Strength Foundation, to provide mammograms for women in need, and the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, to be used for the free cervical screening program for Charlevoix County residents.

SOCCER

Rayders win two, tie one

Senior Hannah Doan notched a hat trick Monday as the Rayders defeated the Grayling Vikings 5-2 in a Lake Michigan Conference match, improving to 4-3-4 overall, 3-1-2 league.

Doan, a defender, staked the Rayders to a 2-0 halftime lead when she scored on a pair of direct kicks from about 25 yards out. She scored in the second half on a corner kick. It was her first career hat trick.

Taylor Smith had a goal and an assist for the Rayders, and Abbey Barnes also scored.

Ciara Summers scored both of Grayling's goals.

On Thursday, Rhi Cullip's goal on a penalty kick with just over eight minutes remaining in the second overtime lifted Harbor Springs to a 2-2 in a Lake Michigan Conference match at Ottawa Stadium.

Hannah Doan scored with an assist from Kelly Greyerbiehl with about 28 minutes remaining in the first half to give the Rayders a 1-0 lead. Haley Kloss scored on a breakaway early in the second half to tie it at a goal apiece.

Charlevoix seized a 2-1 lead in the first OT session when Taylor Smith scored off a Doan assist.

"The girls battled hard," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "It was pretty even. There were times that they outplayed us, and there were times we outplayed them. It was almost even on shots on goal. I was very pleased with the way the girls played."

Emily Ford assisted on Kloss' goal and Mackenzie Sylvain played all 110 minutes in goal for the Rams. She made 10 saves.

"As a team, we played well tonight," Harbor coach Ed Fantozzi said. "This game, against a good opponent, gives us a feel of what is coming down the road for us."

Lynzie Gotshall was in goal for the Rayders, who moved to 3-2-2 overall, 2-1-1 league.

Madison lauded the play of sweeper Savannah Joseph; outside back Carolena Elowsky; Greyerbiehl, her stopper; centermid Abbye Barnes; Hallie Bills and Smith.

And on Wednesday, May 4, one was all the Rayders needed for a victory.

Taylor Smith scored the lone goal of the game on a perfectly placed throw in from Sydney Carlson as the Rayders held off Maple City Glen Lake, 1-0, in a non-league match at Charlevoix High School.

With the win, Charlevoix improves to 3-2-1 overall and 2-1-1 in league play.

Last season, Harbor defeated Charlevoix in both regular season meetings before the Rayders topped the Rams in overtime in a Division IV district final.

"Glen Lake won a regional last year and they've already beaten Harbor this season," Madison said. "They (Glen Lake) are a strong team, they play strong soccer at their feet and they're a technically skilled team, very well coached."

Smith's goal came 25 minutes into the first half on a long throw in from Carlson, a play the Rayders practiced just the night before.

"With throw-ins, it's not so much power as it is technique," Madison said. "Sydney has a great throw in and whenever we're close to the goal, she can put it in the box. It just worked out great."

Charlevoix's defense — led by the strong play of Savannah Joseph — did the rest.

"Our defense really won the game for us," Madison said. "Savannah had a really great game and Lyndzie (Gotshall) came up with two really big saves."

Gotshall finished with 11 saves in earning the win in goal. She also had help from the crossbar as a shot from Glen Lake standout Casey McDonough rang off the post.

"Our defense really stepped up and did a great job," Madison said in reference to Gotshall, Joseph, Hannah Doan, Carolena Elowsky and Kelly Greyerbiehl. "The shots were pretty even, but defensively we stepped it up."

Up next for the Rayders will travel to Kalkaska on Thursday then to Traverse City St. Francis on Monday, May 16.

"Munis" Can Still Work for You — Even in Tough Times

No matter where you live, the chances are good that a state or local government near you may be having some difficulty in balancing its budget. As a citizen, you're probably concerned about how this situation will affect your life and your community. But as an investor, you may also wonder how this might affect any municipal bonds you own. Fortunately, the outlook might be brighter than you think.

Of course, taken to the extreme, the financial challenges of some state and local governments could conceivably affect their ability to fulfill the payment obligations on their municipal bonds. But investment-grade quality municipal bond default rates historically have been very low, especially when compared to those of corporate bonds. And municipalities are cutting spending, eliminating nonessential programs and, in some cases, raising taxes or fees. In short, they are taking steps that, while potentially painful to residents, are likely to help them continue making timely payments of interest and principal on their municipal bond obligations. Furthermore, municipalities must still fund various projects, and even one bond payment default could impact their future ability to borrow money in the form of new municipal bonds.

So are munis right for you? The answer depends on your situation — your goals, need for investment income, current investment mix, risk tolerance and so on. But if you want to receive interest payments that are exempt from federal taxes, you may well be interested in exploring municipal bonds. Keep in mind, though, that municipal bonds may be subject to state and local taxes and the alternative minimum tax (AMT).

In addition, you'll want to be familiar with "taxable-equivalent yield." Typically, municipal bonds pay an interest rate that's lower than those paid by taxable bonds. Since this interest is free from federal taxes, however, the rate may not be as low as it appears. The taxable-equivalent yield measures the rate you'd have to earn on a taxable bond to match the income from a tax-exempt municipal bond. And the higher your tax bracket, the higher your taxable-equivalent yield.

Suppose that you're in the 35% marginal tax bracket, and you are considering a tax-exempt municipal bond with a 3.33% yield. You simply divide 3.33% (0.0333 in decimal form) by 1 minus 0.35 (your tax bracket), which would give you 0.0512, or 5.12%. In this tax bracket, a muni with a 3.33% yield is equivalent to a taxable bond with a 5.12% yield. (This example is for illustration purposes only.)

Keep in mind that, before investing in bonds, you should understand the risks involved, including interest rate risk, credit risk and market risk. Bond investments are subject to interest rate risk such that when interest rates rise, the prices of bonds can decrease, and you can lose principal value if the investment is sold prior to maturity. So it's best to discuss municipal bonds with your financial and tax advisors.

By adding quality municipal bonds to your portfolio, you can show faith in your municipality, your investment dollars can help support worthwhile projects in your area, and you receive a steady source of tax-exempt income.

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

'Willy Wonka' serves up something sweet

TAYLOR ACKERMAN
CHARLEVOIX HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT

With its edible factory, bizarre candies and famous Oompa Loompas, it no wonder that the movie "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory" is childhood favorite for many people.

So, when Charlevoix High School junior Jason Jones found out that "Willy Wonka," the stage version of classic film, would soon be coming to the school's auditorium, he was excited.

"It was a childhood favorite of mine," Jones said, "I'm excited to play one of my favorite characters."

Jones plays the character of Charlie Bucket, the young impoverished boy who finds one of five golden tickets to visit the famously strange Willy Wonka's Chocolate Factory. He's accompanied by four other lucky but hilarious children with over-the-top personalities and their equally out-of-this-world parents. The plot is that of Roald Dahl's timeless story of the world-famous candy man and his quest to find an heir. This stage adaptation of the book, Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, will also features songs from the classic 1970's family film adaptation that will excite any musical enthusiast.

Jones just one of many Charlevoix High School students involved in the show. For many students, such as senior Morgan McCarthy, who plays the tenacious Violet Beauregarde, Willy Wonka will be their last high school show.

"I love being on stage, and I'm excited. It's going to be my last performance at CHS so it's going to be big! The set is really huge and detailed, and the cast is great!" McCarthy said. "I get to use a southern accent, chew gum, turn blue and blow up."

Many cast members said that although some may view arts programs as unnecessary, the performing art program's existence is important to the future success of many Charlevoix High School students.

"It's a great experience, being able to act. It's what I want to do." sophomore Emma Julier-Hough said.

Getting ready for the show the cast has been practicing four to five days a week, and typically from the end of the school day to around 6 p.m. During rehearsals the cast has worked with director Jodi Thompson, a professional choreographer, student choreographers, and a piano accompanist. The set crew and sound and lights people have also been participating in practices.

When asked about practices, the students agree that they were often hectic, time-demanding, and, at times, frustrating, but they also emphasize that when it's over they'll be glad they did it.

"It's been stressful and long, but you can't have a successful show without the rehearsals," McCarthy said, "It's all worth it when you get on stage."

The Charlevoix High School performing arts department will present "Willy Wonka" at 7 p.m. on Saturday, May 14 and 2 p.m. on Sunday, May 15 at the Charlevoix High School auditorium. Tickets will be sold at the door for $5 per student and $7 per adult.

The audience will also have a chance to win some prizes donated from The Taffy Barrel, Murdick's Fudge, Sadie and Jakes, and grand prize basket from Kilwin's of Charlevoix. In the spirit of the show, the prizes will be won by those who find golden tickets in the $2 candy bars sold at the door. Proceeds will benefit the performing arts program.

"We worked really hard on (the show)," sophomore Chris Young said, "And I know it will be awesome. I hope the whole community comes out to see us perform."

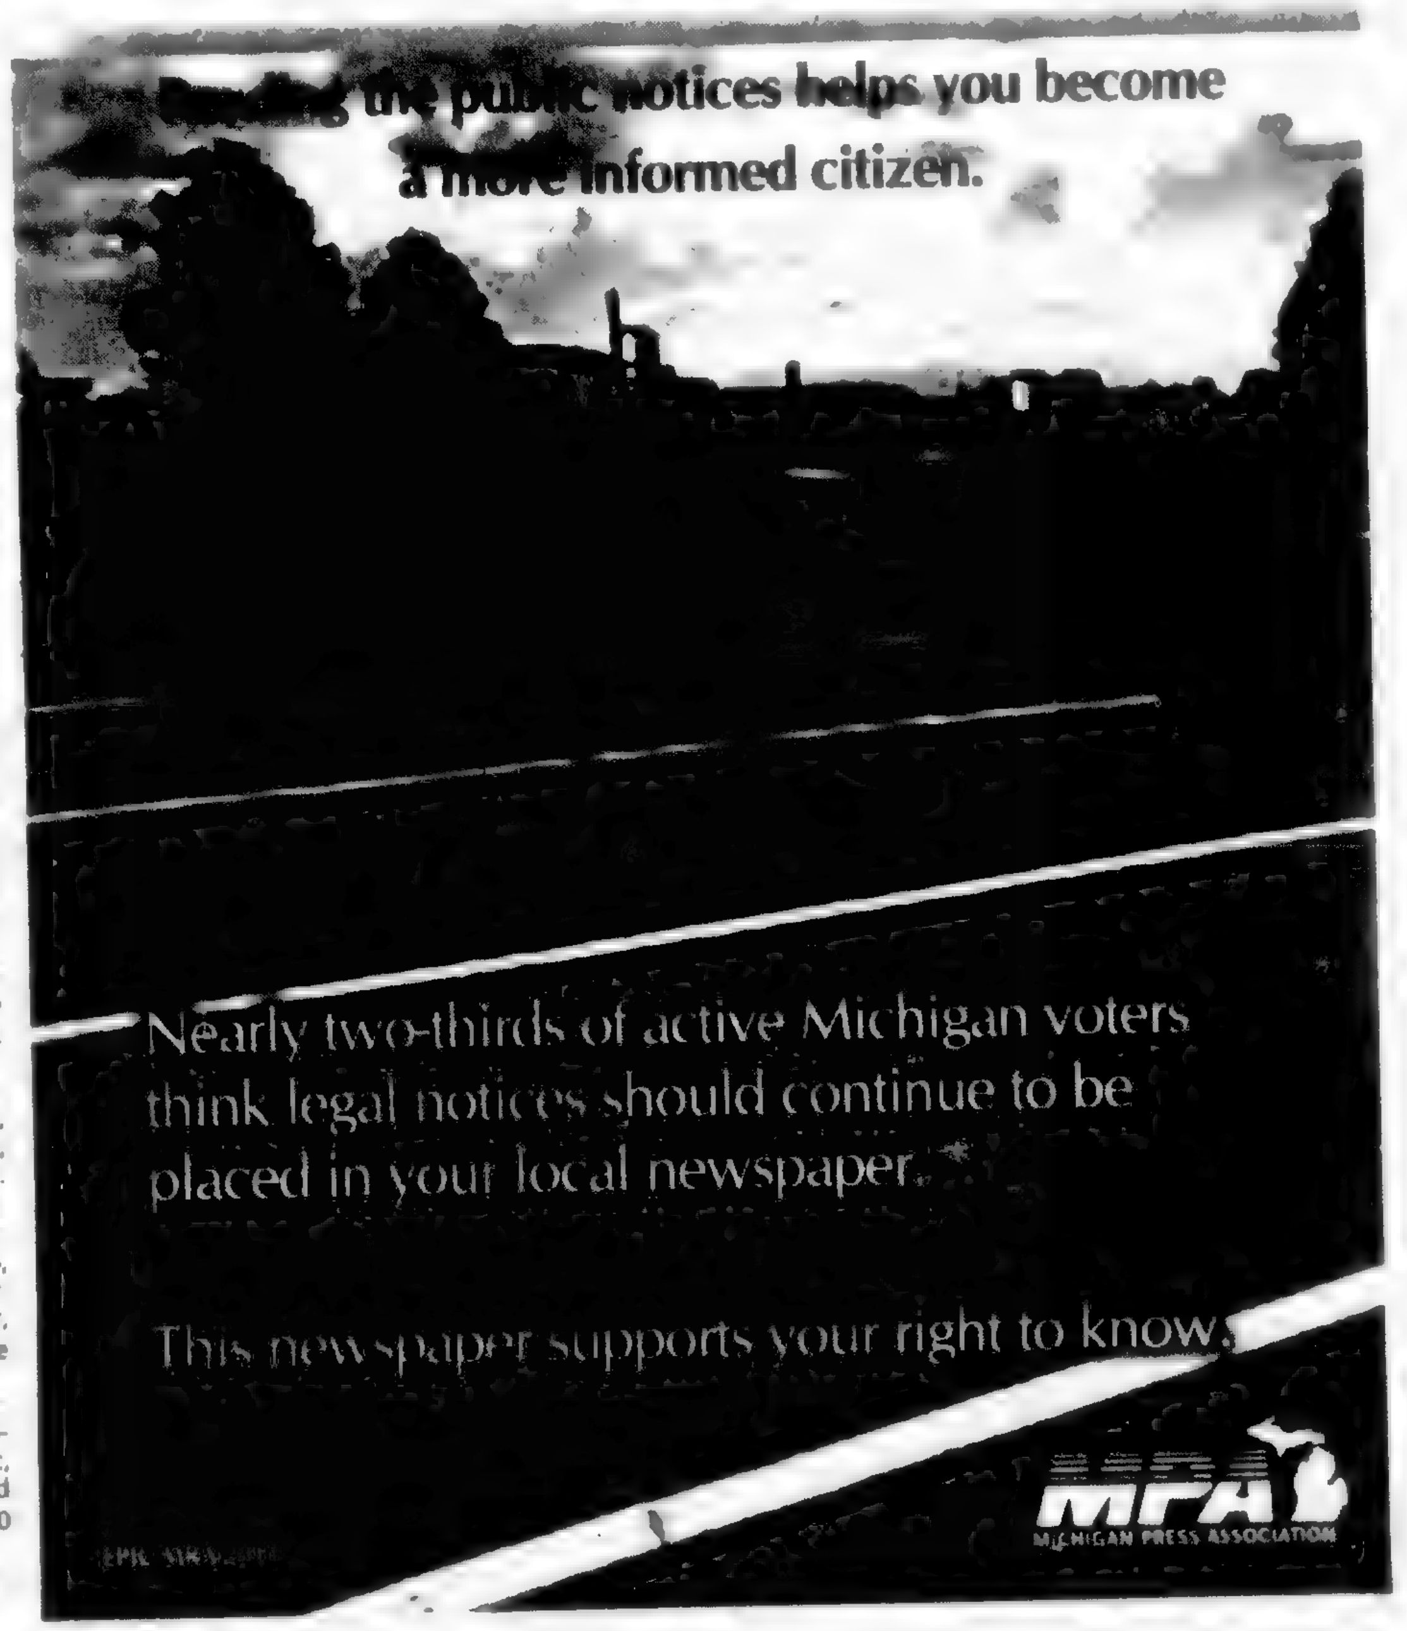
Why do we need public notices?

Public notices tell you, as a citizen, what is being done by your government. State law requires actions of interest to you be published in these notifications.

It keeps you up to date about what's happening with your city, county and school board, as well as other governmental bodies.



Reading the public notices helps you become a more informed citizen.

Nearly two-thirds of active Michigan voters think legal notices should continue to be placed in your local newspaper.*

This newspaper supports your right to know.

Blood drives — Every day of every week, people need blood for emergency and ongoing medical care. It's a need that doesn't take a break, regardless of the season. About 39,000 blood donations are needed daily by hospital patients undergoing treatment for serious diseases like cancer and sickle cell, for surgery, and for trauma and burn care. The challenge, Red Cross officials say, is that while blood needs are constant, blood donors sometimes take a break, particularly during peak travel times like early spring. Blood donors who would otherwise give, may wait until later to make and keep an appointment. In an effort to help increase donor turnout, the Red Cross has partnered with Meijer to offer every person who comes out to donate, the chance to win free groceries ($250 value). In May, everyone who comes out to donate has a chance to win a $125 gift card to Lowe's for Dad as part of a "Dad's to-do List" promotion.

To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-RED-CROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

Free parking over?

City council considers charging for parking in DeWitt lot

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

A year-long free parking trial in the city's newest parking lot may come to an end soon if some members of the Charlevoix City Council have their way.

The lot in question is the 40-space DeWitt lot on Park Street near Bridge Street. The was lot built last year after the 140-year-old Ingalls House was razed as part of the filming for the feature film "The Frontier Boys."

Last year, while the lot was still under construction, the city council expressed an interest in having the lot metered or paid in some way. However in April of 2010, the council granted a downtown development authority request to hold off on metering the lot for the year to evaluate the use of the lot.

The issue came back before the council last month when Bob Timms suggested that 10 spots in the DeWitt lot should be designated as reserved for seasonal rental because the free parking competes with a neighboring group of property owners who seasonally rent spaces on their property.

At the city council's request, the downtown development authority revisited the matter of free parking in the DeWitt lot at its April 25 meeting. Prior to that meeting, authority director Keith Carey wrote a report in which he recommended against charging for parking in the DeWitt lot, and the authority board agreed.

"Staff believes the DeWitt parking lot has served very well the purpose for which it was intended as a lot used heavily by downtown employees last summer, making available more desirable parking spaces on Bridge Street and Park Avenue," Carey wrote in his report.

In his presentation to the city council on the matter Monday, city police chief Gerard Doan also recommended against moving away from free parking in the DeWitt lot.

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix County's new commissioner district map includes the combination of much of two existing districts and the creation of an altogether new district.

County and local political party officials completed the new district map at the end of last month and already submitted it to the state for finalization. The changes will impact the county election in 2012 for terms that begin the next year.

"I am very pleased with the way it turned out," Charlevoix County Clerk Cheryl Potter Browe said.

All counties must draw new district lines each decade following the release of the nation's census figures, according to federal law.

The Charlevoix County Apportionment Commission had five members, including Browe, county treasurer Marilyn Cousineau, county prosecutor John Jarema, county Republican Party chairman Tim Boyko and county Democratic Party chairman Ken Allen.

The new map also includes just one municipality split, unlike current district lines.

City, schools consider selling excess network capacity

The city of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Public Schools provide a host of services to area residents. Someday they might add internet service to that list.

The Charlevoix Public School Board of Education and the Charlevoix City Council, at their respective regular meetings Monday, both voted to hire a consultant to do preliminary research into the feasibility of the city and school district selling excess capacity on their jointly-owned fiber optic network which was installed after the district's 2008 technology bond passed.

In that fiber-optic network, which runs along U.S. 31 roughly from Mercer to M-66 has 72 strands with 24 belonging to the city and 48 to the school district. District technology director Scott Mays said right now the district is using only two of its 48 strands.

In their respective actions Monday, the school board and city council approved hiring John Childs from Childs Consulting Associates to do the first of four phases of a feasibility study on the prospect of selling the excess capacity. The cost is $1,000 for each entity.

Childs told both boards that revenue from selling excess network capacity could range from $5,000 to $10,00 per year, but he believes in Charlevoix's case it could realistically approach $20,000 per year.

Childs noted that the sale of excess capacity is highly regulated by the state and would require public hearings before it could take place.

Corrections and clarifications

A story appearing on page 1 of the May 11 edition of the Charlevoix Courier about the return of Brett Maudrie to Beaver Island after serving with the U.S. Army in Afghanistan misspelled "Fort Campbell" and incorrectly listed the time when Muadrie enlisted in the Army as "late 2010." It was actually March of 2010 when Maudrie enlisted.

Because of incomplete information supplied to the Courier, a story appearing on page 11 of the May 11 edition of the Charlevoix Courier about community fundraising efforts to continue the Charlevoix Elementary School annual fourth grade trip to Beaver Island omitted the Charlevoix Schools Foundation from the list of those groups contributing to the effort.

PARKING

agreed that the lot should be left free, several council members, especially Jill Picha and Dennis Kusina said they think the lot should be metered and the city is losing potential revenue by leaving it free.

City manager Rob Straebel noted that to purchase, install and maintain traditional meters would likely not be cost effective. He suggested that a yearly fee for some of the spots would be a better option.

Doan also noted that no money was set aside in the budget to purchase any type of metering system for the lot.

After more discussion Kusina indicated he wanted to make a motion to purchase a system that would allow people to pay for their parking at a kiosk.

When Carlson cautioned that it would be "silly" for the council to make a decision on such a purchase without having staff research the details further, Kusina lamented that by the time staff does its research, reports back to council and possible lag time between purchase and installation, much of the summer might be past.

Doan and Straebel told the commission that staff members would do their research as quickly as possible and Straebel said he would notify council members so a special meeting can be called to consider options for parking payment at the DeWitt lot.

In other business, on a split 3-2 vote (council member Lyle Gennett was absent from Monday's meeting) the council approved a contract for $403,008 with MDC Contracting for an upcoming reconstruction of Meech Street. Council members Picha and Kusina cast the dissenting votes.

Charlevoix-based MDC's bid was the second lowest bid the city received, coming in about $4,700 above the lowest bidder J & N Construction of Gaylord.

The bid was awarded under council's local bidder preference policy. The policy allows the council to consider awarding a bid to a local bidder even if it did not provide the lowest bid, provided the amount of the bid is within 2 percent of the lowest bid (for project oosting between $100,00 and $500,000. In the case of MDC's bid difference amounted to 1.19 percent.

The project includes 1,000 feet of asphalt between U.S. 31 and Division Street, new water and sewer mains, storm sewers, electrical conduit and curb and gutter. City manager Straebel said the engineer's cost estimate on the project was $410,000. He said MDC plans to start work in early July and finish in early fall.

— The council also voted to approve a bid for $71,000 to replace a 24-year-old boiler at the city's water treatment plant, $40,000 of the cost will be paid for with an energy conservation grant the city received earlier this year. City staff estimate the boiler replacement will pay for itself in energy cost savings in about 4.5 years.

— The council also approved a request from area Girl Scouts Rachel Nesburg and Alexandria Snabes to place a peace pole in Bridge Park as part of their Junior Girl Scout Bronze Project. The pole, like others which have been placed in other locations around town, will read "Welcome to Charlevoix and Peace to all" in English, French, Spanish and Odawa (if a proper translation can be found, otherwise German will be used).

REDISTRICT

who will now be included in District 1 with Hayes, Bay and Melrose townships, rather than District 2 with the rest of Evangeline Township and Boyne City.

Otherwise, the new district lines follow city and township boundaries.

"It's the first time in many, many years that we've only had one split," Browe said. "I'm tickled that we got all the cities and most townships put back together."

One major change is the combination of most of the existing districts 5 and 6, meaning commissioners Robert Drebenstedt and Richard Gillespie will be in the same district.

District 5 currently includes Marion and Eveline townships, along with the majority of Wilson Township. The new boundary includes Norwood, Marion, Eveline, Peaine and St. James townships.

District 6 currently includes Peaine, St. James and Norwood townships, along with the southern portions of both the city of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township. New District 6 boundaries will now include all of Charlevoix Township and the city of Charlevoix, where no current commissioner resides.

"It is wide open," Browe said.

A former county commissioner sees the change as a possible opportunity to get back on the board.

Shirley Roloff lost the 2010 election to Gillespie. She lives within the new District 6 boundaries.

"I don't really know. I might consider it," Roloff said. "That looks pretty interesting."

Drebenstedt said the redistricting outcome is unexpected.

"I was very surprised. I was hoping to gain Norwood, but I did not think I would go offshore to Beaver Island," he said.

Gillespie, who lives on the island, said it's unfortunate the new map throws him and Drebenstedt into the same race for a seat on the board. However, it does make sense to have all of the city of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township together in the same district, he said.

"I wish the island would have gone together with it, though," Gillespie said.

The only district that remained unchanged is District 4, which includes both South Arm Township and East Jordan. Board chairman Joel Evans represents that district.

Finally, District 3 currently includes all of the village of Boyne Falls, Melrose, Chandler, Hudson and Boyne Valley townships, along with portions of Wilson Township. It will become the village, along with all of Chandler, Hudson, Boyne Valley and Wilson townships. Commissioner Ron Reinhardt represents that district.

Browe said the new district lines have practical advantages.

Election results will be less muddled among the townships and the expense to print multiple ballots for several townships will now diminish, she said.

"We were most excited to come up with that," Browe said.

All six commissioner seats will be up for grabs on the 2012 ballot to represent the newly drawn districts.

Miniaturization: Nature's big idea is nothing new

Roger Knutson

The most recent electronic news tells us that a newer, smaller, faster sort of computer chip has been invented. This is not exactly surprising. Newer, smaller, faster computer chips seem to show up about as often as dandelion flowers in the lawn. Ever greater miniaturization has been a theme of the whole electronic age.

It's time to think about the buds that are just now expanding on most of our trees. Tree buds are remarkable for their miniature perfection. All of this year's leaves and flowers for each tree branch have been spending the winter as a powerfully miniaturized version of the flowers and branch to come. Were you to pick a bud from one of the local maples, oaks or beeches in the fall, just after leaves have dropped, and if you were to VERY carefully pick off the outer scales and examine with a magnifying glass the interior structures, you would find all of the next year's leaves, fully formed and very tiny. Maple leaves, oak leaves, beech leaves, all just the right shape and often less than a millimeter in size, crowded on a tiny stem in perfect alignment.

The trees are clearly planning months ahead for the next growing season. If your maple tree has fewer or badly formed leaves some year, don't blame late frosts or the too variable weather of spring. Those leaves were all manufactured the previous summer.

Some perennial plants plan even further ahead. The fully formed flower structures of the local skunk cabbage are about six inches tall this time of year. If you were to do the same sort of bud dissection suggested for the maple on the growing tip of a skunk cabbage plant, you would find the flowers a small fraction of an inch tall and fully formed 18 months before they will appear above ground.

Ultra-miniaturization is not a new idea in the world. Plants have been doing it for millions of years. If you lack access to skunk cabbages or August maple buds, just carefully pick apart the longer leaves in a stalk of celery from the grocery store. When you get right down into the center, you will need a magnifier. There in perfect miniature are one or two complete celery stalks and leaves, half an inch or less in length.

There are few genuinely new ideas in the world. Our plant and animal organisms have been figuring out how to accomplish their lives for tens of millions of years, and it is not surprising that they have had more than a few good ideas. Miniaturization and planning ahead are both good ideas.

County wins energy efficiency award

The county received the Energy Savings Project of the Year Award from The Engineering Society of Detroit and DTE Energy. The award is meant to recognize a company or agency that made the most effective contribution in energy consumption reduction efforts.

Frank Shaler, county maintenance supervisor, said he is especially proud of the efficiencies the county realized through several projects.

"It was a drastic change from what it was before," Shaler said. "If we can save the taxpayers some money, we should."

Five old boilers were replaced with updated condensing boilers, as well as a new water heater with a week-long programmable timer. Frequency drives also were installed on all pumps and motors in the building, so they operate more quietly and consume less electricity.

It's estimated the improvements will reduce the building's annual carbon dioxide output by at least 75.6 metric tons.

The county's building complex was constructed in three parts. The original building went up in 1910, with a second building constructed in 1956 and a connector section built in 1995.

The complex had multiple climate control upgrades over the years, but the systems worked independently and that led to wasted energy.

"It was ridiculous," Shaler said.

Three grants paid for the energy-efficient upgrades, including funds from DTE Energy, the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments and federal stimulus dollars. They totaled about $174,000 in upgrade investments.

The project's primary impetus was to reduce the county's utility expenses, Shaler said, though a reduction in the county's carbon footprint came with the effort.

Another added bonus is newer equipment that requires less maintenance, he said.

County board chairman Joel Evans said the projects will have a big impact on the county budget's bottom line.

"With the energy crunch going on, Frank really stepped up to pursue these energy savings. Frank deserves the credit for that award," Evans said.

Ski coach grateful to Mount McSauba staff

Editor:

I would really like to praise the effort of Theresa Hart, Bo Boss, and the crew at Mount McSauba ski area. In a time when many businesses and organizations are cutting back, they continue to give assistance. We had the most kids we have ever had join our middle school ski team this year (50 student athletes). Mount McSauba donates all of our practice time, and supplies equipment (at no charge), to any athlete who needs it. Because of this generous support, they are promoting a lifelong sport and making it affordable to all. Thanks again for all you do for kids.

Beaver Island Lighthouse School graduates three

"The Beaver Island Lighthouse School gave me the hope and the promise of a better, more self-aware future," said Kayla Bell, 2011 valedictorian.

Kayla also received the 10-10-10 Scholarship from Beth Urech and Mark Gillingham. The couple created the scholarship fund last year after being impressed by what they saw during a visit to the Beaver Island Lighthouse School. The 10-10-10 Scholarship is named for Urech and Gillingham's wedding date, Oct. 10, 2010.

Urech said she and Gillingham were delighted to give Bell the $800 scholarship. She plans to use it at Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City.

"I'm so happy that they do this," Kayla said. "It helps so much."

The Beaver Island Lighthouse School is a residential, co-educational school for students ages 16-21 who may be having difficulty making positive choices in academics and social environments. Classes include math, science, English, and social studies courses. Students also learn responsibilities in a work environment and have the opportunity to enjoy camping trips and other outdoor activities. The program also incorporates personal enrichment in group counseling, career awareness, and presentations by agency professionals on relevant youth issues.

The school exists through partnerships between the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments, Northwest Michigan Works!, Traverse Bay Area Intermediate School District and Charlevoix Public School District.

Bryan Roloff memorial jam set for Sunday

The 17th annual "Still Rockin' in Memory of Bryan" memorial jam is coming up Sunday, May 22.

Doors open at 1 p.m. for the event at the Gold Nugget in Ellsworth. Bryan Roloff was a guitarist who won in 1993 "The Hot Licks Contest," and opened for Foghat/Nazareth in Traverse City. Two weeks after that performance on May 2, 1993, he was diagnosed with a brain tumor, and died May 6, 1994.

"He loved music, loved his family and loved his friends. He was a very talented young man," noted Bryan's mother and event organizer Shirley Roloff.

The memorial jam brings a host of Northern Michigan bands to the stage throughout the day and evening, including Jelly Roll Blues Band, The Push, Evershine and Paper Plane Pilots.

The event is 21 and up, with a $10 cover charge that includes food served throughout the afternoon. A balloon release is around 6 p.m.

The event will also feature door prizes, 50/50 raffle and a silent auction, with items including four behind-home plate tickets to the Aug. 20 Tigers game, teeth bleaching, bowling party packages, four adult tickets to fly to Beaver Island from Island Airways, golf for four at Belvedere Country Club and gift certificates to area hotels and restaurants.

All proceeds go to the memorial fund help through Charlevoix State Band to help local residents who need medical assistance.

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Discussions about creating a city-approved disc golf course at the property came up about a year ago after a hiker at Mount McSauba was hit in the head near her eye by a disc thrown by a disc golfer playing on a makeshift course that used portions of some popular hiking trails.

Disc golf is similar to traditional golf except that instead of trying to get a little ball into a cup, the object is to land a disc inside a basket.

At that time city leaders wanted to look into if it is feasible to offer another recreation opportunity in a sport that continues to enjoy popularity while still allowing for the safety and enjoyment of other park users.

City officials tapped local disc golf enthusiast Ric Evans with the chore of creating a tentative layout out of the course, which he recently completed.

Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel said there will be some challenges in creating the course. He said the course would likely require the removal of some smaller trees and steps would need to be taken to reduce the impact of erosion, especially in some of the steeper areas. If approved, money would also have to be raised to pay for the equipment.

City officials are seeking input on the proposed layout, which is currently marked with orange flags starting at the base of the sledding hill at Mount McSauba. Because of the terrain, the flags can be difficult to spot, so Straebel has provided the Courier with a draft map drawn by Evans to help anyone interested in finding their way through the proposed course. However the map was not in a form that would reproduce well in print. The map can be viewed online at www.charlevoixcourier.com or at www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

Straebel said the city's newly-formed recreation advisory board will be meeting to discuss the disc golf course proposal at 6:30 p.m. on Friday, May 20, at city hall. The matter will then come before the city council at its next regular meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, June 6.

Straebel said it's possible — if the city council approves the project and funding can be found — that the course could go in yet this summer.

Anyone who wished to weigh-in on the proposal but who is unable to attend the upcoming meetings may call the city parks and recreation department at (231) 547-3253 or email Straebel at mgr@cityofcharlevoix.org.

Norwood Township's Lakeshore Drive paving estimates in

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Norwood Township officials and taxpayers have some decisions to make.

Residents of Lakeshore Drive in the Clipperview subdivision — an affluent neighborhood located south of Charlevoix along the Lake Michigan shoreline — want their dirt road paved. Remaining questions are what paving method to use and how to pay for the work.

Charlevoix County Road Commission officials discussed estimates last week for both triple seal and 3-inch bituminous pavement for the nearly 1.3-mile, dead-end road that carries about 100 vehicles per day.

"A triple seal isn't going to work down there, plain and simple," said Pat Harmon, road commission manager.

Road officials worry that the less expensive triple seal surface will deteriorate more rapidly and cost more in maintenance, perhaps requiring a complete overhaul within four or five years. The full paving would last longer, they said.

Estimates show the triple seal would cost about $135,000, while the 22-foot bituminous pavement road officials recommend would cost nearly $227,700.

"We currently have in our road budget $147,000," said Frank Hamilton, township supervisor.

The township's 1-mill road levy brings in about $47,000 each year, he said.

That means the township currently could pay for the triple seal work in full, but would require another two years of road taxes to pay for the more expensive paving. That is, unless the county fronts the money for the work or residents agree to a special assessment.

"If the people don't want to do things for themselves, it's difficult for others to do it," said county commissioner Shirlene Tripp, who attended the road commission meeting.

Road commissioner Keith Ogden suggested that the township wait until they have enough funds to pay for the bituminous paving.

"That road has been there for 50 years unpaved. What's another two or three years?" he said.

County commissioner Richard Gillespie, Norwood Township's representative on the county board, said he believes paving is the best way to improve Lakeshore Drive's frequent muddy and pot-hole riddled condition. He also is spearheading efforts to organize funding to complete the road project as soon as possible.

"We're working on ways and means to get it done," Gillespie said.

Perhaps the county can loan some money to the road commission to do the work now and the township can pay it off over time, as road levy revenues are collected in the future, he said.

Harmon said he worries that if the county loans the township the money to do the work, it will set a precedent for other townships to request loans for road work.

"What you do for one, you have to do for all," he said.

Hamilton said he will wait until month's end to make a recommendation on a paving method and how to cover the cost. That's when the neighborhood's many part-time residents return to their summer retreat homes. Hamilton will speak with the neighborhood's homeowners association for guidance, he said.

"I would love to see it ditched and drained properly, as well as paved," she said. "Anything would be an improvement."

Cyr said some summer residents may not want the road paved as much as permanent residents, instead preferring the rural nature of their "up north" retreat.

"But when you live on it non-stop, it's not so great," she said.

Hannah Doan scored 15 minutes into the match, then Anna Way finished a Doan corner kick late in the half to give Charlevoix a 2-0 lead.

"The wind was blowing hard tonight, but Taylor Smith and Hallie Bills played well by keeping the ball down and in front of the goal," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "Our defense was outstanding too, staying on their marks, and really controlling the ball throughout the second half going into the wind."

Addey Meachum scored the goal for the Liberty.

Bailee Stevens made nine saves in picking up the victory in goal for the Rayders, who are 7-4-3 overall, 5-1-2 league.

BASEBALL

Rayders sweep Elks, fall to Frankfort, Cheboygan

The Charlevoix Rayder varsity baseball team started out last week strong with a sweep over conference rival Elk Rapids but struggled later in the week in three non-league contests.

Jordan Farmer and Alex Waha delivered the big hits for Charlevoix Tuesday, May 10 as the Rayders played error-free defense in posting a Lake Michigan Conference sweep.

It was the first sweep of the season for Charlevoix, which improved to 4-12 overall, 3-9 league.

Farmer's two-run single in the third inning broke a 1-1 tie in the game one 5-3 win.

Andrew Potter led the Rayders with three hits including a double and was the winning pitcher. Potter struck out three and walked two.

Farmer finished with two hits and three RBI, Morgan Stewart added two hits, and Coby Herriman singled for the Rayders.

Waha ripped a 2-run double in the second inning to put the Rayders ahead for good in the 3-1 nightcap victory.

Herriman struck out 10, walked two and allowed four hits forthe victory.

Tommy Zipp had two hits and an RBI for the Rayders, while Potter, Farmer and Stewart each singled.

Freshman infielder Shane Sutherland and first baseman Jesse Drost were the Rayders' defensive standouts, coach Allen Telgenhof said.

On Friday the Rayders dropped a home non-conference double-header to strong Frankfort team 9-1 and 14-0.

Tommy Zipp took the loss in the opener giving up 11 hits, four walks, and striking out six.

Coby Herriman had the Rayder's lone hit and scored the lone run

As of Monday, Frankfort was 19-1 and ranked third in the state in Division 4.

On Saturday the Rayders lost a home contest to Cheboygan 20-3.

The game was close with the Rayders trailing 6-3 at the end of the third inning, but the Chiefs broke it open with a six run fourth and an eight-run seventh. Andrew Potter and Logal Klinger had one hit each for the Rayders.

Telgenhof said injuries proved problematic for Charlevoix on Saturday.

"On Saturday we just ran out of pitching as we had four pitchers and two catchers with arm injuries on the cold rainy day," Telgenhoff said. "I was proud of Alex Waha and Isaac Klooster who aren't normally pitchers for us but went out and gave it their best shot, same with Jesse Drost who was pressed into action catching."

Potter who started the game on the mound, took the loss.

"Despite the scores (in the last three games), I'm happy with the direction we're headed. Defensively we have been especially strong," Telgenhof added

The Rayders were scheduled to host Harbor Springs on Tuesday, May 17, then will travel to Pellston on Friday.

Why do we need to have public notices?
Public notices tell you, as a citizen, what is being done by your government. State law requires actions of interest to you be published in these notifications.

It keeps you up to date about what's happening with your city, county and school board, as well as other governmental bodies.

Nearly two-thirds of active Michigan voters think legal notices should continue to be placed in your local newspaper.*

Reading public notices helps you become a more informed citizen.

Blood drives — Every day of every week, people need blood for emergency and ongoing medical care. It's a need that doesn't take a break, regardless of the season. About 39,000 blood donations are needed daily by hospital patients undergoing treatment for serious diseases like cancer and sickle cell, for surgery, and for trauma and burn care. The challenge, Red Cross officials say, is that while blood needs are constant, blood donors sometimes take a break, particularly during peak travel times like early spring. Blood donors who would otherwise give, may wait until later to make and keep an appointment. In an effort to help increase donor turnout, the Red Cross has partnered with Meijer to offer every person who comes out to donate, the chance to win free groceries ($250 value). In May, everyone who comes out to donate has a chance to win a $125 gift card to Lowe's for Dad as part of a "Dad's to-do List" promotion.

To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-RED-CROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

Parking: For fee or free?

City council sets special meeting to consider imposing fees for parking in DeWitt lot

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix City Council has scheduled a special meeting for 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday, May 31, to consider whether it will impose fees for parking in all, some or none of the DeWitt lot.

Parking in the lot has been free since construction on it was completed about a year ago. Prior to its completion, the city council had expressed interest in placing meters or some other type of pay-to-park system in the 40-space lot, but decided to wait in deference to a downtown development authority request to hold off on metering the lot for the year so its use could be evaluated.

The issue came back before the council last month when Bob Timms suggested that 10 spots in the lot should be designated as reserved for seasonal rental because the free parking competes with a neighboring group of property owners who seasonally rent spaces on their property.

Downtown development authority director Keith Carey along with the authority's board, police chief Gerard Doan, and mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson have said they are in favor of leaving the lot free of charge. Proponents of leaving it free have noted that the lot has been used extensively by employees at downtown businesses making more of the highly-coveted Bridge Street parking available.

But at the council's May 16 meeting many council members expressed interest in the lot generating revenue, in part to pay for its upkeep, and directed Doan and city manager Rob Straebel to present them with options, including cost estimates as soon as possible.

The council wanted to take up the matter at a special meeting, rather than wait until its next regular meeting on June 6 in hopes that if it should choose to establish some form of pay-to-park system for the lot, it might have a better chance of being installed before the height of the busy summer season.

One of the systems the city has been looking at instead of traditional meters is a kiosk where motorists would buy a ticket to place on their vehicle dashboards that would show a parking attendant that they have paid for their parking.

Last week, after learning that the special meeting had been scheduled, city council member Greg Stevens contacted the Courier saying he's heard from several people who have given him their opinions on the DeWitt lot matter he hopes everyone who has an opinion on the matter will either contact his or her council member or attend the meeting.

"For myself, this councilman would like to hear from as many people as possible regardless what side they agree with," Stevens said. "The statement 'and everyone I know feels the same way' doesn't help decide how to vote. I need to hear from the 'everyones.'"

Operation Petunia planting set for Thursday, donations lagging

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

As they make final preparations for the community's annual Petunia Planting Day Thursday, the members of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, the organization that has overseen the effort to line U.S. 31 through the city with petunias since 1982, are hoping for a little more green to go with those pink, red and white blooms.

Last year the organization was forced to become much more efficient in its operation when budget constraints forced the city of Charlevoix to cut more than half of its previous $47,000 annual contribution to Operation Petunia.

Despite the reduced funding, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful was still able to line the full five miles from one end of town to the other with 62,000 petunias thanks to cost saving measures such as lowering the level of the soil in the beds so that they hold more water. The group also saved a significant amount of money by working out a program with Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider under which inmates at the county jail did the majority of the weeding. (Leaving the organization to pay for only the wages of the deputy overseeing the inmates — and some refreshments for the work crew.)

The organization also delayed the arrival of the hanging baskets for the downtown area, further reducing maintenance costs.

Joe Vogelheim, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful co-vice president, said the organization is further honing its money-saving ways this year, building on last year's successes.

The inmate weeding program will continue, but a new person has been hired to oversee the inmates who will have more time available and thus the inmates should be able to keep up with the weeding better.

The organization's board expects to save about $2,000 under a new state rule that

County looks to reduce employee comp time liability

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

The county's board of commissioners met on Friday and discussed a proposed sick time buy-back program, along with the proposed elimination of comp time use by employees. Both issues could be decided as early as at Wednesday night's board meeting.

"Our obligation is tremendous and I'd like to see it brought down," said commissioner Ron Reinhardt.

Multiple county employees have earned the 320-hour maximum allowed accrual of sick time and officials want to see that financial liability decreased. The proposal is to allow employees to voluntarily sell back to the county their sick hours at half value and set a new cap at 200 hours.

The change could also allow the decrease of sick hours over time, but employees with more than 200 accrued hours would not earn any more until they fall below that margin.

Reinhardt said he would prefer the county buy a short-term disability insurance policy for employees who fall ill and are unable to return to work for longer periods. Limiting full-pay sick time in exchange for such an insurance policy that typically pays about 65 percent would be an incentive for employees to return to work more quickly, he said.

County clerk Cheryl Potter Browe said she currently is working on quotes for a short-term disability insurance policy.

Commissioner Chris Christensen said he met with county department heads to discuss the situation and learned many employees feel their sick time is an earned benefit that can't be withdrawn.

"They (department heads) want us to involve them in the discussion before we make a decision," he said.

Commissioners also discussed their desire to eliminate all comp hours for county employees.

The issue arose when a couple of county employees retired who contended they were owed a great deal of comp time, but there is no system to track or verify those hours, Christensen said.

The informal and unwritten policy that allowed comp hours in lieu of overtime is now on the chopping block.

Christensen said he would prefer department heads budget for overtime payments rather than allowing an unknown amount of comp hours to accumulate as an unknown financial liability.

Employees would have until the end of September to eliminate their comp hours, according the proposal.

Three injured in weekend accidents

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider reports three people sustained minor injuries in three vehicle accidents over the weekend.

On May 21, a minor personal injury accident occurred on M-66 near Village Road in Eveline Township. According to police, Linda Lou Francis of East Jordan was traveling Southbound when she rapidly applied her brakes for a crossing turtle. She was struck in the rear by a cargo van carrying U.S. mail by a Brandon Wilson of Merritt.

Francis was transported by East Jordan EMS to Charlevoix Area Hospital with complaints of minor back pain.

On Saturday, May 21, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office investigated a personal injury accident that occurred on private property involving a small dirt bike. Police said the driver, a 14 year-old, Cody Crain, of Boyne City lost control of his 100cc Yamaha Enduro causing it to fall over and landing on his left ankle. He was treated and released from Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Police said the accident occurred on May 20, 2011, he but did not seek treatment until the following day. Crain was wearing the appropriate protective equipment and was transported to the hospital by personal vehicle, Police said.

On Sunday, May 22, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office investigated a minor personal injury accident involving a 15-year-old male from East Jordan. Police said Ryan Schroeder was operating a Yamaha Blaster on private property when he lost control striking a tree, ejecting him from the ATV. He sustained minor injuries and was treated and released from Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Schroeder was wearing appropriate protective equipment and was transported to the hospital by personal vehicle, police said.

On this week's opinion page you'll see the first column by John Hess, the director of the Charlevoix County Veterans Affairs office. John approached me recently with the idea of writing a regular column about veterans issues for the Charlevoix Courier. I thought his proposal would make a nice addition to the paper and we decided to give it a try. After some discussion, we decided that the issue just prior to Memorial Day would be a perfect time to introduce his column. For now, John's plan is to write his column monthly, but he may consider writing more often in the future. John can be reached at (231) 547-7220.

As always, I welcome your feedback on the Courier. I can be reached at news@charlevoixcourier.com or (231) 439-9309. Thanks for your continued support.

A look at Memorial Day's roots

John Hess

As a child I remember the Memorial Day Parade in my home town of Harbor Springs. The American Legion would lead the procession followed by the fire truck, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Cub Scouts and Brownies. Local merchants and farmers would add to the event. My grandfather, Bill Perry, from time to time would add a team of horses and a dray to the parade. The whole procession would end up at Lakeview cemetaery for the three-volley gun salute and the playing of taps. All the veterans' graves were decorated with American flags. After the ceremonies the crowd would disperse and quietly go home or family gatherings.

So why do we have this day of remembrance? In order to answer the question lets look into the history of this day.

On May 5, 1868 General John A. Logan, national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, issued general order No. 11 that: "The 30th of May, is designated for the purpose of strewing, with flowers, or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defense of their comrades of their country."

The original Decoration Day has been changed, over the years, to Memorial Day thus remembering and honoring the dead from any war. Memorial Day is now celebrated in almost every state on the last Monday in May. The national Holiday Act of 1971 was passed to formalize the date

Several towns in the U.S. have claimed to be the birthplace of Decoration Day including Columbus, Miss; Macon, Ga.; Richmond, Va.; Boalsburg, Pa., and Carbondale, Ill.

In 1915 Moina Michael conceived of the idea of wearing red poppies on Memorial Day in honor of those who died serving the nation during war. She was the first to wear the flower and sold poppies to her friends and coworkers. The proceeds of the sales were donated to organizations to benefit servicemen in need.

To help re-educate and remind Americans of the true meaning of Memorial Day, the "National Moment of Remembrance" resolution was passed on Dec. 2000 which asks that at 3 p.m. local time, all Americans "to voluntarily and informally observe, in their own way, a moment of remembrance and respect, pausing from whatever they are doing for a moment of silence or listening to "Taps."

Show Your Gratitude

Have you ever wanted to show your gratitude to the troops, but didn't know how?

Have you ever wanted to say "thank you" to a service person but you didn't?

An easy way to show your gratitude is to look service person straight in the eye, place your right hand over your heart and then extend the hand palm up.

This indicates heart felt warmth and thanks without saying a word.

John Hess is the director of the Charlevoix County Veterans Affairs office. He will be writing a monthly column in the Courier on Veterans issues. Hess may be reached at (231) 547-7220.

Columnist: Europe can be 'capitvating'

Editor's note:

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

We did it! We returned home from Europe unscathed and upright but not without a few minor mishaps. I was locked in our hotel room in Lausanne, Switzerland. My husband woke early to experience the fresh air of Lausanne and to watch people rush to work when he didn't have to. When he returned an hour later we communicated through a small crevice near the locked door. I was trying to talk quietly as it was still very early in the morning. I felt certain from my husband's frustration (his voice was getting louder) that he thought I was making it up when I said I couldn't open the door. I was trying to explain that I bolted the door when he left and then I heard an unnerving clunk. I realized the bolt had broken from the door that was now securely keeping me very safe and sound in a 12 by 10 foot room. A room clearly built over 300 years ago. I kept calm knowing I didn't need to catch a plane or train and felt surely a handsome fireman would greet me at my window before it was time for lunch. After the locksmith tried his best with his entire set of fine tools, he turned to his crow bar and 'voila' I was free. I was also educated with new French words from my hero who alas was not a hunky fireman.

It was hard to say goodbye to the quiet beauty of Switzerland with its graceful Alps dusted with snow. A boat trip across the clear and sparkling Lake Geneva followed by lunch in Evian was just what I needed to unwind from the eight-hour flight. Onward and forward the Euro Rail carried us to Italy where we stayed in both Milan and Venice. My goal was to ride on a gondola and see the canals of Venice up front and personally. The driver approached me as he guessed what was on my mind. His charming dark looks, buffed arms and sporting a red and white striped shirt told me I arrived in Venice. He tossed his cap aside and we set sail on the canals. He was very kind, knew a little English, but would not humor me with singing 'O Sole o Mio' even when I offered extra Euro.

The views of Italy are as beautiful as the ones I had been looking at on my screen saver for the past year. Were we really here? St. Mark's Square was spectacular in person and taking in all of the architecture, café's, bicycles and gondolas made my heart sing. I actually enjoyed watching the pigeons scouring for bread crumbs when years earlier I compared them to our Northern Michigan seagulls and murmured unkind words to describe them. The experience felt like being on a movie set and I half expected Audrey Hepburn to show up any minute.

We traveled light with one carry on a piece and kept close company with good friends who were brave enough to allow us to tag along. Neither my husband nor I have the ability to find destinations easily and it was helpful to have friends with a good sense of direction and the ability to follow a subway map. Having friends to travel with also makes a great buffer when your spouse is tired and cranky. I highly recommend it.

I'd return to Venice in a heartbeat because of the quiet pace which contrasted the lively markets and of course the abundance of beautiful glassware. After four days in Italy we grabbed our small bags which seem to be growing heavier with each country visited. Hmmm, can I really buy that much chocolate? This saga continues with my next article. Until then, au revoir.

PETUNIA

allows fertilizer to be applied by a non-certified person.

Vogelheim said the board is hoping some other changes will also improve the quality and appearance of the flowers.

First, there's preparing the soil.

Not only has Dale Boss, the father of Operation Petunia, been watering the beds to wash all the winter's salt away, but Vogelheim has taken several soil samples to be analyzed which will allow the nutrients and the pH of the soil to be adjusted prior to planting.

"This year we know exactly what we need for fertilizers ahead of time," Vogelheim said.

This year the organization has also selected a slightly different type of petunia. Vogelheim said the hybrid variety known as a"storm series" will look about the same, but they are expected to take the abuse of the deluge watering better.

He said the greenhouse supplying the petunias, Florigen Green House in Traverse City, planted the petunias two weeks earlier, on March 3. This allowed the flowers to bloom sooner, which then allowed greenhouse workers to de-head all 60,000 plant — a process that is designed to cause the plants to grow out rather than up. This, organizers hope, will create more of a blanket effect.

The flower beds have also been widened.

Like last year, baskets will again go up two weeks after the flower beds are planted, around June 6.

The only thing, Vogelheim said, it seems that hasn't been improved from last year is the rate at which contributions are coming in. As of about a week ago, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful was still about $9,000 or about 30 percent, short of its expected needs for Operation Petunia this year.

Vogelheim speculated that perhaps the still-lagging economy or perhaps the lack last year's urgency to buoy the program in the wake of the city's budget cuts might be factors in the slower rate of contributions this year.

Still, he said, the board is confident in the community's support for Operation Petunia as individuals and businesses continue to step forward every year not only with donations, but also volunteering for planting and other services.

This year's planting will take place starting at 4 p.m. on Thursday, May 26. Anyone wishing to participate need only find a fluorescent-shirted block captain and ask for instructions. As in previous years, a community appreciation picnic will take place in East Park at 5:30 p.m. Vogelheim noted that because of the ongoing water main replacement project, the flower beds on the east side of Bridge Street from Hurlbut to Green Street will not be planted until after the project is complete — likely mid-June.

"Charlevoix's petunia planting is possible only because of the help and hard work of the community, the planting is a wonderful testimony to the citizens of Charlevoix," Keep Charlevoix Beautiful board president Aaron Wilkin, said. "Unfortunately donations are down substantially for 2011. In order to ensure that we can continue this project in the future we still need the community's support. As always, every donation is needed no matter how large or small."

In fact, $9 buys one 48-plant flat of petunias.

"I would like to personally thank everyone who has volunteered or donated to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful this year, in past years, and hopefully for many years to come," he added.

Anyone wishing to contribute to Operation Petunia may do so by sending a check payable to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc., P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720. For more information about the organization, or to make a contribution online visit www.keepcharlevoixbeautiful.org.

Smoke-free air law is making a difference

Michigan has just celebrated more than one year of all public workplaces in the state-including bars and restaurants-being smokefree! As a community health coordinator at the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, I've seen first hand the success of this law. It has shown an immediate positive effect on the health of Michigan workers. In the Michigan Secondhand Smoke Exposure Study, conducted by the Michigan Department of Community Health, significant decreases were shown in six reported respiratory symptoms after the state's smokefree law went into effect. According to the study, employees at bars have reported significant improvements in their health. Participants showed significant decreases in allergic symptoms, wheezing, shortness of breath, phlegm production, day time cough and morning cough. Smoke-free air laws clear the air for workers and we are seeing that in Michigan workers are now healthier than they were a year ago. As a provider of services in the Maternal Infant Health Program, I have had a great deal of positive feedback from pregnant women who are thrilled to be able to work in an environment that is not exposing their unborn babies to the toxic effects of tobacco smoke. Furthermore, Michigan is now keeping pace with the rest of the country. Recently, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report predicted that all 50 states will be covered by smokefree air laws by the year 2020. After one year, I can say that Michigan is now a healthier place for employees

Answer seems clear in parking lot question

I read that authority director, Keith Carey opposes metering the DeWitt parking lot and the authority board agrees. The police chief, Gerard Doan, opposes the same. The city manager, Rob Straebel, feels metering would not be cost effective. So what is the city council thinking about? It seems the individuals closest to downtown viability oppose meters in the lot. That should be the deciding factor.

If the original intent was for the lot to be used by employees, that's wonderful. As a perk for their employment, they should be entitled to free parking. During the summer, it's nearly impossible to park anywhere on or near Bridge St. If those spaces are currently occupied by employees, it has a negative affect on customers who would like to park closer to their shopping. If the lot was designated for employees only that would ease up parking on Bridge St. and its adjacent streets.

Consider this, if customers have to park several blocks away, they'll be less inclined to stop and shop. If they don't shop, the shops don't make money. If they don't make money the taxes they pay to the city go down. Now tell me, would the city be making more money by having 40 parking meters or through taxes? (I am not talking about increasing tax rates. I'm talking about present tax rates and that the more money you make, the more you pay in taxes.)

It seems so evident!

"We recognized students who inspire us to be better people. These students were recognized for qualities we often don't award, but should," said government teacher Annemarie Conway, who recognized senior Avery Jason. Garden club springing into action

Spring may have taken its time to take hold in Northern Michigan this year, but that hasn't kept the members Charlevoix Area Garden Club from getting their hands dirty with all sorts of events and activities.

Upcoming this weekend the club with host its annual spring plant sale on Saturday, May 28, at 807 E. Dixon Ave (at the corner of Mercer and Dixon).

Hundreds of locally grown and divided plants will be offered starting at 8:30 a.m. sharp and ending around noon (or whenever the plants are sold out). Organizers said the fact that the plants are locally grown increases the likelihood that they will survive the weather north of the 45th parallel.

The proceeds of the sale help the cub to maintain 11 civic gardens in and around Charlevoix as well as several other community projects. For further information on the sale contact Audrey Etienne at (231) 582-2739.

And even though the plant sale hasn't happened yet, the club has already been doing some planting.

The garden club donated the tree, which was planted by Marvin Gardens, in honor of Arbor Day. Although Arbor Day was April 29, club officials said the planting was delayed because of the unseasonable weather in recent weeks.

And with Memorial Day coming up next week the club is reminding area residents about its Memorial Garden.

In 1977 the Charlevoix Area Garden Club established the Memorial Garden located on Mercer Boulevard at the East Dixon intersection. In the fall of 2008, the city removed and leveled the original garden in order to redesign and rebuild Mercer Boulevard. With the help of city officials, architects, garden club members, volunteers and donations, a very unique, peaceful garden was well defined and re-established in 2009.

The garden was re-dedicated in August 2010. The garden now memorializes more than 200 loved ones.

The Memorial Garden is available to anyone who wishes to remember a loved one. Memorial contributions may be sent to the Charlevoix Area Garden Club in care of Mrs. David (Nancy) Fowler, 409 East Dixon Avenue, Charlevoix, 49720.

Those remembered in the garden include:

'Moor' votes needed

Charlevoix takes, then loses lead in 'Best Yachting Town' voting

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

With just a week left before the polls close, Charlevoix remains in the thick of what's turning out to be a three-way race to be voted "Best Yachting Town" in an contest hosted by Yachting Magazine.

Earlier this month, Charlevoix was in second place a distant 50 votes behind then-leading South Haven. Last week Charlevoix saw a surge of votes and moved into first place putting considerable distance between South Haven, which fell to third and the Oxford, Md. which moved into second, However, over the weekend, Oxford saw a surge of its own and pulled ahead of Charlevoix.

As of press time Tuesday morning, Oxford led the voting with 368 votes, followed by Charlevoix with 294 and South Haven with 227.

None of the other 47 towns on the list are anywhere close to the leading three. The two next closest in the voting were St. Petersburg, Fla. with 62 and Punta Gorda, Fla. with 59.

Voting on Yachting Magazine's website began on April 21 after Charlevoix was named one of the top 50 finalists in the publication's six month-long preliminary round of voting for towns its readers nominated for the distinction "Best Yachting Town."

When the contest is over, Yachting staff will visit the winning town to present the award and to do a full feature story on the winning community.

Many leaders in the community, from the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce to the city manager, have been encouraging area residents to log on to the magazine's website and vote for Charlevoix in hopes of adding to Charlevoix's recent national accolades.

(In April Forbes magazine chose Charlevoix as one of its 11 prettiest towns in the country.)

Voting continues in the Best Yachting Town contest until June 1. To see the entire list of the top 50 finalists, to learn how you can vote in the poll, and see the current vote totals, visit www.yachtingmagazine.com and click on the link for "50 Best Yachting Towns."

Monumental change

MARK LINDSAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Charlevoix's local war memorial is scheduled to receive an update to the current listing of names including the addition of five new names and deletion of two.

The original intention of the modern monument was to commemorate anyone from the current Charlevoix School District who had died while on active duty with the military. The monument includes all U.S. military branches as well as the W.A.S.P.s and Merchant Marine serving in WWII, said Joe Seidel, commander of the Charlevoix American Legion and organizer for the memorial.

"The names on the monument's plaque include patriots who have died from conflicts dating back to early frontier campaigns right up to the war against global terrorism," Seidel said.

The current monument is an update of the original WWI plaque which had been set in the same location. Seidel said there is a very loose guideline for the area encompassed by the memorial, and also includes anyone with a connection to the Charlevoix area. Two people listed had served in the Canadian Armed Forces, Private Joseph Raby in WWI and Flying Officer Edwin McCann in WWII.

The names on the plaque are entirely male for a reason.

"As far as we know there have been no female deaths (connected to the Charlevoix area)," said Seidel. "We have been able to trace women participating in conflicts back as far as WWI, but aren't aware of any local deaths."

The plaque currently reads:

"These trees and this park are dedicated as a living memorial to the heroes from this vicinity that gave their lives while serving in the cause of freedom and liberty, during times of war and peace. Below are the names of those residents from the Charlevoix area who died while serving in the uniformed services of the United States of America; the armed forces of its allies; and the U.S. Merchant Marine or W.A.S.P.s during World War 2."

But information that has surfaced in recent years, has those who oversee the memorial ready to make some edits.

The need for the changes came to light thanks in large part to the research of former Charlevoix County Sheriff, George T. Lasater, who has written two books on veterans from Charlevoix County. Lasater who retired in 2008 after 32 years as sheriff for Charlevoix County has donated the proceeds from his books to support many war memorials in Northern Michigan, including the Charlevoix monument.

Seidel said the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library also did extensive research for the project. But he said some of the information has been difficult to verify because there are no longer any records.

"Some of the information used is just anecdotal," Seidel said. "The old fellow who lived next to our farm in the '70s once told me that his brother, Pvt. Joseph Pletka, died of the flu in 1917. We have not found any record of his service, but he did buy property in Norwood in 1909. Some of the names we originally listed like "CPT Sydney Clarke" I suspect may be maritime titles from the Great Lakes and not military titles."

In all, five new names from WWI and a sixth, Bill Witt, who drowned while stationed here in the '50s are slated to be added to the monument. The names to be eliminated are Eugene Melosh and William Naquam; both WWI veterans. Melosh was from the Boyne City area and research has shown that Naquam did not die while serving, but actually returned home and lived into the 1930s.

The memorial names are not exclusive to military personnel killed by enemy fire. About half of the WWI deaths were from disease, as was very common during that conflict.

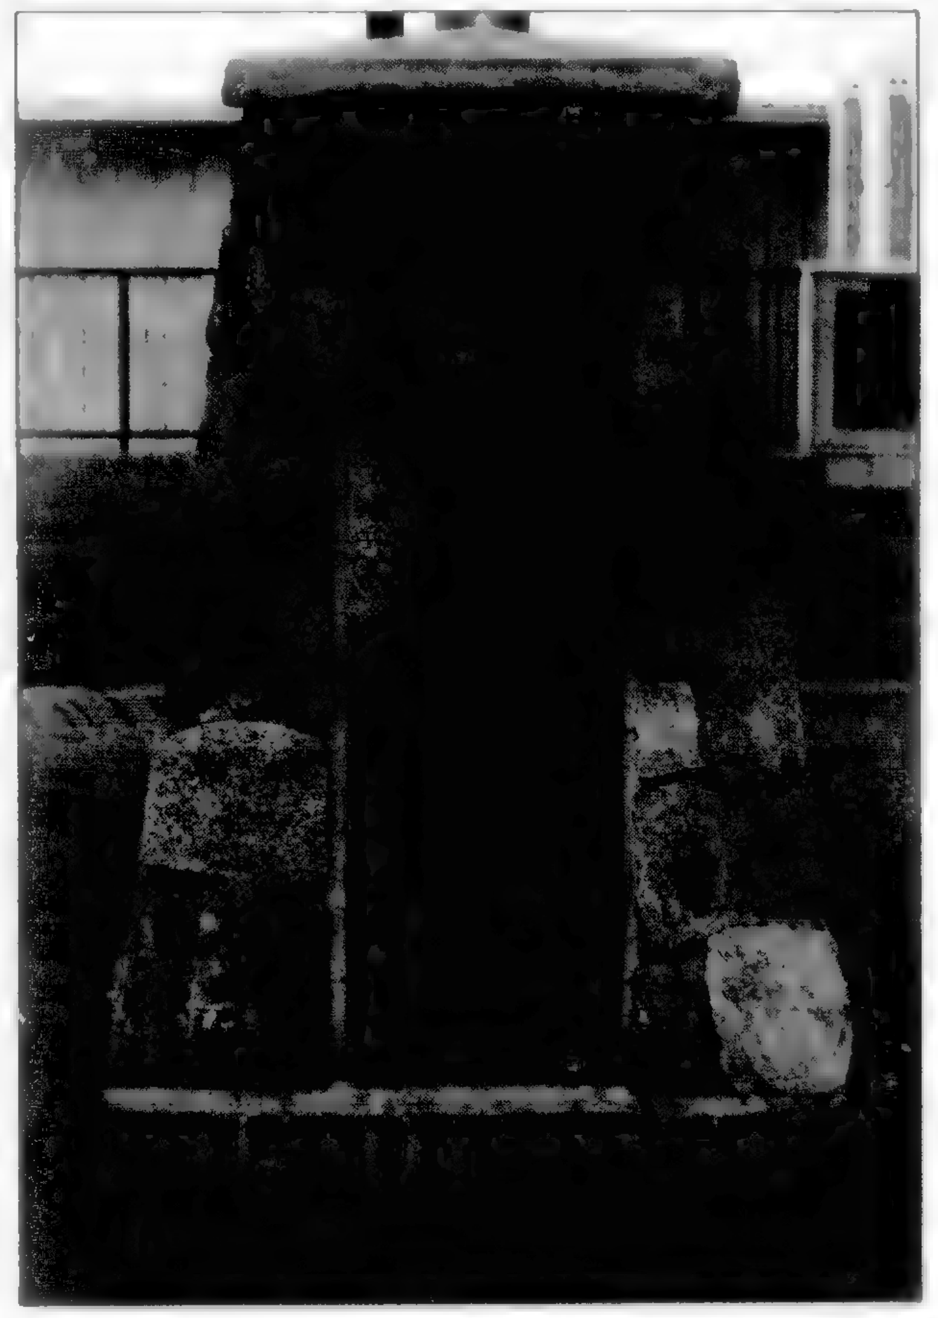
"My mother, an Army nurse in WWII said that there used to be many wards of patients with the flu, measles, or the mumps," Seidel noted.

Seidel also added that they have continued to ask the local community for support and information.

"We also have a small photo gallery which we have garnered from various sources to include a picture of Private Harry Potter, which was given to me by his great nephew last year."

"Thanks to the support of generous people in this community like Sheriff Lasater we have this wonderful memorial" Seidel said. "Hopefully we will soon have the updated version in place."

In order to make the desired changes to the memorial, the existing plaque has to be removed and melted down to recast the new one. There has been some question on how to remove the plaque at all without damage, but the hope is to have the new one in place by July 4.



STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

The local veterans group that oversees the Charlevoix memorial hopes to have amended plaque back in its place on the monument by July 4.

Memorial Day observances

Charlevoix's Memorial Day services on Monday, May 30, begin with a 9 a.m. ceremony at Brookside Cemetery.

Lineup for the parade is 9:30 a.m. at Charlevoix Middle School's north parking lot on East Garfield Street. The parade begins at 10 a.m., proceeding to East Park where there will be a service at the veterans memorial; along the way, there will be a wreath laying at Veterans Park. The ceremony in East Park will take place at the bandshell, and will include the national anthem, Pledge of Allegiance, a presentation, wreath laying in Round Lake for those lost at sea, a firing party and Taps.

In the case of inclement weather, the service will be at Charlevoix Middle School. For more information or to take part in the parade, call (231) 675-4444.

A Memorial Day service in the Norwood Township Cemetery will begin shortly after 8:30 a.m. when a bus carrying members of American Legion Post 488 will arrive. Kurt Kooyer will be the master of ceremonies. Township supervisor Frank Hamilton will participate in the dedication of a newly placed monument stone and plaque honoring all servicemen and women.

The cemetery is located just north of the village of Norwood on Norwood Road.

Following the activities at the cemetery there will be an open house at the Norwood Historical Society headquarters located in the newly restored old Norwood school in the village.

County board mulling future of planning department

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

The fate of Charlevoix County planning took center stage when county leaders met last week.

The county's board of commissioners held a committee of the whole meeting on Friday to tackle complicated topics, including impacts of the Michigan Planning and Enabling Act of 2008. Officials made no decisions.

The primary discussion involved whether county officials should abolish the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, eliminate the planning department or both. The 3-year-old state legislation outlines regulations for planning commissions, including what business sectors should be represented by board members and their duties.

The state law sparked a local conversation about the necessity of both a planning commission and a planning department in non-zoned Charlevoix County, where some townships have their own zoning ordinances.

"We haven't come to any conclusions," said board chairman Joel Evans. "Our job is to do what's best for Charlevoix County ... It's not an easy decision for us to say 'let's get rid of it all.'"

The law requires counties to terminate their existing planning commissions and reestablish them, if they want, under the new state mandate.

Charlevoix County planner Larry Sullivan attended the meeting to answer commission questions about new state planning rules. He intends to retire in two years, he said.

Some commissioners said they'd prefer to take up the issue again at that time and maintain the status quo in the meantime.

"My opinion right now is to retain the planner and the planning commission," said commissioner Ron Reinhardt.

He also suggested the county re-tool its planning commission to fall within state guidelines about which community segments must be represented on the planning board — such as education, agriculture, natural resources, recreation, public health, government, transportation, industry and commerce — by plucking members of existing township planning commissions to also serve at the county level.

Both Evans and commissioner Richard Gillespie said they like that idea.

However, commissioner opinions vary overall.

Gillespie said he ultimately would prefer to keep a county planner on the payroll and nix the planning commission. That's because the county doesn't have a zoning ordinance, instead bestowing that power to townships, he said.

"Are we wasting our time having a planning commission that has no authority?" Gillespie said.

Sullivan confirmed townships have the zoning teeth in Charlevoix County. County planning officials simply make recommendations, he said.

Commissioner Chris Christensen, who serves as the board's liaison to the planning commission, said he wonders about the various levels of planning authorities — township, county and regional — and whether they all are necessary.

"There's an apparent redundancy," he said.

Bob Draves, who sits on the county's planning commission and attended the committee meeting, said there are advantages to both a planner and a planning commission. He said the planner is instrumental with overall background knowledge, while the commission allows for multiple perspectives from across the county.

"I think it would be imperative to keep the planning commission at least until Larry Sullivan is gone," Draves said.

He predicts county leaders will hire another planner once Sullivan retires, but worries someone from outside the area wouldn't have the in-depth knowledge of Charlevoix County. That's where a continued planning commission would be useful, Draves said.

"I hope they leave it just the way it was," he said.

Commissioner Shirlene Tripp said she wants to at least keep a planner on staff as a service to the townships.

"I just really feel the townships can communicate better with the planner," she said.

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission currently has one vacant seat and otherwise is comprised of Draves, Michael Buttigieg and Dennis Jason, all of East Jordan, along with Tom Wieland, Larry Levengood and Nancy Ferguson, all of Charlevoix.

Evans asked Sullivan to compile a report on the makeup of the county's existing planning commission to determine whether the members fall within the state's new mandate. Commissioners must make a decision on this issue before July, according to state law.

Buday leads Rayder run to state finals

Ten athletes qualify in eight events Saturday

EAST JORDAN — Eric Buday won two events and ran the anchor leg on two runner-up relay teams Saturday to lead the Charlevoix boys to a third-place finish in the Division III regional track and field meet at East Jordan's Boswell Stadium.

Buday, a senior, won the 800- and 1,600-meter runs, and ran the anchor leg on the Rayders' 1,600 and 3,200 relay squads, both of which finished second to qualify for the state finals which are Saturday, June 4, at Comstock Park High School.

Benzie Central swept the team titles. The Huskie boys finished with 104 points to edge runner-up Harrison, which finished with 96. The Rayders finished with 63. East Jordan placed 12th with 27, while Boyne City tied for 13th with 23.

Benzie ran away with the girls' title with 160 points. Manton, 118, was second, while McBain finished third with 83. Boyne City was fourth with 55, and Charlevoix placed fifth with 54.

Buday, who was third last year in the state in the 800, won that event Saturday in 1 minute, 58.26 seconds, more than 2 seconds ahead of runner-up Garrit Buist of Benzie Central. Buday won the 1,600 in 4:33.28. Paul Barber of McBain was second in 4:34.58.

Buday ran the anchor leg on the Rayders' 1,600 and 3,200 relays, both of which placed second. John Shea, Andrew Plude and Matt Klooster joined Buday in the 1,600 relay, finishing in a school-record 3:26.76. Harrison won the event in 3:26.32.

Plude, Shea and Vinny VonLau joined Buday in the 3,200 relay, finishing in 8:17.89. Benzie won in 8:14.56.

Two East Jordan athletes, Malcolm Reich and Josh Wojan, qualified for the finals by placing second in the long jump and the 3,200, respectively.

Wojan, a freshman, finished the 3,200 in 10:14.89. William Huddleston of Benzie won in 10:10.12. Reich went 19 feet, 6 inches in the long jump to finish second to Deon Harrison of Kingsley. Harrison's winning leap was 20-1.

Charlevoix's Tony Fulk qualified for the finals in the pole vault. He finished fourth at 12-6, matching the standard for a state-finals berth.

No area athlete won an event in the girls' meet, but several advanced to the state finals.

Charlevoix's Olivia Certa, Hilary Way, Annie Dipert and Molly Jeakle finished second in the 3,200 relay in 10:09.23 to advance to the state finals. Benzie won in 9:54.56.

Jeakle was second to Benzie's Michaela Carnegie in the 800, while Dipert qualified for the finals in the 1,600. Carnegie won the 800 in 2:19.48, while Jeakle came in at 2:24.7. Dipert was fifth in the 1,600, but her time, 5:30.13, bettered the state-qualifying standard.

Although not state-qualifying, Charlevoix coach Mary Plude highlighted several other Rayder performances at the regional meet including — Cam Canupp placed third in the discus and throwing 130 feet, 1 inch — a personal record by six feet.

— Sarah Mackenzie placed third in the high jump with a 4-foot-9 jump. She was one miss away from the state meet.

— Jenna Way placed in all three of her field events — sixth in discus, fifth in shot put, and eighth in long jump.

— Mackenzie Kage set a personal best in the 300 meter hurdles finishing fifth with a time of 50.7 seconds shaving more than a second off her previous best.

The Rayders will next be in action at the Lake Michigan Conference Championship meet at 4 p.m. Wednesday at East Jordan.

SOCCER

Rayders win two after OT loss to Harbor Springs

After a hard-fought 2-0 overtime loss to Harbor Springs last week, the Charlevoix Rayder girls varsity soccer team bounced back a day later with two straight shutout wins over Boyne City and Elk Rapds.

Haley Kloss and Rhi Cullip each scored overtime goals in the Rayders loss to Harbor Wednesday. Kloss scored at the 5:45 mark of the first 10-minute overtime period with an assist from Laura Repasky. Cullip's goal came with 2:41 left in the second overtime,assisted by Kloss. The game will likely figure largely in the final conference standings.

"Our defense was stellar tonight," Harbor Springs coach Ed Fantozzi said as his team improved to 8-4-2 overall, 5-1-2 league. "We kept the shots to a minimum throughout the match."

"It was a great game tonight between two quality teams," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said.

"The matchup brings out the best in both of our teams."

Lynzie Gotshall started in goal for the Rayders, 7-5-3 overall, 5-2- 2 league and finished with eight saves.

But the Rayders bounced right back against the Ramblers on Thursday.

Anna Way had a goal and two assists and Bailee Stevens posted the shutout in goal as Charlevoix posted a Lake Michigan Conference victory.

Hannah Herboldsheimer scored five minutes into the second half to break a scoreless tie, then Taylor Smith made it 2-0 when she scored on a header off a Way direct kick.

And on Monday the Rayders scored three goals in a 20-minute span of the second half as they handed Elk Rapids its first Lake Michigan Conference girls' soccer loss of the season.

The victory lifted the Rayders to 9-7-3 overall, 7-2-2 league. They play host to Petoskey in a non-league game on Wednesday, May 25, then entertain the Traverse City Liberty in their league finale on Friday, May 27. Both games begin at 5 p.m.

Kaitlin Hinkley scored two goals, both assisted by Taylor Smith, while Hallie Bills started the Rayder scoring off a direct kick from Hannah Doan.

"It was a great team effort tonight," Madison said. "The girls played great, our defense was outstanding, we roatated to the ball well, and we were able to adjust to the wind."

Lynzie Gotshall started in goal and made five saves for Charlevoix, and Bailee Stevens made four in a relief appearance.

BASEBALL

Rayders sweep Harbor, split with Pellston

Charlevoix's Herriman tosses no-hitter, strikes out fifteen in opener

Coby Herriman tossed a no-hitter in the opener and came on to notch the save in the nightcap as the Rayders upended Harbor in a Lake Michigan Conference doubleheader 2-1 and 2-0 at home on Tuesday, May 17.

The Rayders improved to 6-15 overall and finished 5-9 in the conference. Harbor was 15-4 overall.

The Rayders won the game with a two-out bunt single in the bottom of the sixth (final) inning by speedy River Gauthier. Tommy Zipp, who had singled, stole second and took third on a Shane Sutherland groundout, raced home from third with the winning run on Gauthier's bunt.

Zipp drove in the Rayders' first run with a second-inning single. Jordan Farmer, who doubled, scored on the play.

The Rams got their run in the fourth inning when Casey Keiswetter reached on an error and scored on an error.

Scott Morse allowed six hits, walked two and struck out nine in taking the loss.

Charlevoix scored both of its game-two runs in the first inning, then were blanked the rest of the way by Harbor starter Johnny Mathews.

Andrew Potter and Herriman both singled for the Rayders in the first, and Potter scored on a Morgan Stewart sacrifice fly. Farmer then singled in Herriman.

Potter started and went four innings for the victory. He struck out six, walked one and allowed two hits. Herriman pitched the final two innings for the save. He induced a game-ending double-play grounder to end the game with the bases loaded.

Charlevoix second baseman Isaac Klooster fielded the grounder, tagged out a runner moving to second, and threw to first baseman Jesse Drost who "made a nice scoop," for the game's final out, Charlevoix coach Allen Telganhof said.

Mathews struck out eight and walked none. The only Charlevoix baserunner after the first inning reached on an error.

For Harbor, Keiswetter, Morse and Adam Sydow all singled, while Jacob Hickman had two hits.

On Friday, the Rayders traveled to Pellston where they split a double-header with the Hornets dropping the opener 10-2 and winning the nightcap 13-5.

The Rayders were slated to be back in action on Tuesday, May 24 at home against Newberry. Then they host Central Lake on Thursday, and Traverse City Christian on Friday. All three contests are non-conference and all start at 4:30 p.m.

Michigan PGA Senior Championship returns

Charlevoix has been selected by the Michigan PGA to be the host city for the 2011 Michigan PGA Senior Championship.

Loren Musilek, the on-site realtor for Prudential Preferred Properties Network at the Charlevoix Golf and Country Club, recently learned that his request to sponsor and locate the event at the club for the second year in a row has been approved.

"After what we thought was a very successful first year, we are hoping to grow public attendance and participation. It's an excellent way to promote Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Golf and Country Club. This effort will again benefit the scholarship program of Charlevoix Junior Golf promoting the growth of the sport locally," Musilek said.

The three-day, 2011 event will kick-off Sunday, July 24 with a pro-am event pairing Michigan PGA senior players with event sponsors and other amateurs for a round of 18 holes at the award-winning Jerry Matthews designed championship course. Proceeds from this outing will benefit the Charlevoix Junior Golf Program.

The pro-am will also feature a nationally renowned inspirational program featuring Dennis Walters.

According to www.denniswalters.com, Walters' dream was always to play successfully on the PGA Tour. He had an accident in 1974 that left him paralyzed from the waist down. After his accident it was looking pretty bleak for that dream. Dennis found there were a lot of things he couldn't do, but there was no way he was giving up playing golf and thus with this "never-say-die" attitude a new career was born. The Dennis Walters Golf Show is a one-hour combination of golf mastery and human inspiration.

The championship tournament will follow the pro-am with 40-50 players anticipated to compete on Monday, July 25 and Tuesday, July 26. Spectators are welcome and there is no charge.

In March 2009, David Mocini, a 24-year member of the PGA and former Michigan Section president, purchased the Charlevoix Golf and Country Club including the 18-hole golf course and 13,000 square foot clubhouse with associated restaurant, tennis courts and pool amenities, from the club's founders. He's taking time this spring to plan for the summer event.

"The course has a great blend of challenge which includes shorter holes of precision shot making along with the need for length throughout the round. Our Jerry Matthews design gives all the players of the tournament the opportunity to play well," Mocini said.

For more information about 2011 Michigan PGA Senior Championship sponsorship opportunities, call Loren Musilek (231) 547-6768 or Dave Mocini at (231) 547-9796.

Teachers participate in watershed workshop

Teachers from area schools and education centers took part in a recent Michigan Environmental Education Curriculum workshop at Charlevoix Public Library. The workshop was provided by WATCH, Inc. and a grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

"The materials provided for the teachers, the overall quality and presentation of the MEECS workshop, was a wonderful opportunity for our Charlevoix County middle school teachers and local instructors, like Raven Hill, who took advantage of this great program," said Michelle Rick Biddick. "The program is aligned to the Michigan curriculum framework and has been designed by the CMU Science and Math Technological Center, Michigan's Department of Environmental Quality, and Michigan Technological University."

WATCH, Inc. and Lake Charlevoix Association wrote the grant in order to help build on the association's "Experience Lake Charlevoix" program which takes place each spring aboard the Beaver Island ferry. The workshop, lunch, substitute teacher reimbursement, CEU credits and classroom unit kits were all paid for by the grant.

"It is WATCH's desire to provide teachers and ultimately Charlevoix County students with up to date information and interest in science, math, and social studies that relate to the everyday world," Rick-Biddick said.

WATCH, Inc., a nonprofit organization dedicated to the protection of the natural resources of Charlevoix County, previously hosted a workshop called "Energy." The organization plans to sponsor three more workshops within the next few years.

Anyone interested in information about WATCH or its programs is encouraged to send an e-mail to watchcharlevoix@gmail.com, or call (231) 547-5530.

You do.

Hardly a week passes without some small notice being printed in this newspaper. These legal advertisements affect you, your family and friends.

They show how your government is being run, how much money is being spent and where. Through this newspaper, they keep you in touch with your government.

That's the whole idea.

Nearly two-thirds of active Michigan voters think legal notices should continue to be placed in your local newspaper.*
